Foreword.

With the wish that the future of York College may uphold and even surpass the traditions of former years, the Marathon Staff of 1928-29 presents this book as a bit of service to the institution, as a symbol of her spirit, and as a storehouse of treasured memories.

Theme of the Marathon.

The use of a Greek theme for a college annual is especially appropriate, as much of our modern civilization is based on Greek culture. The Greek contributions, literature, art and philosophy have been a rich heritage to all succeeding civilizations. In the lines of culture and philosophic thought the world will always remain debtor to this small but imaginative, artistic and creative nation.

It is especially fitting, therefore, that we, who have derived the name of our college year book from one of the best known and most celebrated institutions of ancient Greece, should devote its pages to this theme. Most of the art work in the Marathon has been taken from photographs of great statues, in the round or bas-relief and from Greek paintings. The quotations found in our view section were all taken from the works of the Greek philosophers and poets. The acanthus leaf commonly used in Greek architecture has been utilized on the cover of our book.

The Marathon races take their name from the traditional feat of Phidippides who carried the news of the great victory from Marathon to Athens. They have become an important part of the Olympic games. These races may be considered as analogous to our college career, and in such a light are they treated in this Marathon.

The scrolls found throughout the opening section are suggestive of those on which the judges recorded the results of the races. Zeus, father of the gods, in whose honor the races were held, is found on the faculty page. He represents the guidance and sympathetic friendship of our faculty, who watch over our college years. The triumph and success of the Alumni is personified in the statue of the well known Nike or Winged Victory. The idea of attainment and the finish of the race is brought out on the senior page. The much coveted olive crown placed on the brow of the victor, by the judge, meant no more to the Athenian lad than does the diploma to the York College senior. The juniors are represented by a runner nearing his goal. The set runner, just well started on his race, yet pressing steadily ahead, typifies the sophomores. The eagle rising from the altar was the signal given at the Marathon for the race to begin and is symbolic of the freshman starting on his college career.

The organization page carries a sketch of Demeter, typifying social grace and ease, as she was the only woman spectator allowed to view the races. She is also symbolic of that other phase of the contest, for along with feats of athletic daring, the sculptor proudly exhibited the work of his chisel, and the poet his newest poem or fancy. The games were not merely representative of athletic prowess, but were also concerned with philosophy, history, the drama, music and sculpture. The famous Discobolus is found on the athletic page and features another of the sports indulged in at the Marathon, though perhaps less celebrated than the races. The jester is found on the feature page. He was an ever-present being at the games, mingling with the spectators and bringing laughs from the crowds who gathered. He is intended to represent the wholesome spirit of fun that exists at York College.

APPROACH TO ADMINISTRATION BUILDING.

*"Where, not a breath disturbs the deep serene,
And not a cloud o'ercasts the solemn scene."*

—Homer.

THE ALUMNI LIBRARY.

*“Man’s highest blessedness
In wisdom chiefly stands.”*

—Sophocles.

HULITT CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

*"Each mortal mind owns the soft influence of enchanting song,
When in melodious symphony combined."—Pindar.*

THE COLLEGE CHURCH.

*"He who enters the incense-filled temple must be holy,
And holiness is to have a pure mind."—Sappho.*

SOUTH ENTRANCE TO ADMINISTRATION BUILDING.

*"On every side pure happiness is found,
With all the blooming beauty of the world ."*
—Pindar.

Pres. J. R. Overmiller.

Rev. J. R. Overmiller assumed the presidency of York College last September, and all who have labored with him know that he has undertaken his work in a manner that is sure to bring success. Prior to his coming to York, President Overmiller had the superintendency of all the United Brethren churches and schools in New Mexico. In this field he met with unusual success.

The friendly sympathy and kindly word and smile of President Overmiller have done much to increase the spirit of good will and cooperation existing among students and faculty, and his presence is making York College a better and a happier place for those who mingle in its halls.

Dean Charles Bisset.

Dean Charles Bisset was called to the chair of History and Social Sciences of York College in 1913, and is still serving faithfully and well in this position. In connection with this work he served as registrar until 1926 when he was made dean of the institution. In this capacity he has won the added confidence and respect of the students, who find in him a capable and sympathetic adviser.

Dean Bisset holds an enviable place in the hearts of the students of the college, and also remains a true and loyal friend to a host of York College alumni and former students, in whom his interest never dies.

A Tribute to Our Faculty.

York College is fortunate in the fine group of men and women who compose the faculty. They are characterized by their high scholarship, their loyalty to the college, their personal interest in the progress of their students, and their splendid Christian example. Their kindly and sympathetic attitude has endeared them to all the student body.

As we go forth from our college halls we shall be better men and women because we have come under their wholesome and uplifting influence. They have shown a genuine interest in us during our college days, and we have reason to believe that they will continue to be interested as we go out into the world and achieve success in our various fields of activity. Let us not forget them and their contribution to our success.

Other Members—Lee KnoHe (Christian Associations); Ardyce Chapin (Business College); Neva Brookhart (Conservatory).

The Student Council.

On every campus there arises a need for closer cooperation between the student body and the faculty. The bond of fellowship between the students and faculty of York College has always been strong, but it has been further strengthened this year by the establishment of a Student Council.

The council is composed of twelve members, representing the following groups: seniors, juniors, sophomores, freshmen, Conservatory, Business College, Zeta, Pals, Christian Associations, "Y" Club and W. A. A., and the faculty. In addition to these representatives, there is a president who is chosen from the senior class and elected by the student body.

The Student Council will handle matters concerning extra-curricular activities, the division of duties between the Panther Club and the Council, and arbitration of matters between the various organizations and classes. They will also enact regulations concerning the government of the student body. A recent ruling of the council concerns the number of extra-curricular activities in which any one student may engage. This action suggests the important part the council is likely to play in campus affairs.

In the Student Council we have the realization of a long-desired goal. The council will undoubtedly prove more useful as each year adds to its knowledge and experience. Let us support this organization which brings to us the privilege of self-government, and show that we appreciate it.

The first annual ever published in York College was sponsored by the Junior class of 1917. The name they chose for their year book was "The Marathon." In connection with the christening of the annual, they named the elm grove north of the Administration Building, "Marathon Park." In this way the name, "Marathon," has been handed down to us in the traditions of the college.

The Marathon Board has had many difficulties to face in the publication of this book, but they have striven hard to make it one of the treasured possessions of each and every student. To accomplish this purpose, they have given special emphasis to a beautiful view section of familiar campus scenes, a snapshot section expressing the spirit and life of the campus, and a new type of humor section. They have also added to the feature section a picture of the most representative woman student and one of the most representative man. These students were chosen by popular vote of the student body, and the counting board is preserving the secret of their identity till the book is off the press. In all their work the board has been guided by the able supervision of Miss Edith Callender who has done much to make the annual a better publication.

FRED GILBERT	Business Manager
ABE GOERTZEN	Assistant Business Manager
ALICE COFFEY	Circulation Manager

The Sandburr of 1928-29 was published by an editorial staff of eight members and a business staff of three members. The financing of The Sandburr, under the efficient management of Fred Gilbert, was a perfect success, it being the first time for several years that The Sandburr has paid for itself. At the close of the year a good sum was turned over to the college.

Some of the things that The Sandburr accomplished by its policies and management are: Built up first significant alumni paid circulation, endeavored to establish a better contact between the college and the alumni of the college, sponsored a Christmas story and essay contest and awarded the winners boxes of chocolates, supported the administrative policies of the college, printed later news than had been printed before by shortening the length of time required to print the paper, advertised the college, published a special basketball edition with a group picture of the whole squad and individual pictures of the coach and eight players, supported organizations and activities in general, joined the National Scholastic Press Association and entered The Sandburr in their All-American contest for college papers, improved the paper, and printed 800 copies of The Sandburr each issue, the college using 500 to send out to United Brethren ministers and friends of the college.

Young Women's Christian Association.

The work of the Young Women's Christian Association of York College is perhaps one of the strongest influences on the campus. In addition to the helpful weekly devotional meetings, the Y. W. C. A. sponsors a number of activities that have come to be almost traditional.

The Big and Little Sister movement, which operates most noticeably in the fall, has proved to be the most efficient way of forming new acquaintances, and helping the new girls to adjust themselves to college life.

Besides this most important activity, the association, along with the Young Men's Association, sponsors the two receptions for the new students. The World Fellowship committee sponsored a Spanish Supper, the proceeds of which went to Porto Rico to aid in the reconstruction of the island after the tornado. Every year the associations have charge of the May Day Fete. The funds obtained are used to help delegates to the summer Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. conference at Estes Park.

The one great aim of the Y. W. C. A. is to aid each girl in college to live a well-rounded life that will help her develop strong character. The Y. W. C. A. states its purpose as follows:

We, the members of the Young Women's Christian Association of York College, unite in the desire to realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and follow Him.

The Young Men's Christian Association.

The year 1928-29 has brought marked success to the Y. M. C. A. Under the leadership of an efficient cabinet very interesting and worth while meetings have been held. Topics of special interest to college men have been handled in discussion groups, thus allowing each student a chance to voice his own opinion. A number of local citizens, have also brought helpful messages.

The Y. M. C. A. cooperated with the Y. W. C. A. in securing Gordon Howard, a director of young people's work in the United Brethren Church, for a four-day meeting in December. He brought splendid messages to the students and gave special help to those who requested personal conferences. Harry Bone, a national Y. M. C. A. traveling secretary, was with us for two days for a series of conferences.

The Y. M. C. A. has also contributed to the social life of the campus. In the fall a stag party was held in the old gymnasium. It was enjoyed by all, especially after the girls tried to get the watermelon. At the opening of each semester, the Y. M. C. A. cooperated with the Y. W. C. A. in holding the semi-annual "Jolly-up" reception.

A lively campaign to interest students in the Estes Park Conference has been carried on jointly by the two associations. It is hoped that there may be a number of delegates to this conference and that they may return enthusiastic for next year's work.

The Pals' Literary Society is one of the oldest organizations on the campus. However, until after the organization of the rival society, Zeta, the Pals were known as Amphictyons and Philomatheans and functioned as separate societies for men and women respectively. Joint meetings were held occasionally. The initial letters, A. L. S. and P. L. S. were used to designate the organizations. But the appearance of two rival societies with the joint name of Zeta stimulated the Amphictyons and Philomatheans to combine their initial letters and evolve the name "Pals" which has been used ever since. For approximately the last ten years only joint meetings have been held.

The present year has proved a very enjoyable and profitable one for the Pals. Strengthened Inst fall by the addition of a number of new and capable members they have steadily pursued their purpose of developing the talents of their members. Various kinds of musical numbers, orations, impromptu addresses, debates, and other literary efforts make up the programs. From the standpoint of achievement it is interesting to note that most of the varsity debaters are Pals. The fall reception, the spring picnic, and the spring banquet are among the annual social functions.

In the fall of 1914 it became apparent that the two literary societies then in existence could no longer fully meet the needs of a growing student body. For this reason, it was considered advisable to organize two new societies to function as brother and sister organizations. Accordingly, the Zetalathean Society for women and the Zetagaethean for men were organized.

For the next four years the two Zeta Societies met alternately throughout the school year, with a joint meeting partly social in nature, about once a quarter. During the period of the World War, however, the Zetagaetheans were so reduced in numbers that it was deemed advisable to hold only joint meetings. This policy proved so agreeable to the members that it has been continued ever since.

The meetings are held on alternate Tuesday evenings in Zeta Hall in the Administration Building. The work of the present year opened with a good program followed by the customary reception for the new students and the faculty. A number of capable new members were secured at this meeting. Other social features are being planned for the spring.

The value of membership in a literary society can scarcely be over-estimated. The literary, business, and social phases of the work, the parliamentary drill, the training in leadership, and the experience gained in cooperating with others make up no small part of a liberal education.

Debate.

More than the usual amount of interest has been manifested in debate this year. The programs of the PaIs' Literary Society offered excellent opportunity for practice in debate aside from the work done in debate class. Another feature of the season was the freshmen vs. upperclassmen debate in which the latter group was victorious.

The conference question for debate was, Resolved that the present jury system of the United States should be abolished. This question proved to be of great interest to the debaters because of its important bearing on a vital question of the present day.

By winning seven out of eleven debates, the debaters finished the season with a better record than that of any previous York College debate team. The affirmative team, composed of Onita Stone, Ual Hanshew, and Schuyler Phillips, won four out of six debates. The negative team, composed of Wilhelmina Feemster, Homer Crosby, Harlie Allen, and Sutton Hice, won three out of five debates. The affirmative had the honor of winning the decision in the Wesleyan-York debate. This was the first debate victory York College has ever had over Wesleyan. The negative team engaged in a no-decision debate with Peru which was one of the most interesting contests of the season. With most of the debaters planning to return next year the prospects for bettering this year's record look very bright.

The season's debate record follows:

With Doane: York 3, 0; Doane 0, 1.

With Cotner: York 2, 1; Cotner 0, 2.

With Nebraska Central: York 2, 2; Nebraska Central 1, 1.

With Nebraska Wesleyan: York 2; Nebraska Wesleyan 1.

With Kearney: York 3, 0; Kearney 0, 3.

With Grand Island: York 3, 0; Grand Island 0, 2.

The Panther Club is the outgrowth of the Booster Club which was organized at York College in 1926. Two members are chosen from each class and from the faculty. Yell leaders are then chosen from the student body at large.

The Panther Club, one of the most active of the college organizations, started the year by instilling pep and spirit into the student body for the football season through pep programs in chapel, bon-fire rallies, and snake dances down town. The club sponsored the college section of the parade on September 28, York's Homecoming Day, and entered a float in its own name.

Since the Student Council was not yet organized, the freshman initiation, including the "Wearing of the Green," was placed in the hands of the Panther Club by the administration, and through their untiring efforts it was successfully managed.

The biggest event of the year was the elaborate and well planned Football Banquet which was served in the main dining room of the United Brethren Church on December 18. It was attended by about one hundred peppy students, faculty, alumni, and friends, and the Panther Club felt well repaid for their efforts.

Throughout the basketball season the Panther Club kept the college spirit at a high point.

The Art Department.

For the past seven years the York College Art Department has been most ably directed by Mrs. J. A. Giauque, formerly of the Illinois Wesleyan Department of Art. She has specialized in a number of different phases of art, and York College students are indeed fortunate to have the opportunity of studying under her supervision.

Courses are offered in applied design, oil, water color, pastel, china, basketry, leather tooling, clay modeling, and drawing. In Normal Art, students may take work preparing them to serve as teachers of drawing or supervisors of art education in the public schools. Evening classes are held to accommodate people of the community who are otherwise engaged during the day.

During commencement week of each year the art department holds a public reception at which time the work accomplished during the year is placed on exhibition.

It is not necessary to have special talent in art in order to enroll for some helpful and enjoyable course in this department. In fact, every student should, sometime during his college course avail himself of the opportunity to extend his powers of observation, improve his taste, and arouse a new sense of appreciation for the beautiful through a study of some phase of art.

York Business College.

The Commercial and Shorthand Department of York College offers an opportunity for the education of young men and women along the broadest lines of business pursuits. The courses offered are as thorough and up-to-date as are found in any business college. The aim of the department is to turn out students trained to handle the problems of every day life successfully. They can point with pride to successful graduates in the larger business centers who are today holding responsible positions. Quality rather than quantity is the standard by which the department prefers to be judged.

Students in this department have a distinct advantage over students in an ordinary business college in that they have the social and cultural environment provided by the presence of the liberal arts college on the same campus. Business college students have the privilege of membership in the various campus organizations, including the literary societies. The value of this kind of campus activity must not be overlooked, for it is here that the student gets a training that no course in English affords. The student with a first class business training is much better prepared for the duties of every day life if he has also had the training for leadership that can be obtained by accepting responsibilities in the various campus organizations.

The Business College has its own officers and its own social affairs, as distinct from the social affairs of the whole institution. Outstanding events were a picnic on the banks of Lincoln Creek early in the fall and a theater party in January.

The Glee Club.

The Glee Club has been doing excellent work under the able direction of Dean Charles Amadon. His interest in good music and his desire that all might learn to appreciate it make the glee club training very valuable. Dean Amadon has been recognized as a man of high musicianship, and his work has been praised by prominent musicians and teachers. York College is indeed proud to have such an able director for the voice department.

During the year the Glee Club studies and presents in public a number of selections of the very best music. Last year two cantatas figured as the outstanding accomplishments of the year. They were, "The Psalm of Life," and "From Olivet to Calvary," the latter being sung at Easter in conjunction with the United Brethren choir.

This year's curriculum has consisted of work on a cantata, a light opera, and numbers from Bach's "St. Matthew's Passion." The cantata, "A Man Without a Country," by Hosmer, was given in November at the United Brethren Church before an appreciative audience. On January 17, a three-act opera, "The Quaker Girl," by Moneklon, was presented in the York Theater. This has been pronounced the greatest production ever put on by amateurs in York. In the presentation of this opera, Dean Amadon was assisted by Miss Dorothy Metz who took care of the stage setting and coached the dramatic parts, and Mr. Kenneth Bailey, instructor in violin at Hulitt Conservatory, who directed the orchestra.

Directed by Dean Charles Amadon.

The first act is laid in England where the exiled French princess makes the acquaintance of the Quaker girl. The latter becomes interested in the customs of these outside her faith and is driven out by her people. She goes to Paris with the princess and her newly acquired husband and the rest of the action takes place there. Many ludicrous and exciting situations occur before the plot comes to a happy ending.

It is of vital importance to a student in college that he begin to build in accordance with the wishes of his Maker. That is the aim of each one of the Life Work Recruits and Student Volunteers of York College. To spread the teachings of Christ by word and by deed to those around them is the purpose of the students in this organization.

The organization during the first semester of the year 1927-28 had the opportunity of listening to a series of lectures given by Dean Charles Bisset on such topics as "Heaven," "Hell," "Repentance," and "Salvation." In the second semester, the book, "The How and Why in China," was studied.

These students have been studying by discussion the series of pamphlets, "The Christian Quest." The pamphlets are a study in the leadership of young people. The group has had the privilege of meeting with Dr. C. J. Fox and Rev. Gordon Howard, besides entertaining the State Student Volunteer Convention here.

An important part of the program for each year has been the Gospel team work. In this work the members have the opportunity of serving the community through sermon and song at nearby churches, as well as of training themselves for the future years. It is with a great deal of joy that the Life Work Recruits and Student Volunteers look forward to a life of service in the Master's name.

The Cheer Leaders.

College spirit is one of those intangible things that it is hard to describe. It is a mood that seems to exist one day and perhaps to have disappeared the next. It is a spirit which some schools seem to have, and which others seem to lack.

College spirit is a fine thing. It is the power that sends a football team out to battle a stronger, heavier team and defeat them. It is the force that sends men out on the basketball floor to fight their hardest. It is the compelling influence that makes a man put everything he has into a hurdle race or a hundred yard dash. It is the spirit that insists on fair play, the spirit that stands for the honor of the team and the school.

College spirit is not always noisy. Sometimes it is shy, hard working, and self sacrificing. But always it is undaunted and always it is more or less contagious. Some people are not very susceptible to it, and resist until the last, but there are sure to be some occasions when they feel its influence.

At York College we have college spirit. Sometimes it is more strongly felt than at other times. Sometimes it seems more contagious than at others. Sometimes it is noisy and jubilant. Sometimes it is modest but insistent. Strangers have remarked its courage in the face of difficulties.

It is the special duty of the cheer leaders to help us maintain our college spirit, and they have rendered valiant service in this field, sometimes in the face of great odds.

Hurrah for the Cheer Leaders!

The 1928 Foot Ball Team.

The 1928 football season presented a number of difficulties, and the men who faced them so gallantly are certainly to be commended. The team has been captained by Floyd Mann, Captain-elect Gilliland having failed to return. A splendid tribute was paid to Captain Mann early in the season by one of his teammates who said, "Mann's avoirdupois acts as a 'discourager' to most of his opponents, but those who fail to be discouraged find that he is there with football experience, too."

Among the memorable games of the season was the one played at Central City. A large number of students went with the team on this trip. Encouraged by their loyal spirit and boundless enthusiasm, the boys battled their way to victory. The weather frowned on the combat, and a steady rain made things difficult for both players and spectators, but after it was all over, reports sounded as if the rain had merely added "thrills" to the trip.

Three members of our team received well deserved honors this year. Harold Jeffers, a senior, was placed at a guard position on the N. C. A. C. all-state second team selected by the Nebraska State Journal. Jeffers, who has been one of the Panthers' main stays certainly merited this honor. Captain Mann received honorable mention in the backfield, and Verne Dierdorff received honorable mention at end.

Five of the squad will graduate. Practically all of the rest will be back next fall. They will form a splendid nucleus for next year's team, and prospects are bright for a successful season under the leadership of Verne Dierdorff, captain-elect.

The 1927 Foot Ball Team.

Coach Ladd Hubka's Panthers of the 1927 football squad were a group of men of whom the college may well be proud. A group of former players had come back and they formed the nucleus of the team. To show their appreciation for the stellar work of Reed Gilliland as center in 1926, the members of the squad elected him to captain the 1927 Panthers. Captain Gilliland made an excellent leader and pivot for the team.

Among the games played that will long he remembered was the York-Midland game played on the gridiron of York High School. The cheer section led by excellent cheer leaders, stood up during the entire game, facing a strong north wind, to cheer for the team who held the strong Midland team to a tie. The playing of the team that day and the spirit of the student body will long he remembered in the football annals of the college.

In the seven games the Panthers played, they won three games, tied three and lost one, a game out of the conference. Their record showed 127 points against their opponents, and their goal line had been crossed five times for 32 points. The team finished the season with a thousand per cent standing in the conference. Due to the number of ties, however, they failed to have the championship awarded to them.

The season's score record was:

York	0	Grand Island 0.
York	0	Marysville, Mo., 0.
York	60	Omaha 0.
York	26	Dana 0.
York	6	Kearney 6.
York	6	Midland 6.
York	29	Central City 0.

Basketball.

The season this year opened with three letter men back to form the nucleus of the new team. A number of freshmen with considerable ability also reported. The team finished the season with a standing well up in the conference and the college is proud of their record.

One of the most interesting games of the entire season was the first one to be played on the home floor, the York-Grand Island game on January 25. The occasion was made a memorable one by the fact that prior to the game the new gymnasium was dedicated. President J. R. Overmiller presided at the service. Rev. L. C. Fuqua, pastor of the local Congregational church spoke briefly in the absence of C. A. McCloud, president of the Board of Trustees, who was to have given the address of the evening. Rev. Paul Turner, pastor of the Presbyterian church, offered the dedicatory prayer. Coach R. B. McCandless, Captain Fred Gilbert, the other local players, and the visiting team were all introduced to the audience. The National Guard band, led by Mr. Joy Payne, played "Dedication March," followed by other appropriate numbers. The climax of a historic evening was reached when York finished an exciting game with a victory.

Louis Helzer, center for the York team, was again awarded a place on the all-state team this year. Helzer is one of the outstanding athletes of the state and York College is proud of his record. Captain Gilbert should also be commended for his fine work.

Among the freshmen who have shown outstanding ability are Paul Batty, Marvin Creech, and Neal Gallant. These men, and Vernon Moist will be back next year. With these experienced players on hand and with one of the finest gym floors in the state, York is looking forward to another championship next year.

THE 1928 BASKETBALL TEAM.

Standing—Franz; Robson; Felton; L. J. Hubka (Coach).
Seated—Gilbert, Kunzleman Helzer (Capt.); Moist; Hubka.

N. C. A. C. Champions.

The squad which reported for basketball for the 1928 season did not appear to be in any way exceptional. However, thanks to Coach Hubka's ability, a team was developed from that squad which upset the "dope bucket" and marched right through the season to the championship.

A new conference composed of eight of the denominational schools of the state had just been formed. It was called the Nebraska Collegiate Athletic Conference. The 1928 championship was the first one awarded by the new conference and we were proud to see our own school win the trophy. The award was a silver statue of a basketball player in the act of catching a ball high above his head. The figure is mounted on a base on which is engraved the significance of the trophy.

Captain "Slick" Helzer, at center, was probably the outstanding player of the team. He was awarded a place on the all-state team and was one of the high scorers of the state.

The two games with Doane College were the most interesting games of the season. The first was played at Doane at the close of a three-day trip. Doane won by a small margin. A large number of rooters from York attended the game. The second game was played at York and was the battle which decided the championship. Doane brought their hand and a large group of rooters. The gymnasium was crowded to the limit and the game itself was one of the most thrilling ever played at York College.

Standing—Gilbert (Secretary Treasure); Mann; Bryant; Helzer (President); Miller.
Seated—Ruppel; Casebeer; Hice; Wildman; Coach McCandless; Jeffers; Sterner.

The "Y" Club.

The "Y" Club was organized in 1924 by Coach John Riddell. It is composed of all men who have been awarded the official "Y" for participation in some athletic sport. Membership in the club is perpetual but only those who are in school are considered active members. New members initiated since the picture was taken are: Neal Gallant, Ual Hanshew, Walter Hunt, Lee Knolle, Clarence Davis, Gene Dunken, and Verne Dierdorff. Others are eligible now, and still more will be by the end of the year.

The club has been especially active during the past two years. During the last year, they reorganized and adopted a new constitution. They have proven themselves so efficient that the responsibility for the athletic activities of the college has been turned over to them. This work was formerly handled by a board made up of representatives of the various classes. The new gymnasium, completed too late for a place in the view section, was a project of special interest to the "Y" Club, and, under the leadership of Coach McCandless, they contributed several hundred dollars worth of labor to the new building. They also handled very successfully the district high school basketball tournament, and their annual invitation tournament.

The club meets regularly each month for a social time together and for the transaction of business. Each member is permitted to purchase a small medal, officially designed by the club, which serves as a life pass to all athletic contests at York College.

ESTHER BARKER	.....	Vice-President
MARGARET YUST	.....	Secretary-Treasurer
ALICE COFFEY....	.....	Tennis Chairman
ARDITH KULL	.....	Hiking Chairman

The Women's Athletic Association was organized in the fall of 1924 for the purpose of promoting girls' athletics. Since that time the W. A. A. has done very effective work in organizing new sports and in fostering more enthusiasm among the girls for this type of work. Sports promoted by the association are: Hiking, volley-ball, soccer, basketball, tennis and track.

Any girl enrolled in York College may become a member of the W. A. A. upon paying her dues and earning 100 points. Points may be won by participation in sports and by holding executive offices. 100 points are given to the winners of a contest, 75 points to the runners-up, and 50 points to all other competitors. The following awards are given: an arm band for 100 points; a white sweater with a blue "Y" for 1000 points; a W. A. A. pin or a varsity blanket for 1500 points.

In the fall and spring the girls often go on early morning hikes. These hikes consist of four miles walked in approximately one hour. After such a walk the girls enjoy the good breakfast of waffles or of bacon and eggs waiting for them at the domestic science room.

Every spring the W. A. A. holds a girls' tennis tournament. The winner of the singles is given a silver loving cup. If the same girl wins the cup three years in succession it becomes hers permanently. Last year this cup was won by Alice Coffey.

The Marathon

The 1929 Marathon presents on the following pages the representative man and the representative woman student of York College.

The qualities considered in making the selection were scholarship, athletic ability, character, and service to the college. By popular vote of the student body, Thornton Miller, '29, of Lamar, Nebraska, and Alice Coffey, '29, of Oxford, Nebraska, were chosen as best representing those qualities. Schuyler Phillips, '29, of Perris, California, and Neva Brookhart, '28, of Nelson, Nebraska, ranked second.

The Class of 1929.

Perhaps no year of school life ever means so much to a class as the senior year in college. As we approach the end of our under graduate life, the friendships we have formed during the past years mean more to us than ever before. During the past year we have come into closer contact with one another because of the increasing number of class problems we have had to work out and the decisions we have had to make. During this year when we have more seriously considered our life work we have found that we have more in common than in the care-free days when we were thoughtless under-graduates.

Next year we shall be scattered. Two members of the class plan to take up medical study, one plans to go east to study radio engineering, and another to the University of California to study for a Master's degree in philosophy. Other members of the class expect to take up various phases of teaching. Several of our number are Life Work Recruits and hope eventually to take up some form of definite Christian service.

Wherever we may be located, we shall always remember the Senior Recognition Day, February 7, as the outstanding day of the year. The class of 1929 was formally recognized by a program given at the college church. The procession was led by four members of the junior class. They were followed by President Overmiller, Dean Bisset, Professors Baller and Miller, the seniors in cap and gown, and the remaining members of the junior class. The program was as follows:

Processional .....	Neva Brookhart
Invocation.....	Prof. Warren Baller
Presentation of Class.....	Dean Charles Bisset
Response .....	Harlon Moore
Vocal Solo .....	Dean Charles Amadon
Address .....	Pres. J. R. Overmiller
Quartet Ethel Dixon, Verne Dierdorff, Lucile Edmondson, Donald Fisher
Benediction .....	Dr. C. L. Young

At the noon hour following the program, the class met at the Hotel McCloud for luncheon. The seniors and their advisers, Prof. and Mrs. Baller, were seated at a long table which was simply decorated with clever place cards and red roses, the class flower. After luncheon a short business meeting was held on the mezzanine floor, followed by a program of amusing talks by Prof. Baller, Edna Coffey, Schuyler Phillips, Louis Helzer, and Everett Samuelson. In the evening, President and Mrs. Overmiller honored the class at a most delicious dinner. Every member of the class will long remember the hospitality of the president's home.

The seniors have enjoyed many happy occasions together during this last year in York College, and every one of them has been made brighter by the readiness of Prof. and Mrs. Baller whose friendship has made our lives richer. We wish we might give adequate expression to our appreciation of what they have meant to us. We shall always cherish the memory of the happy occasions in which they have been our leaders, and our very best wishes will go with them through the years.

GUM-CHEWERS CONVENTION IS HELD

LARGE CROWD IS IN ATTENDANCE

Program Is Given. The gum-chewers convention, better attended than for many years previous, was held in this city beginning Friday of this week at gum-chewing time, and ending Sunday evening. The Gum-chewers league has its organization under the leadership of Burton Rogers, an able president.

On Friday many fine and inspiring lectures, as well as entertaining musical numbers were delivered, the following program being rendered: "Gum as an aid in concentration"

Harold Jeffers
"Gum as an inspiration to the instructor" Manuel Martinez
Vocal duet, "I'll share my gum with you"

Charles Davis and Fern Meadville
"Gum as a factor in education"—Lois Overmiller

Saturday afternoon and evening were spent in entertaining the members of the society. Various games and contests were conducted. The most outstanding contest was a gum chewing contest in which Miss Margaret Hill received first prize, Miss Ida Page second prize and Mr. Everett Samuelson third prize. The decision of this contest was rendered by rating the contestants on (1) demonstration of great speed in chewing, (2) accurate manipulation of the jaws, and (3) amount of noise produced while chewing.

On Sunday afternoon the new members were initiated into the League. A few of the more noted new members who adopted the slogan, "More Gum Chewers in (Continued on Page Three)

Motive May Be Hunger. Two strangers, clad in dull grey, mud-spattered suits were seen in the office before closing time at noon, but were not suspected, as they pretended to be registering in the Department of Music.

The librarian closed the library at noon as usual, not suspecting in the least that her costly private box of cheese, which she had secretly hidden in the glass case among the articles for sale, had been discovered.

The robbers evidently were hiding in the grandfather clock in the lower hall at closing time. They made their way to the library with no interference. But their get-away was too prolonged, for upon returning from lunch, the librarian caught them helping themselves to the delicious contents of the box.

WEATHER FOURCAST.

No dog days all winter. Too much snow and ice to bury a bone. The chances are that the Education Department and Latin Department will bury the hatchet for a few weeks next August. There will be low barometric pressure on all accounts overdue, and rising temperature in the library when fines are paid.

TINY ELDER BUG

WINS FLIGHT

Lindy Bug Breaks Wing. Tiny Elder Bug cinched the $25,000 non-stop record when Lindy Box Elder ran against Prof. Feemster's ear in a fog bank.

Early on the morning of December 11, 1928, Tiny Elder Bug and Lindy Box Elder took off for the $25,000 non-stop flight from the east end of the Administration building. Both fliers took the air readily. Lindy was a little unsteady at first, due to too much sleep, and wobbled around until he gained his altitude.

A heavy fog hung over the fliers' route, and both of them soon lost their direction. Although the fog grew denser, the fliers finally got their bearings and passed over the rocky mountains in Analytics class. Once above the range of the students, they encountered fog no more. Then Tiny and Lindy discovered they were going wrong and turned back.

Unfortunately, Lindy encountered adverse air currents as he went north, and smashed a wing on Prof. Feemster's ear. He fluttered helplessly to the floor, completely out of the race.

Tiny went on unaware of the disaster of his friend, and rapidly increased his speed. As a result he established a non-stop record by reaching the west entrance at exactly 7:45 A. M. Central Standard time, or 8:45 Eastern time. Thousands of bugs were out in the early morning air, eager to welcome their hero, and undaunted by the extreme chilliness of the atmosphere. Tiny circled over them several times and landed among the cheers of the throng, while 1000 inches away the other flier lay helpless.

Both of the competitors were bon fliers.

NEW STUDENTS ARE ENROLLED

Spent Time In Hall. York College has an increase in enrollment. A comparatively short time ago three strangers were seen on the campus. Reporters rushed to meet them, and gave them a big write-up in all the high-class newspapers and magazines.

The new students are the three sons of the noted Mr. Fair Hat from Manhattan. The three brothers, Messrs. Red Hat, Lavender Hat, and Blue Hat, have registered, but as yet they have not attended classes. They are frequently seen in the hall.

Mr. Red Hat seems the more timid, and is evidently the youngest of the three, as he never converses with anyone. He merely hangs around in the south hall near or in the trash can, as well as in the trash can in the English room. His face illumines the room.

Mr. Lavender Hat is the most attractive of the three. He may be seen any lime of day either at the Conservatory of Music or at the Administration Building on first, second or third floor. Wherever he is, he attracts the attention of some flirting co-ed.

Mr. Blue Hat is a contented, self-entertaining fellow. Instead of remaining about the campus, he wanders out in the country, and watches the Brook, heart trouble being the reason for his walking at leisure and avoiding any excitement.

These three brothers were given a hearty reception. York College students are delighted to have representatives from Manhattan among them. They feel that considerable color is thus added to the group. It is the hope of every student that the newcomers will enjoy their sojourn here, and if they do it is expected that other Manhattan residents will join them.

Artist Receives Flowers. Both the musical and the financial circles were rocked on their foundations by the re-entering of Mr. Gustavus Adolphus Gustafson, prominent pork producer of Iowa, into the collegiate social circles.

He has chosen to bestow his fleeting, charming smiles on the renowned Colorado organist, Miss Laurene Edmondson, who for the past few days has been confined to her apartments with a slight attack of "irritamenturn entericis" which has been rapidly relieved by "aqua pura" applications.

"WAR OR PEACE?"

"They shall cry peace, peace, when there is no peace." How admirably this Biblical (?) extract is exemplified in the conduct of Thornton Miller and Onita Stone when educational discussions happen to be directed toward the utility value of Latin as a formal discipliner. For we ask you, what chance has a poor little dove of peace when Thornton and Onita and Latin get all mixed up together in an education class?

Miller, who has heard somewhere (he has forgotten where) that Latin's sole claim to curricular existence is its ability to discipline the cerebral processes, charges in with the assertion that "There ain't no such animal as formal discipline." The utility of said subject is therefore nil, and time wasted on it might much better be wasted in determining such problems as the finding of X when given all of the other letters of the alphabet. (Apropos to nothing we might add that much effort is being spent in trying to find the person who told Miller that he is a logical thinker. When he is found, homicide will ensue).

But to resume, Onita, who never did care for Pythagoras et al, and who has been nurtured at the feet of Morgan and other great Latin petagogs, is always incensed to the point of white heat by the onslaughts of Miller. She is astounded by his colossal ignorance. Does Thornton not know that no one is educated who can not say "amo, amas, amat?" Is he not aware of the great usefulness of Latin in giving us an insight to the deep meaning of such phrases as "Alma Maier" and "Calarificus Canis?" Why it is a well known fact that no one can get the full enjoyment out of a given disease if he is unable to pronounce its technical name. Only Latin can render this invaluable service.

Thus the war wages, and in spite of the continuing efforts of Professor Baller the nearest thing to peace ever obtained has been a temporary truce between these beligerent combatants, all of which is very deplorable and discouraging to Kirby Page and the scribe. For what chance have we of establishing "World Peace" when such warlike states exist on a peaceful Campus? It ain't right!!

The Ford Coupe
Thornton had a Ford Coupe
That went to Shelby night and day.
Times have changed from what they were.
Now from York he will not stir.

"CON" INMATE IS

BELIEVED DEAD

The absence of the presence of Miss Iona Ford from lunch and dinner yesterday created a gloomy fear among the other boarders at the Conservatory.

Miss Iona Ford is a blonde, about five feet tall, who rooms on the third floor of the conservatory. Her absence being keenly felt, the matron requested that another roomer on third floor inquire immediately as to Iona's absence and assist, if needed.

The thus instructed lady, strictly doing her duty, galloped up one-half of the long stairway, and stumbled up the other half. Having bruised her right fist from knocking so vigorously and long on Miss Ford's door, and having received not one wee chirp from Iona, she pushed the door open and cried, "Iona! Iona!" But Iona slept on. With louder expressions she attempted to arouse Miss Ford, but still Iona slept on. "Surely Iona is there," thought she far, looking in from the door-way, she thought she saw the stretched out form of Iona, lying in the middle of the bed. So again and again she repeated in loud shrieking tones, "Iona! Iona!" Still Iona slept on.

Faintly breathing, exhausted by the thought of the inmates death, dashing down the stairs, taking five steps to her one breath, she reached the lower floor and began searching for the matron, calling in exasperating tones, "Help! Help! I can't awaken Iona Ford!"

Cries! —Clamour! — Rushes! — Dashes! —
The matron, nearly frantic, with a gang of other faint-hearted roomers, hastily rushed to Miss Ford's room, opened the door, jammed in, and behold! —

Miss Iona Ford's imagined form was still lying in the middle of the bed; but the real form of Iona had vanished, having left the Conservatory, unnoticed, at nine o'clock that morning. She had planned to enjoy herself at her relatives' home in the country, while her jumbled-up blankets remained on the bed.

The robbers were identified as Mr. Mouse, Senior, and Mr. Mouse, Junior. No clue as to their means of entrance into the library could be obtained, the general suspicion being that the two had stealthily used their tails as tools and picked the lock.

This loss struck the community as the severest misfortune since the grasshoppers' arrival. The librarian suffers most keenly, however, since her box of highly valued cheese can not be replaced, and her chance of satisfying her hunger between meals is lost.

The Red Hat.

There was a York student named Don

He bought him a hat,
And 'twas red at that!

But that made it easier to don.
One day, the hat it was gone

And that brought grief to poor Don
In trash can it sat

This poor little hat
"This lid is a bother," said Don.

IOWA SWINE

SHEPHERD IS

CUPID'S VICTIM

In expression of sympathy for Miss Edmondson's untimely illness, the Hog King sent a floral gift. The spermatophytes were tastily pushed, jammed and poked into a shoe box (6"x4") wrapped with Penny store paper and daintily held apart by quarter inch cable. The corsage was made up of several fragmentary (?) sprigs of celery among which was mingled a beautiful crepe paper rose. The vegetables were neatly backed by a Conservatory lettuce leaf. The gorgeous spectacle was firmly bound by the close embrace of an antique black sock.

Society awaits with bated breath the outcome of this budding romance.

A U N T E M M A ' S A D V I C E

Dear Aunt Emma:

I wish to brighten your column with a little article against the comic strips in the funny papers, most especially the Mutt and Jeff page. My girl is a fiend for comic strips and in the course of our nightly conversations she invariably confuses the two characters and calls me "Mutt" instead of "Jeff."

What can I do to prevent this great mistake in the future?

Jeff.

Dear Jeff:

Don't be a mutt! * * *

Dear Aunt Emma:

I am threatened by a blonde peril. Please tell me how I can escape?

A "Gallant" Man.

My Dear "Gallant" Man:

Truly it has been said that blonds are the cause of all evil. The theatre is the source of infection. So avoid all connection with the theatre, ushers included.

Dear Aunt Emma:

I don't know what to do. I want to sing in chapel next Wednesday, and the chapel committee won't let me. What shall I do?

Harlon, the Disappointed.

My Dear Harlon:

The best way for you to get revenge in this case is to sing anyway.

****

Dear Aunt Emma:

When my girl and I are out walking and we come to a fence, should I help the girl?

"Slicker."

Dear "Slicker:"

Certainly not! Help the fence.

* * * * *

Dear Aunt Emma:

Again I am writing you for your judgment on a very important and serious question. It has caused many days of worry and nights of restlessness. You are the only one in whom I am confiding, because others are not to be trusted or relied upon.

I know I am asking a great deal of you, but I know you can, and I'm sure you will help me out of my difficulty. I can only say to you, Aunt Emma, in deciding this important question, lay aside your feelings for me and tell me the truth.

Do you think I will ever be as tall as Moist?

"Shorty" Martinez.

Dear "Shorty:"

I feel that the only hope for this attainment which has caused you so much disturbance is the purchase of a pair of stilts, I hope this remedies your misfortune.

"The College Library."

The college library with hooks high and wide

Should prove to be a helpful guide.

But say! Just try to review our library's uses

Why! there's so many!—(but I'll make no excuses).

For some, the library proves a spot of play

Such as Edna and Helen who waste the whole day!

Then here are spent many hours of peaceful slumber

Especially by Mann who snores loud as thunder!

After an announcement of a banquet at 85c per plate

Why! in the library, Howard Mather is asking for a date.

Industrious students do the library seek

Every extra minute in each long week.

Now in which class do you seem to belong?

Do you think you're in the right, or in the wrong?

Dean Bisset (in Life of Christ class)—"It has been found that the descendants of American Europeans are one inch taller than descendants of unmixed Europeans. The reason for this is on account of proper care, food, and clothing."

Homer Crosby — "I wonder if that's what makes the girls of today so short."

Vern Dierdorff woke up one morning in West Europe history class.

PERSONALS.

Floyd Mann was seen on the campus at 7:25 a. m. on Febr. 29.

Alonzo Ramp visited chapel several times recently.

Charles Davis recently spent a quiet evening in study.

Schuyler Phillips has purchased an alarm clock.

Marvin Creech called at the Conservatory one evening in March.

Wilhelmina Feemster once encountered a surprise which rendered her speechless for 3 0 minutes. She has entirely recovered and no fear of a relapse is entertained.

Marjorie Carpenter answered her own ring at the Conservatory once last year.

Marietta Cain had a hair cut on Sept. 1, 1928.

Jo Spore met with a serious accident in the college library when the chair on which she was sitting collapsed. A great deal of anxiety was entertained for the chair. Mr. Garwood was called immediately. It was hoped that the injury would not be permanent.

Miss Emma Fye recently ordered three sacks of sugar to meet the demand of Harlan Gustafson.

Lately Vernon Moist has been caught memorizing the contents of the green-backed dictionary.

It was reported by Raymond Ruppel that the side walk met Jeanette Bisset at the Conservatory on the morning of Febr. 25.

Miss Marjory Price and Craven Stream have not been seen lately in the Ford sedan in front of the Conservatory.

Jean Haner was seen studying among a group of studious girls one afternoon in the library.

Thelma Dierdorff received a letter from Iowa City on Febr. 16.

"Fuzzy" had a date one night last week.

Jo Spore and Helen Oliver laughed in the library on Febr. 27.

Neal Gallant really does get mad sometimes.

Francis Harbert—(in Religious Education class, discussing songs)—"I think the songs that are sung in chapel are awful. Now, I was looking through a songbook the other day, and saw some good ones. There was one especially that appealed to me. The name of it was, 'Nobody Knows the Troubles I Have!'"

GUM CHEWERS'

CONVENTION HELD

1929. " were: Vernon Moisc, Dorothy Higgins, Marvin Creech and Frieda Schultz.

The final program on Sunday evening was very helpful:

Oration, "How to make gum pop"

Piano Solo, "Let's Swap Gum"

Demonstration of the mechanical uses of gum

Address, "My favorite occupation"

Piano duet, "Smack, Smack, my gum's good"

Ual Hanshew and Elmer Mahlin

Welcome to new members

Response

Large crowds were in attendance at all sessions, great benefit being received. Hopes for another convention here next year were stimulated, due to the grand success of this one.

The Fat Girl's Wish.

I wish I were slender and weighed ninety-two.

Instead of as much as elephants do.

I wish I were slim and little around,

But each day it seems, I gain a pound.

I wish I could diet and reduce

Instead of wabbling 'round like a goose.

I wish everyone were fat like me,

Or that I, too, slender might be.

BEST METHOD OF PRODUCING INSANITY IN FACULTY

Repeat one of the following, three days in succession:

1. That word isn't in the dictionary.
2. I didn't hear the question,
3. I don't know what to write about.
4. There isn't any material in the library on that subject.
5. Shall we write on both sides of the paper?
6. I didn't know you wanted us to hand the paper in!
7. You didn't assign a lesson for today, did you?
8. May I be excused from class today?
9. Is my paper graded yet?
10. Do you want me to make up the work I missed?

Wilhelmina — (discussion over time of inter-class debate)—"Think! We're going to have our debate at the chapel period and we're allowed a whole hour and a half!"

Onita—"Oh! I don't see why they don't have it at night. I can always talk better then!"

On a sunshiny day, at dormitory Edna (jokingly, as she sweeps up some lux that has been spilled)—"See! I'm sweeping up some snow."

Helen O- (seriously) ----- "My word! did it snow in your window?"

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

"Farewell to the ladies"—Ual Hanshew.

"We're going to be funny"—The Sandburr.

"I'll never flirt again"—Ardith Kull.

"I'll never make another pep speech"—John K.

"I'll give up tobacco in all its forms"—Ramp.

"I'll never give another true-false test" Prof. Baller.

"I'll not watch the chapel clock any more" Dean Bisset.

"We will never work again"----- Marathon Board.

"No more will I wave at the ladies fair" Donald Fisher.

"We'll be quiet in the halls"—Student Body.

"Never again, up to the front everybody" Neva.

"I'll pay some attention to my Zoology class"—Prof. Miller.

"I'll learn to like oysters"----- Harlie Allen.

"We'll sign the Peace Tract"—Latin-Education Studies.

"No more 'expert judges' "—The Debaters.

"I'll learn to bake pie" Homer's Wife.

"I will strive to obtain, for the edification of myself and the alleviation of the fatigue of all humanity, one small grain of sense each day"—Francis Harbert.

Donald Fisher (watching Alice Coffey write up a joke on him for the Marathon)—"Why! —that's just dumb!"

Alice Coffey—"Of course it is. That's why it goes in."

Harvey—to Kodak Editor who has called for snap shots of groups organized last year) "I have a picture of a group organized last year."

Ardith—"Fine! Who?"

Harvey—"Marietta and I,"

Don: "I'd like to know what's the matter with me I just drag around!"

Onita: "Well! me, too!"

Alice: "Same here! It must be the weather,"

Don: "Oh, but I've been dragging around that way for a year!"

Prof. Baller: "Ual, this is certainly a difficult problem. Maybe you could give us a few pointers."

Ual Hanshew: "I don't know as I have any Pointer for that subject."

It's interesting to note that in the recent May Queen election Don Fisher polled the entire male vote of the junior class,

BELIEVE IT OR NOT.

Once upon a time a student handed in some material for the Marathon, and it was accepted.

Then there was the time Prof. Morgan got “hard-boiled” and flunked half his Latin class.

ALIBIS FOR ALL.

It was visiting day at the insane asylum. One of the inmates imagined himself to be an artist, and he was busily engaged in dabbling at an empty canvas with a dry brush. A visitor, wishing to humor him, asked what the picture represented.

“That,” said the nut, “is a picture of the Israelites being pursued through the Red Sea.”

“Where is the sea?”

“Why, that's rolled back to allow the Israelites to pass.”

“Where are the Israelites?”

“They've just gone by.”

“Then where are their pursuers?”

“Oh, they'll be along in a minute.”
