Marathon

NINETEEN FORTY-SEVEN

I AM PHEIDIPPIDES ...

WHY PHEIDIPPIDES?

A BATTLE, a race, and a book. These are the Marathon. Our Marathon boasts as its ancestors the Greek victory on the plains of Marathon thousands of years ago, and the blue ribbon of all Olympic races, the Marathon run. After that first battle of Marathon, a young Greek soldier ran a distance of 22 miles to Athens with the news of victory, gasping as he died, "Rejoice, we conquer!" Your staff has been through a battle to get all the material which you will find on these pages. The race against time, meeting deadlines, was a constant and enduring one. But, last obstacles conquered, the staff rejoices as it places in your hands this record of activities of the year 1946-1947. Your guide will be none other than Pheidippides, the gallant Greek, who brought good news to the Athenians. He returns to the Marathon of another day, again as a bearer of good news, the news of a good college year. May you follow his now leisurely pace through these pages as he recreates for you scenes just past.

The long and hard-to-pronounce Pheidippides was soon shortened to "Flip" by the staff. On these pages, Flip introduces his assistants, the Marathon staff.

Business Manager Everett Thornton was charged with the task of financing the 1947 Marathon. Not only did he insure the success of the budget, but he flew the plane from which were taken the aerial shots that appear in the book.

Sales Manager Blaine Ronne was the selling genius who undertook to sell 300 copies of the Marathon. He and his receipt book were inseparable.

W. C. Mabon, Advertising Manager, sold more ads than had ever been contained in a Marathon, and found new ways to give advertisers more for their money.

In the midnight watches, when the staff met to get copy in shape for a deadline, Fred Vorce was busy with pencil and typewriter getting copy in shape for the printer. To Bill Johnson, cartoonist, goes credit for many of the ideas about Flip, our gallant hero.

Mrs. Mary Karraker was a valuable art editor in view of her background of photographic experience.

Pity the poor sports editor, Bob Gillespie, whose job it was to assemble sports statistics, schedules, and stories. No wonder the lad looks tired.

Ethel Brooks, organizations editor, was mainly responsible for putting together a fine Activities section. To Louis Rachow must go credit for a glamor-laden feature section, which you'll recognize under the title Ad-Lib.

Editor-in-chief and general co-ordinator of Marathon affairs was Lee Huebert. The haggard look was achieved without make-up.

Barbara Blauch, the invaluable assistant editor, wrote copy, reminded the editor of deadlines, and gathered volumes of ideas for the 1948 Marathon.

Jane Martin, staff representative for the juniors, compiled material about her class, and assisted with the directory.

Norma Jean Anderson wrote not only the story of the sophomore class but a division page and several organization stories as well.

Merl Riggs presented the freshman class, the largest in the history of the school.

Prof. William C. White, in his first year as an instructor, assumed the not insignificant task of advising a yearbook staff. His store of ideas and his sense of humor were indispensable at every staff meeting.

Although they were not members of the staff, there are others who deserve mention and praise for assistance rendered: Ruth Weston, who compiled the Directory; Gerald Edgar, Marie Harris, Robert Jaquiss, Doris Jean Canon, and Robert Dicus all of whom contributed facts and wrote copy. Picture credit must go to Marvin Garlock, Lynn Smith, and Robert Jaquiss.

A nod of thanks, too, to the Editor's wife, Edie, for supplying countless statistics, making innumerable phone calls, and for coffee and cokes at late staff meetings.

To these and other members of a patient student body, we express our thanks in the form of an enduring tribute, the 1947 Marathon.

and every morning of the week students can be seen climbing the steps to classes. Near the "ad" building, a continuous stream of students passes to and from the library in the course of a day. The college gym echoes with the sound of athletic groups preparing for games, or participating in them, with other schools or campus organizations. The church is also used for the presentation of all fine arts recitals. The city auditorium of York plays host to the athletic department during the basketball season and to the drama department throughout the year. By these means, York College provides student work shops for concentrated study, common sense relaxation and spiritual betterment.

In pursuit of knowledge, several hundred budding scholars each year settle down to books and classes under the tutelage of a faculty interested in developing students possessing both character and knowledge. From Christian homes, from city and farm, come those who would broaden their vision.

York College is a mecca for students with a common purpose—preparation for service. An expanded curriculum and recent additions to an already proved faculty keep York College abreast of better methods in training those who fashion the future. Proud of its past, and confident of the future, York welcomes and challenges foresighted young people.

Paying bills at the desk of Miss Helen Jo Polk, the treasurer, is a painless process. Most recent addition to the staff, Miss Polk comes from Illinois.

Mrs. Ruth Auchard is well prepared for her position as publicity secretary by virtue of having been associate editor of the 1946 Marathon.

Efficient and helpful, Miss Maybelle Taylor, librarian, doubles as sponsor of Zetas and the Panther Club. Perhaps few know her musical and literary propensities.

Girls at the "Con", the girls dormitory, look up to Miss Mary Miller, Hulitt Hall hostess. A recipient of the Mary Mutch Cain award, Miss Miller is a qualified counselor.

The intent look is typical of Dr. W. C. Noll. It is traditional that none of his "Zoo" students have ever failed in their medical studies after leaving York.

Teaching in the Commercial Arts Department, Prof. R. E. Townsend is a veteran of more than twenty years tenure. He is an honorary member of the Y Club.

Prof. J. C. Morgan, specializing in classical languages, sponsors the O. B. N., and Lifework Recruits. His "They Tramped These Halls" is a Sandburr feature.

A former county superintendent, Prof. Myron C. Holm, brings practical experience to the staff of the Education Department. His hobby: color photography.

Many a student's appreciation of English literature has been developed while a member of a class conducted by Miss Edith M. Callender, who heads the English Department. As a member of the Publications Board, Miss Callender encourages creative writing.

Miss Irene Shipley is in her third year as an instructor in Speech and Dramatic Art. She is a co-sponsor of the Y. W. C. A., in addition to having sponsored the Junior Class during the three years of its existence.

How Miss Jean Mattingly, instructor in the English department, can remain poised and smiling while teaching four sections of Freshman English is a current mystery. A part of her leisure time finds her active in Women's Club work.

Prof. William C. White is another of the alumni to return in recent years. His uncanny skill in play production has been a shot in the arm to dramatic art. Mr. White is the faculty adviser on the staff of the Marathon.

Dr. Charles Bissett holds forth in the fields of History and Social Science. Quick to see the point of a joke, and as ready to tell one, he brightens his lectures with pertinent illustrations.

Besides teaching classes in German, French, and Spanish, Miss Zelda M. Wakelin finds time to sponsor the Senior Class of 1947. She is co-sponsor of the W. A. A.

Prof. Floyd Taylor explains an equation to a class in higher mathematics. A three-sport athlete, he understudies Coach Tonkin by taking charge of the Panther Cubs.

Each year brings new laurels to Dean Chas. H. Amadon, of the Music Department. Never slackening his pace, he continues year after year to direct the "Messiah", operas, and student vocal groups with marked success.

Blessed with a delightful Scotch sense of humor, Miss Eda Rankin presides with equal grace at the piano or the organ. Music majors find her class in harmony most intriguing.

Of ready wit, Dr. Earl I. Doty enlivens Monday chapels and his classes with profound and lucid observations. His pet project is perhaps the International Relations Club.

Noted for her infinite patience with beginning students, Miss Gladys Pearson teaches piano methods to young and old. Her graduate work includes a summer's study in Denmark.

Mogul of the sports realm, Coach R. E. Tonkin is the guiding genius behind the athletic destinies of the Panthers. To the dismay of G. I.'s, "Tonk" can lead a mean set of calisthenics.

In addition to instructing women's Physical Education classes, Mrs. O. L. Donohoe makes a home for three daughters and her husband who coaches high school athletics.

Prof. Al Zerwekh brings to the Chemistry department the double benefits of youth and experience. Mr. Zerwekh was advertising manager of the 1942 Marathon. Current interests include Mickey and Billy, the two little Zerwekhs.

Prof. Bruce Herrick returns to the campus to inaugurate a new course, Lyric Religion. Special interests: Music, music, and more music.

To his interested classes in Psychology, Prof. W. J. Karraker brings a keen, deliberative mind and a softspoken drawl, with just a bit of Kentucky about it. Versatile, in talents as in hobbies, Mr. Karraker is an ardent Nimrod.

A new department is that headed by Mrs. J. W. Hartsaw, who teaches Art. Mrs. Hartsaw was formerly a member of the faculty of Indiana Central.

The faculty at York College is a friendly and scholarly group. At least seven members are currently working toward Masters' and Doctors' degrees, while others take time out for refresher courses.

Socially the members of the teaching staff are much in demand. Nearby high schools, churches, clubs, and civic organizations request their talents as speakers, entertaining or informative and inspirational. The music faculty serves in various churches. York's faculty also sponsors several social functions during the college year. The faculty reception for students and the faculty Christmas party are among the outstanding events on the calendar.

Climaxing four years of varied social and academic activities, the many-talented class of 1947 took its bows on June 4 when its members received their coveted parchments. Max Allen, Washta, Iowa, a pre-ministerial student, is one of the six original seniors who started in 1943. Nadine Allen, Delaware, Oklahoma, entered York in her junior year. She is famous in the dining hall for her coffee cake. Beth Anderson, Arlington, Colorado, "short but sweet", also entered York in her junior year. She expects to carry out her teaching career in Alaska. Lois Anderson, Billings, Montana, is another one of the seniors starting in 1943. She is a member of the Marathon staff. J. Hill Anglin, Amistad, New Mexico, is a dignified pre-med student.

Richard Foulk, Adrian, Michigan, is one of eight seniors who entered college in 1940 but took time out for military service in Europe. Statistically speaking, this class began in 1940, for eight of the 27 graduates started then, as compared to the six who entered in 1943. Four years ago, the wearers of the too obvious green were put through the rigors of Freshman Court, from scrubbing the Library steps with a toothbrush to jet-propelled leaps aided by a strongly wielded paddle. Drastically impaired physical health (?) resulted in the youngsters' losing in the freshman-upper-class contests. Recuperating as best they could, the initiates struggled through the remainder of the year, losing three of their nine men to the armed forces.

Howard DeBoer, York, better known as "Housie", is the Senior Class president. The presidency of the Y Club, also, has not curtailed his interest in the Junior Class. William Feemster, York, alias "Bud", is the big, silent type. Radios and hunting consume his hobby time. Burl Graff, Shelby, and Earl Graff, York, have capitalized on confused identities on the football field. Don Haberman, York, was captain of the football team this year. "Hans" was also active in basketball. Kenneth Hicks, York, was president of the Senior Class the first semester. Kenny, a preministerial student, obtained a degree in Chicken Pox this spring. Lora Holbrook, Orchard, is one of the proud occupants of the pre-fabricated units.

The sophomore year found fifteen cheery classmates, five of them new to the campus, beginning the school year with vim, vigor, and a vengeance—to be taken out on the new crop of freshmen. Originality shone forth in the Sophomore Supper Club Reception, complete with quizzes and doughnuts. Once more the class had carried on in spite of its small number. Arbor Day dawned bright and sunny, adding energy to the eager group of young sophisticates about to swing a shovel. A scrawny stick called a Shaggy Bark Hickory was the piece de resistance. Hopes rose with each shovel of dirt as the tree was planted, but the frail sprout passed into history along with the sophomore year. The students of this class represented only four states as opposed to the six states represented in the class the previous year. Five of the six men in this class were pre-ministerial students serving pastorates about York or working on gospel teams.

Lee Huebert, York, is a pre-ministerial student who believes in rearing his own congregation. His four children are adding the finishing touches to a liberal arts education. Arlene Johnson Kaeding, Republic, Kansas, began her college education in 1940 and took time to gain teaching experience during the war years. She and her husband, Jim, are graduating together. Jim Kaeding, York, is our top basketball man. He is the highest scoring man in the conference. Wayne Kaeding, York, is another Panther star with top honors in basketball. "Jake" and "Wink", as they are affectionately called, expect to make coaching their careers. H. J. W. Koester, York, did not wait for a college degree. His work in Social Service is highly commendable. Walter G. Millet, Strang, is another pre-ministerial student who joined the class in his sophomore year. Millet has served a pastorate in Strang during his three years in York College. Blaine Ronne, York, has taken over numerous Sandburr and sports duties. He has been student manager of athletics and business manager of the Sandburr. He is sales manager of this Marathon. Alden B. Sears, Waco, is quite proud of his brood, and of his fluency in Spanish. He has served as a home missionary to the Spanish-speaking people of New Mexico for several years.

September, 1945, looked dreary for there were only eleven juniors to carry on. Toward the end of the first semester the outlook improved with the prospect of returning veterans. The second semester the class swung into its activities with nineteen members, five of whom were ex-servicemen. For the first time in its existence, the class of '47 had more men than women, two to one. With this added incentive the program for Senior Recognition Day was arranged and presented. The Junior-Senior Banquet, "Flower Follies of '46", portrayed Coach Tonkin to be a flower—a "poppy".

In 1946 the "Marathon" reappeared after an absence of four years. The Junior-Senior Classes co-sponsored the book.

Reva Tomlinson, Washta, Iowa, was elected business manager. In the spring another member of the class was elected to a distinguished honor. Margaret Webb, Omaha, was elected May Queen.

A. SEARS

Marjorie Thornton, Billings, Montana, has been a top-ranking student throughout her four years here. She has given one piano recital and has been accompanist for the college chorus and for Dean Charles Amadon. J. W. Tomlinson, Enid, Oklahoma, a pre-ministerial student, also, has served a pastorate during most of his college life. Reva Tomlinson, Washta, Iowa, secured her MRS degree early and now has her JR. Upon graduation she will receive her AB. Wanda Wantz, Shelby, was known in her freshman daze as "Old Faithful" due to her sure spout of laughter. Margaret Webb, Omaha, is the last of the five to go through college in the last four years. "Margie" has an ambition to fly a plane, or next best, to be an air stewardess.

September, 1946, looked like an entirely new era—the campus was swarming with people. The senior class drew twenty-seven members, ten of them veterans. Again the men outnumbered the women with 19 men to eight women. Only six of the members are charter members who started in 1943. Eight of the men were freshmen together in 1940, interrupting their college education for military service, and now are returning to be graduated together.

With ease and dignity the seniors fulfilled obligations such as entertaining the juniors at a Valentine party. Arlene Kaeding was elected Panther Sweetheart and was presented along with Wayne Kaeding, Representative Football Man, at the fall football banquet. Representative Man and Woman were each elected from the Senior Class. Marjorie Thornton, Trying on her cap and gown for Senior Recognition Day is Lois Anderson. Miss Wakelin, Margaret Webb, and Richard Foulk watch and wait their turns.

Billings, Montana, and Lee Huebert, York, were the honored students elected by their classmates and fellow students. Marjorie Thornton was also president of the Student Council, and recipient of the Mary Mutch Cain award which was presented at Senior Recognition. Lee Huebert, editor of the Marathon, was also photographer for many of the pictures used in college publications of this year. A music major, he presented a voice recital accompanied by Marjorie Thornton.

The seniors are grateful to York College for the guiding principles and spiritual influence it has laid upon the graduating students. As a parting gift, the class chose a water cooler drinking fountain to replace the hot water fountain now in use. It is hoped that this gift will not cool the ambitions of future graduates.

Juniors

The Junior Class of 1946-47 appeared on the York College campus in the war days of September, 1944, with more than 40 students. Because of the patriotism of young men at that time, the class was made up predominately of girls.

As eager, but traditionally green, freshmen, they went their merry ways oblivious of the future ahead of them. This class, as all classes, went through the "Trial by ordeal". The first few weeks found them wearing and doffing quaint blue caps at the correct times and standing without the aid of the many convenient college "leaning spots".

Miss Irene Shipley, also a "freshman" as a York college instructor, was elected as the sponsor of the class. She helped the freshmen to plan their first social event which was a party given in honor of the upperclassmen. This party was the result of the defeat of the freshmen at the annual freshman-upperclassmen contests.

"County Fair", as theme of the Annual Sophomore Reception, highlighted the sophomore year.

A cross-section of typical fair entertainment was presented. The return of many veterans during the second semester increased the male enrollment and bolstered the women's morale.

As juniors, the class has assumed some dignity and more men than women. The salient feature of the junior year was the banquet presented by the juniors in honor of the seniors. The juniors also honored the seniors at a formal recognition service.

There are 15 "charter" members of the Junior Class which now numbers 42. Mary Anderson, a cowgirl from Colorado, is majoring in history, struggling through Spanish, and hoping to teach in Alaska. Marie Harris, is interested in drama and newswriting, having served as editor-in-chief of the Sandburr for the past two years. Another student interested in drama is Hope Howland, a drama major. Hope presented her junior recital and has worked on the various major productions of the season. Jasmine Ingraham is zoology laboratory assistant. She plans to enter the medical profession. Likeable Jane Martin presents a paradox in her scholastic interests which are chemistry and music. Jane is also active in many campus organizations. Bob Moomey, a social science major, is interested in music. He spends much of his time at the annex. Louis Rachow is interested in newswriting. He is dependable, literally knocking himself out to get his work done. He is an ardent 4-H worker. One of the Junior Class star athletes is versatile Don (Sleepy) Robson. Don has lettered in football, basketball, and track. Don plans to coach at a high school after he graduates. Rudy Rojahn is the only "charter" member of the Junior Class who is a veteran, having served a "hitch" in the Navy. Rudy is preparing for the ministry. He and his wife, LoRayne, are living in one of the veteran housing units on the campus. Smiling Ruth "Sanch" Sanchez, whose main interest is Barela, is majoring in sociology. Joan Schark is preparing to teach in the grades. All signs point to the fact that she may be married before she has occasion to utilize her educational skills. Another drama major is Betty Jean Schoonover. "Schooch" has taken part in many dramatic productions. She is a teacher in the York Nursery School. Drama and music are the central interests of Iona Shaw. Iona is secretary to the Rev. Virgil Hague. George Swartz is a chem major. He is a member of various student organizations. Jim Townsend is another chemistry major and a member of Y Club. Jim is the son of Professor Townsend, head of the commercial department. Jim's hobby is gun-bluing.

There are 12 veterans in the Junior Class. Denny Auchard served in the U. S. Merchant Marine Cadet Corps. Denny has letters in basketball, football, and track. Even the youngest "Bobby-soxers" whistle when Denny goes by. Cleo Campbell is another veteran who is an outstanding athlete. "Tank" served in the Navy. He has lettered in all three major sports and leads the Y Club with points under the new award system installed this year. Basketball referees termed him the "Profane look". Another basketball player who served in the Navy is James Conway, president of the Junior Class. A Ford station wagon is his latest interest. "Tex" says, "More room—more women!" Calvin Crouse served in the U. S. Army. Abraham "Big Abe" Dick was noted for 6' 7" of height on the basketball floor. He is a veteran of the Army having served 42 months with three different units. Gerald Edgar served in the Army Air Corps. Gerald is a journalism major and plans to enter the literary field. His predominant interest is Irene. After service with the infantry, Marvin Garlock returned to York College as student publicity photographer. Another ex-Navy man is Bob Gillespie, better known as "Gypsy". He is a member of the basketball squad, and is considered the nightingale of the bus on all trips. Marvin Herrick served in the U. S. Army Medical Corps. Herrick is taking pre-ministerial training and he and his wife are "house parents" to a family of nine college men. He also has two children of his own. Another infantryman is Clarence Mabon, an English major. Photography is Clarence's hobby, and he is employed in a studio in York. Leland Miller served in the Navy. He plans to enter the ministry. His favorite flower is Jasmine. He spends most of his spare time in the "Con" kitchen as a student chef. An ex-Army flier, Everett Thornton's favorite pastime is flying over York in a small airplane. Everett is a history major and is business manager of this year's Marathon. Richard Van Pelt served in the Army Air Forces, and devotes most of his time to studies and his family. He is a history major, also. Elinor Barkman is a second semester junior. She intends to work in the foreign mission field. As hostess of the Annex, Ethel Brooks has quite a responsibility. She was president of the class the first semester.

A sociology major, Katherine Cox, worked in the college office. Unfortunately, "Kate" was unable to finish her junior year due to an automobile accident. Eunice Goodrich entered the class this year. Her major interest is music. Another drama student is Carmen W. Haberman, who was one of the stars of "Junior Miss". Carmen is majoring in English. J. W. Hartsaw is a ministerial student. He is pastor of a church at Ord. Elaine Hicks has two full-time jobs; attending college and being a housewife.

One of the many fellows batching this year is Harvey Holbrook. "Holy" suffered a knee injury during football season and his athletic career was halted for this year. Joyce Holst is another of the double-duty women of the campus. She divides her time between classes and taking care of the "pre-fab" in which she and her ex-G. I. husband live. A charter member of Alpha Psi Omega, Edith Huebert is active in the drama department. "Edie" has the position of Guardian Angel to the editor of the Marathon. Mary Karraker served as Marathon Art Advisor. Mrs. Karraker is an English major. Another new junior is Lucille Keefe, who entered second semester. Clifford Morgan is a language major. He is son of Prof. J. C. Morgan of the religion and classical languages department. Vivian Olson is an education major. She is entering foreign missionary service in Africa this summer. Homecoming Queen, Jean Rasp is another drama major. Jean has worked on several major productions. Her problem now is educating a freshman. Lois Shaneyfelt is majoring in political science. "Shaney" is an active member of W. A. A., and is secretary of the Pantherettes. Her favorite pastime is playing basketball.

A most versatile group were the members of the class of 1949, as in the fall of 1945 they made their appearance in the office of the Registrar. By no means a large class, the talents of the tyros were quite obvious and were recognized by faculty as well as by other students. This may account for their "striking" reception in Freshman Court. Reuben Ruybalid and Bette Daniels were court favorites.

Upperclassman glee was doomed to fade when the valiant Frosh determined to get rid of their loathesome caps by being the first newcomers in a decade to defeat the upperclassmen in the traditional brawl.

Wanda Miller was elected to be first president of the freshman class of '45, later receiving the honor of being chosen by the football team to be their "Panther Sweetheart".

The present Sophomore Class, in its freshman year, was the first class to enter Y. C. after the war. Therefore, it was enlivened by the presence of 25 veterans, most of whom did not arrive until the second semester. These men represented all branches of the armed forces, and served in every theater of war. They were joyfully received by the faculty and by the delighted female students whose company had been limited for the duration to other female students.

The aggregation of ex-servicemen was responsible for the fact that there were 12 more men than women in the sophomore class.

Those students on the campus whose third finger, left hand, was already occupied, were 57 in number. Of these, 14 were sophomores.

This married status did not, however, hamper their participating in school events and extracurricular activities. Aloys Holst and Bob Dicus, between marital duties, found time to head their class for the first and second semester respectively.

Three of the six married gridiron stalwarts who lettered this year were Sophomores Bob Dicus, Abe Dick, and Gerald Witham.

Mrs. Hartsaw's art class uses a natural setting for a subject.

Students relax in the friendly atmosphere of the campus in early autumn.

With the theme of "Fairyland Fantasies", members of the Sophomore Class plunged with unprecedented enthusiasm into the traditional Sophomore Reception, held in January. This original flight of whimsy was written and directed by Robert Dicus.

The plot of this bizarre concerned the efforts of King Mirth (Dick Riggs), of Fairyland, and his court, in an attempt to convince the students that there really are fairies. They proceeded by taking the one "believer" on the campus (Norma Jean Anderson) on a personal tour of Fairyland. As proof of this trip, the "believer" returned to York College proudly exhibiting a lovely pair of wings to show her skeptical fellow-students. During the fairies' banquet, refreshments were served in a unique way as part of the program.

Leaving no stone unturned, the sophomores completed the year with the Arbor Day celebration. In the traditional manner, each sophomore shoveled one spadeful of dirt about the roots of the tree. The ceremony was conducted under the supervision of the class sponsor, Dr. Charles E. Bisset.

The following resume reviews the athletic prowess and student spirit embodied in the Sophomore Class.

Thirteen of the sophomore girls were members of the Pantherettes. Three of the five cheer-leaders whose agile renditions of the college yells were much appreciated by the cheering sections were sophomores Norma Jean Anderson, Wanda Miller and Milton Snow.

Sophomore stalwarts on the football squads were: Ramos Barela, Dick Deon, Bob Dicus, Duane Larkins, Cliff Rhodes, Gerald Witham, Clarence Yates and Abe Dick.

Wanda Miller answers the "Con" telephone. "It's a date!"

Ruth Sanchez preps for a date as Lois Shaneyfelt (left) and Willa Roberts look on, and make comments such as dormitory girls are capable of making.

Cheerleaders Anderson, Eason, Webb, Snow, and Miller demonstrate the zest that made them the best among many.

Although the sophomores were active in sports affairs of York College, they did not neglect the cultural and artistic opportunities offered them. In their initial year, the Freshman Trio was organized under the tutorship of Dean Charles Amadon. It was composed of Barbara Blauch, Wanda Miller, and Mary Donna McCullough. This year the group was continued as the Sophomore Trio, with Mary Alice Riggs replacing Miss McCullough who did not return to the York campus until the second semester. The activities of this popular group varied from radio broadcasts to many personal appearances.

In the opera, two of the leads were handled by sophomores. Barbara Blauch as the "Bohemian Girl" and Dick Riggs as Florestein carried sophomore prestige in this production. The class of '49 boasts a large clan of musically minded students in the Riggs cousins. Mary Alice and Dick are both active in small musical groups, as is Merl, a second semester sophomore, the latter two forming half of the Melody Men quartet.

Three of the "Little Women" in the play by that name were characterized by sophomores. Doris Jean Canon as Vivacious Jo, Ruth Weston as lovable Meg, and Barbara Blauch, as pathetic little Beth, were the sophomores who participated in the successful adaptation of Louisa May Alcott's famous novel.

Perhaps Judy Graves of "Junior Miss" was forced to take orders from her father, and was shouted at by her father's employer, but not so in real life, for all three were members of this class. Norma Jean Anderson in the title role and Merwyn Kurtz in the part of J. B. Curtis, were abetted by Mr. Graves, played by Fred Vorce, who joined sophomore ranks with the start of the second semester. Backstage work too was expedited by the talents of other sophomores. Without a doubt, the sophomores were a busy class.

Early September, 1946, beheld the arrival of members of the largest Freshman Class in the history of York College. The wearers of freshman green, 52% of the total enrollment, immediately adapted themselves to college life. Males outnumbered the fair sex 76-30, but perhaps the latter were none-the-less influential. The 115 "Freshies" boasted 42 veterans and 15 who have taken marital vows.

The traditional Homecoming Day contests between upperclassmen and freshmen wound up in a victory for the former. Although blessed with the advantage of numbers, the tyros couldn't pull out a victory. Bob Schneider, Dick Dean, and Opal Anderson were the big guns for the freshmen, while C. (Tank) Campbell, Margie Webb, and Elsie Walker paced the "brain trusts" Had the frosh been able to take the final event, the girls' basketball game, they would have been entertained at a party by the upperclassmen. In the tradition of good sportsmanship, however, the yearlings were entertainers treating the upperclassmen to an all-freshman program.

Freshmen

Campus custom decrees that during freshman court weeks, certain very definite rules apply to freshman behavior. These rules, which may appear ridiculous to the greenies, are eagerly and strictly enforced by the upperclassmen. Few infractions are overlooked, and rare indeed is the freshman found not guilty.

Tradition dictates that blue freshman caps must be worn on the campus, but removed upon entering any building. First year men may not appear without wearing neckties. Make-up is a Monday morning taboo for freshman girls. The poor, tired freshman is not even allowed to sit or lean on steps, railings, walls, or ledges about the grounds. To show proper respect for their older fellow-students, freshmen remain seated after Monday morning chapels until all upperclassmen have made their exit from the room. All violations of these rules are carefully noted and reported.

A familiar sight on the main street of this college town is the hapless freshman carrying out the sentence of the court. Shoppers are amused and amazed at the spectacle of collegians playing hop-scotch and fishing out of buckets. Others receive free pages torn from well-known mail-order catalogues.

On the campus, such characters as Abe Lincoln, Daisy Mae, Li'l Abner, and Bathless Groggins did penance for their misdeeds. Sanitation minded yearlings scrubbed the Library steps with a tooth-brush. Those interested in statistics, by order of the court, counted the number of trees on the campus or tallied the number of bricks in the sidewalk before the Ad building. All in fun, some students made impromptu speeches, others sang. Some made available free shines to upperclassmen; and some, ah, woe, some assumed the angle and felt the warm glow that comes from repeated contact between posterior and paddle. But, court weeks at an end, the neophytes were completely assimilated, looking back on freshman court as something to pass on to the next crop of youngsters.

The class of 1950, largest in Y. C. history, provided proper fodder for the fall judicial exercises of the freshman court. Chief Justice Howsie DeBoer and his stooges outdid themselves in persecuting the prosecuted freshmen.

A number of freshmen promptly won campus prominence. Space permits mention of a few. Ralph Amen, Paul Clark, and Dick Miller were Student Council representatives. Jeanne Anderson and Gene Miller were elected to the Panther Club. Opal Anderson, Bernice Dvorak, and Mary Jackson served as members of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet. Mark Fahring showed administrative talent, presiding over the Y. M. C. A., and serving as O. B. N. vice-president. Robert Anderson, Fred Koontz, and Lester Hazen appeared in dramatic performances, while Barbara Dick and Hoover Fisher sang lead roles in "Bohemian Girl". Dick Frazier won acclaim through the golden notes of his trombone. Rachel Langenberg was one of Dean Amadon's selections for the chapel choir. Dick Bason and Milton Snow were two-fifths of the team of cheer-leaders. The latter teamed with two other freshmen, Merl Riggs and Bill Johnson, and a junior to form the Melody Men quartet. Harold "Fingers" Holton accompanied the foursome. Kendall Martin achieved a dubious fame as freshman court judge. Carolyn Meeker led the Pantherettes. On the Marathon staff were Riggs and Johnson. Both Bob Jaquiss and Fred Vorce contributed pictures, besides turning out needed copy.

Members of the Freshman Class came near stealing the show during the football season. Of three starters, two—Mark Fahring and Bok DeBoer—gained conference honors. Allen Christiansen was the other starter. Other letter winners in the fall sport were Wayne Farrer, Bill Johnson, Jim Nordstrom, Fred Vorce, Bok Schneider, and Dick Dean. Although he was with the B squad at the start of the season, Gordon Wiebe made a name for himself by scoring a touchdown in his first college game. DeBoer and Schneider were members of the first string during the basketball season.

Of the more than 90 veterans enrolled, 42 were members of the freshman class. Of these 42, the Army and Navy drew equal numbers, with only two going to the Marines. Under the G. I. Bill of Rights, these men took their educations seriously. Not so seriously, however, as to preclude their taking part in wholesome and representative campus activities. For many, government aid was the god-send that permitted them to complete war-interrupted educations.

Highlighting freshman activities was the annual Jolly-up held at the college gym. This was, you might say, a get-acquainted session and the beginning of the open season on freshmen.

The frolic was sponsored by the Rosenblat company, makers of canned three-decker, non-skid sandwiches. Three lovely sophomores, in costumes of another day, sang commercials extolling the merits of the sponsor's product.

A mock Truth or Consequences game followed and by no coincidence, the initiates found the consequences less satisfying than they found the truth. A featured guest was Kate Smith in the person of Dick Riggs, who parodied the ever popular "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain", or "I'll See You in Freshman Court". Bob (Gilpepsie) Gillespie acted as master of ceremonies, doing a creditable job.

In the evening's finale, everyone sang the college song, which all freshmen are required to know. Those who forgot were given opportunity, in the weeks that followed, to learn words and lyrics.

Twelve states and one foreign country were represented in the Freshman Class. Freshmen hailed from Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon, California, Arizona, Colorado, and Wyoming. This year's group, too, was cosmopolitan, for one member of the class came from China, helping to make this class the largest in York history.

A CTIVITY

Between classes and study periods, Y. C. students find time to participate in numerous extracurricular activities. Musical, dramatic, and social groups afford opportunity for exercising known abilities besides revealing new talent. Each of the many campus associations has a full and varied schedule for the school year. Regular meetings, initiation ceremonies, banquets, picnics, and receptions are among the events which are planned and attended by members and guests. Rare indeed is the student who does not make this a large part of his college education.

Student Council

England has its Parliament, Congress its Supreme Court, Nebraska its unicameral, and York College its Student Council! This worthy organization was founded in 1928 when students accepted the privilege of making their laws and governing themselves. Composed of representatives from each class and campus organization, the student council is dedicated to the maintenance of high standards and the strengthening of friendly and cooperative relations between the faculty and student body. By means of a point system the Student Council controls the number of offices held by any student.

Acting as the voice of a unified student body, the Student Council, headed by Marjorie Thornton, Billings, Montana, has served as a democratic clearing house for school activities and student problems.

Each new student at Y. C. is given a handbook compiled by the Student Council, containing its constitution, the freshmen rules, and the general standards accepted for the campus government. It is the duty of the Council to see that these laws are enforced.

The Student Council participates actively each fall in the Freshman Initiation. Here the Council is responsible for making and enforcing the rules, and for judging any case which is carried above Freshman Court.

Press Guild

In keeping with the tradition of publishing on an unbiased basis all campus news, the Sandburr has become a symbol of the ideas and life of a revered institution. The "Burr", published bi-monthly, first hit the presses in 1900. Since that time, its circulation has grown to almost 2,000. As a source of information and campus news, it reaches alumni, students, ministers, and friends.

Any student who writes forty inches of acceptable copy per semester, and masters the text book, is eligible for membership in the Press Guild.

A silver YC pin with a super-imposed quill is given to members who have completed one semester of newswriting. Similar gold emblems are awarded each year to students doing outstanding work in the field of journalism.

The guild holds monthly meetings at which time reports are given on new phases of journalism, business discussed, and food consumed. Food! Hmmm! A waffle supper held annually for several years has become a tradition. The staff has always striven for high standards of accuracy, dependability, initiative, and good journalistic style.

Miss Edith Callender is the faculty sponsor, and is also faculty advisor to the Sandburr staff. Marie Harris, the editor-in-chief, acts as president of the guild. Other officers of the organization for the semester are: Gerald Edgar, vice-president; Gaylon Baker, secretary; and Fred Vorce, treasurer.

Active Sandburr Staff members are: G. Edgar, L. Huebert, B. Blanch, M. Harris, N. J. Anderson, F. Vorce, L. Rachow, G. Baker, E. Huebert, W. C. White, J. W. Hartsaw, B. Ronne, Prof. E. Callender.

Y. M. C. A.

One of the most activity-minded organizations on the campus, the Y. M. C. A., started and grew with the college. From the early time, when the college advertised that a committee from the Y. M. or the Y. W. would meet new students at the depot and escort them safely to the college, through the fifty-seven intervening years to the present day, this small part of the world-wide organization has had but one overall purpose—to promote Christian spirit on the campus. This is done by helping each man to lead an earnest Christian life. The present active membership of about fifty men, including about thirty former servicemen, is an all-time high for this men's organization. Highlights of the year included sending, with the Y. W. C. A., a joint representative, Jane Martin, Concordia, Kansas, to the National Conference at Urbana, Illinois; sponsoring skating in the gymnasium on Saturday nights; presenting the traditional Jolly-Ups once a semester; and securing Gabriel Nahas, a former member of the French underground, as a speaker in support of the World Student Service Fund.

Y. W. C. A.

President Jasmine Ingraham pins a corsage on Mary Alice Riggs at the impressive candlelight initiation ceremony.

The unique factor about the Y. W. C. A. is that it is an international organization in which the women of York College can feel themselves a part of a great body of college women all over the world. Y. W. C. A.'s everywhere have as their purpose the desire to help young women grow spiritually, mentally, and socially. With this purpose in mind, programs are planned for weekly Tuesday morning meetings.

In the fall, the Y. W.'s first plan is to welcome the new students. Aside from the personal contacts with them, the Y. W. sponsors a formal tea for the women. Co-operating with the Y. M., they sponsor a Jolly-up at the beginning of each semester and climax their year by the celebration of May Day.

The installation of new officers was held this year in the college church as a candlelight ceremony. With a background of organ music, Jasmine Ingraham, outgoing president, presented each of the new cabinet members with a corsage.

Life Work Recruits

Taking an active part in spreading the gospel and teachings of Christ, is the group known as the Life Work Recruits. Their Monday evening meetings in the Conservatory Reception Room are but the smallest indication of their worth and activity. Each year, the Recruits sponsor Gospel teams which visit churches in the surrounding territory and lead in services of worship. These trips offer the students valuable experience and are helpful contacts between the churches and their college.

Another project promoted annually by the Recruits is that of helping to send an American student representative to the denominational mission field in Sierra Leone, West Africa. The African Project is a means of making students better acquainted with the needs and the aims of missionary enterprises.

O. B. N.

Rev. A. C. Core exhibits a letter from the Bishop to two interested O. B. N. members, Ralph Amen and Leland Miller.

The Otterbein-Boehm-Newcomer Fellowship was organized on March 19, 1945, to meet the need for the united strength and mutual edification of a pre-ministerial group. The purpose of this society, as stated in the constitution, is to further the "mutual growth and fellowship spiritually, culturally, and socially of those who are pre-theological students at York College". It has well served that purpose.

Almost every meeting has contained periods of devotion, testimony, and prayer. Guest speakers made frequent appearances. Such topics as prayer, preaching, missions, and the seminary were dealt with in discussion periods. The number on the roll of the O. B. N. has grown from nine to more than four times that number. During the current year, the O. B. N. conducted prayer meetings, a Sunday evening service at the College church, and a Life Work Recruits meeting. Wives and girl friends were invited to a supper hour get-together at the Dining Hall. Except for their calling, O. B. N. members are indistinguishable from other college men.

The chorus which sang the opera Bohemian Girl at the city auditorium on May 1.

Chorus

With its ranks invaluabley replenished by the return of ex-servicemen to the campus the chorus has realized a very successful year. The first big appearance came during the holiday season when the choristers presented Handel's Messiah. The choir loft at the college church was overflowing with chorus, soloists, and guest singers, while the capacity of the building was taxed to the utmost to seat the audience.

The fact that the group met during the first period in the morning worked a hardship on some of the members; however, with the capable assistance of accompanist, Marjorie Thornton, the group managed to make the walls of Ye Olde Administration building shake with harmonious crescendoes.

Band

Although the band started with a man and a baton, it now includes a substantial number of instrumentalists whose musical aim in life is to lend pep to the rallies and games. Parades honoring special events featured this group. They also traveled en masse with the migration to the crucial York-Hastings basketball game. Carolyn Meeker, as student director, has assisted Mr. White in making the braid trimmed hats and the satin capes of the Y. C. band again a part of the campus scene.

Pep Band trumpeteers strut their stuff on the "ad" building steps.

Music

At 8:15 o'clock on May 1 the curtain rose on the most ambitious presentation of this year's chorus. The dramatic story of The Bohemian Girl by Balfe, was unfolded by large choruses of gypsies and soldiers. Dean Amadon was aided by Mr. White, who directed the libretto and Mr. Herrick, who assisted with the chorus and orchestra.

The Bohemian Girl has the familiar opera plot of intrigue and romance. It concerns the kidnapping of the daughter of an Austrian count by a band of gypsies. The handsome hero is this time a Polish exile who has joined the gypsies and married the "shero". When the count, years later discovers his daughter, he identifies her and immediately loses his temper musically. But by the fourth act curtain, all has returned to almost normal, with the right people married to the right people, and the villain eliminated from the finale. Fortunately, too, because by now the opera is over.

The chorus worked faithfully over bulky scores, and principals met for post-dinner tete-a-tetes in order to perfect solos. The production was picturesque, and well performed. The flats were skillfully painted by the art department, and set up on the stage of the city auditorium. Against this background of romantic castles and a mysterious forest, the Y. C. chorus presented its first opera in five years.

Below: Fred Vorce, Barbara Dick, Lee Huebert, and Dick Riggs who sang the other principal roles in The Bohemian Girl.

Small groups and soloists are largely responsible for spreading the fame of our music department. A broadcast from station WOW in Omaha included the girls' trio and the Melody Men. The announcer for the broadcast was Lyle DeMoss, a former student, who is program manager for that station.

A second broadcast found the chapel choir, the girls' trio, and Barbara Dick as soloist in Hastings. Their station KHAS aired a half hour program of sacred music.

Lincoln was the place, and KFAB was the station from which Hoover Fisher and the girls' trio broadcast, to complete the trilogy of shows.

Lee Huebert, baritone, presented his senior recital in the spring of this year.

Mary Alice Riggs, Barbara Blauch, and Wanda Miller, members of the girls' trio, harmonize to the accompaniment by Lois Anderson.

Seated before the Chapel Choir are Miss Eda Rankin, pianist, and Dean Charles Amadon.

Chapel Choir

I. R. C.

Personnel of the Chapel Choir numbered 16 this year. One of the highlights of its season came when the ensemble presented a special Christmas program which had been arranged by the late Mrs. W. E. Bachman. Antiphonal Christmas music was introduced in formal chapels during the holiday season. A trip in observation of College Day gave the choir opportunity to give a program of special music in the E. U. B. church in Hastings.

The aspiring Oliver Wendell Holmes or Charles Evans Hughes finds that the International Relations Club serves as good basic training for the future. Anyone with a sincere interest in International affairs may join, but the membership is kept exclusive and therefore the less unwieldy. As a member of a national organization, the local group is supplied a growing library of current political science books.

Drama

Doris Jean Canon applies make-up to Clarence Mabon for his role in "Little Women".

The "Marches": Seated: Hope Howland, Rowena Fahring, Max Allen. Standing: Barbara Blauch, Doris Jean Canon, Ruth Weston, Jean Rasp.

The top picture is a scene from "Junior Miss," a three-act comedy. Below: A dramatic scene from the one-act drama "High Window".

Campus theatre came into its own once again this fall with the return of more men to the campus. The first production was a period play which was a dramatization of the familiar Little Women. It was produced in November and was the first play ever presented on the vast stage of the city auditorium. The setting was unique because it was composed of valuable antiques loaned by local theatre patrons. Beautiful and authentic costumes of the Civil War era helped to pace this production to a success.

In February a stage and screen hit, Junior Miss, was presented. It was the first time in the history of the department that students had designed the setting and the costumes. The pent-house staging demanded by the story was a challenge to the designing department.

This spring a psychological drama, The Lady Who Came to Stay, was produced. Dramatic lighting effects made this Victorian setting impressive. Backstage crews in this play proved that wise use of staging and coordination make for successful dramaturgy.

The experimental theatre furnished an interesting respite from the common conception of today's theatre. Unusual one-act plays were chosen because of their extraordinary plots or staging, and student directors took charge of these productions.

Alpha Psi Omega

One of the few Greek letter societies on the campus is the Eta Kappa chapter of the national honorary dramatic fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega. Its purpose is to recognize the outstanding achievements of a select group of men and women representing all phases of play production and to further the development of dramatic culture on the campus and in the community.

The local group was organized in 1937 with three of its members still on the campus; Mrs. Edith Huebert, Miss Irene Shipley, and Dean W. E. Bachman. It is one of the few organizations on the campus whose membership is not dissolved by graduation. Many alumni take active part in the fraternity's dramatic activities.

Behind closed doors an initiation ceremony of flourish and pageantry takes place each semester. A severe test in many phases of the drama is given neophytes as a requisite for membership in this distinguished cast. Major roles in plays or outstanding work on backstage crews make students of the drama eligible for membership.

The beauty of the formal initiation is enhanced by amber and blue lighting; these colors being most used in modern theatre, are the colors of the organization.

The Alpha Psi Omega has a motto which will help its members to meet the problems and responsibilities of life with an attitude that makes for tranquil and happy living: "To seek a life useful."

Under the eye of William C. White, Director, Carmen Haberman does a scene from MacBeth. Another neophyte, Norma Jean Anderson, awaits her turn. Miss Irene Shipley stands by to assist in the ceremony.

"Y" Club

Athletes at York College are assembled into a body known as the Y-Club, consisting at present of 42 men. These men have lettered in at least one of the college sponsored sports, among which are: football, basketball, track, tennis, and golf. This group of huskies with the Panther Club and the newly-organized Pantherettes, sponsored the sale of refreshments at athletic events besides furnishing 50% of the entertainment.

Y-Club membership was increased greatly by the return of ex-servicemen to the campus this year. Several more members were added as a result of the return to eleven-man football last fall. As all veterans were thinking in terms of points upon their discharge, a new system of awards was initiated this year. The new system provides for awards of Y pins, gold emblems, and blankets of York colors in lieu of additional letters in college athletics. Twelve seniors were lost and twelve new Panthers found this year, as the Y-Club looks forward to next year.

During the football and basketball seasons, the Pantherettes, the newly organized Pep squad, greatly influenced the school spirit of York College with novel drills, organized rooting sections, and refreshments. Drills of this spirited group were enhanced by the blue and white uniforms purchased at the beginning of the year. Carloads of these enthusiastic girls went to several of the Panthers' out-of-town games. Providing relaxation for book-fevered brains, this group sponsored the Valentine Varieties carnival in February. Cleverly designed booths and concessions afforded ample opportunity for the expenditure of the "hearts" which were legal tender for the night.

The half-time drills at most of the home games were the primary reason for organization. Much time was spent on the preparation of these exhibitions. One of the most elaborate drills was that given during the football season, when the lights of the field were turned out and a star was formed with the use of sparklers. The girls gave their final drill on High School Day, thereby completing successfully their first year at York College.

ATHLETICS

Realizing that sports play an important role in the development of a personality, York College sponsors athletic teams in both major and minor sports. Under the tutelage of Coach R. E. Tonkin, and his assistant, Floyd Taylor, the Panthers compete in the newly organized Nebraska College Conference.

Off to a slow start on the gridiron, Panther teams reached their peak by cinching the number two position in basketball competition. Track, tennis, and golf teams, too, showed promise of greatness, bringing delight to the hearts of ardent Panther rooters.

With a G. I. windfall of talent, bolstering the biggest crop of football material in years, Y. C.'s '46 football season opened officially in training headquarters at Seward, Nebraska.

A week's schedule of twice-a-day workouts under the hot sun with cold, cold showers were good conditioning agents.

The squad returned to the environs of the campus for two more weeks' practice before the first game. At this time the roster was divided into an A squad and a B squad. Head Coach R. E. Tonkin tutored the A squad with assistant Floyd E. Taylor putting the B squad through their paces.

During the course of the season the following "B" squad boys earned positions on the Varsity: Gerry Witham, tackle; Gordon Wiebe, guard; Wayne Farrer, tackle; Don Watson, back; Don Noll, back; Clarence Yates, center; and Dana Johnson, back. Of this group, Farrer and Witham earned major awards.

Others who won their first Y's in football included: Bill Johnson, end; Allen Christiansen, tackle; Robert Dicus, center; Robert Gillespie, back; Mark Fehring, guard; Robert Schneider, back; Fred Vorce, back; Jim Nordstrom, tackle; Robert DeBoer, guard; Richard Dean, guard; and Harvey Holbrook, end. Previous major award winners who earned additional awards during the season included: Cleo Campbell, back; Denny Auchard, back; Don Robson, back; Ross Speece, back; Abe Dick, end; Don Haberman, end; Wayne Kaeding, end; Howard DeBoer, guard; Bill Feemster, center; and Lee Miller, tackle.

Captain-elect for the past season by vote of the members of the squad was Don Haberman, senior, who played an end position and is a native of York. Don played a consistent heads-up game turning back many attempts to skirt his position on the wings. What Don lacked in weight, he made up in speed; an asset which proved itself especially valuable in the execution of a smooth double reverse. His congenial manner on and off the field was noteworthy and was a decisive boost to squad morale. "Hans" is a history major, and plans to teach and coach in Nebraska next fall.

Football

The first post-war football season at York College began with York the dark horse in the conference. The many veterans back on campus, the host of new students studded with promising material, with those remaining from last season, spelled trouble for the opposition. However, the brightness of this condition did not outshine that of other campuses. All were teeming with talent. The entire conference was "loaded for bear".

York got off on the wrong foot by giving way in its first game to Kearney State Teachers to the tune of 16-0. York's failure to capitalize on three scoring opportunities, coupled with the vast reserve corps of the power-laden Antelopes, caused the Panthers' first defeat. Bouncing back from their setback at the hands of the Kearney Antelopes, York's mighty Panthers clawed a stubborn Concordia eleven into submission 19-6. Trick plays and an unorthodox spread formation were not enough to give the lads from Seward a victory over the mighty Blue and White. York next traveled to Crete and slumbered through three quarters of a game played in a drizzling rain. The Panthers finally came out of hibernation early in the fourth quarter to push across a touchdown. The surge of power came too late, however, and the Doane Tigers emerged on the big end of the 12-6 score.

The York-Midland fracas almost duplicated the Doane game as far as the Panthers were concerned. Again it was a case of York's waiting until the fourth quarter to play inspired ball. A screaming crowd stood as the Panthers staved off one touch-down drive and retaliated with two of their own, but the 20 big points the Warriors had garnered in the previous part of the game, gave them the nod. Scoreboard read: York 14; Midland 20. Perhaps it was the Southern exposure or just desire to win that caused the Panthers to explode like a long overdue bomb, and blast the Chillicothe Ducks off their own pond. Using air power effectively and closely coordinating it with the heavy artillery, York blasted the lads from Chillicothe Business College, Mo., in a business-like manner to the rattling tune of a big 39-6. In this game the Panthers showed that they could play ball if they so desired. Deciding that it was better to win than to lose, the Blue and White stayed on the victory bandwagon by outfighting a scrappy Sterling, Kansas, team 17 to 7 to make Homecoming Day a big success. With York knocking on the very goal posts, time ran out to give the Hastings Broncos a 19-13 win in conference play the next Friday. Thus began a pattern that was to end only with the closing of the football season. With key players out with injuries, York succumbed to a smooth Nebraska Wesleyan team, 26-0. The Peru Bobcats splashed and churned their way through a sea of mud to grind out a 32-3 triumph over an injury riddled York squad. The torrential rain which fell throughout most of the game mired the York speedsters and grounded the Panther aerial attack. Thus ended the 1946 York College Football season. on a gloomy note in a gloomy, murky stadium.

M. FAHRING

Despite the fact that York was on the short end in all conference games, two individuals won Honorable Mention on Gregg McBride's All-State team and another rated Honorable Mention on the United Press Little All-America team. They were Mark Fahrning, guard; Robert DeBoer, guard, and Denny Auchard, halfback, respectively. Their down-field blocking paved the way for many a long gain and their consistent tackling was evidence of their fighting spirit.

Mark Fahrning is a 185-pound Frosh from Salina, Kansas, where he lettered four years at end. Mark was an uncanny diagnostician of opposition plays and served invaluable throughout the season. Mark is one of the many married vets on campus. He served three years with the submarines with the U. S. Navy. He is a pre-ministerial student. Discounting Rowena, his wife, Mark's first and only love is football.

Robert "Squirt" DeBoer, 195-pound Frosh from York, showed his versatility on the field by alternating between the guard and fullback slots. He took over the fullback position when Cleo Campbell, regular starting fullback, sustained injuries in the Hastings game. "Squirt" was undoubtedly one of the most vicious tacklers in the conference. His only weaknesses were old knee and ankle injuries sustained while playing football for the U. S. Navy "Seahawks". DeBoer was a Navy fighter pilot and served in the Air Corps for two and one-half years. His major is engineering.

position all year. His speed on sweeping-end runs and reverses, coupled with a deceptive change of pace, left many a would-be tackler grasping at thin air. When the regular kicker was out of the game, Denny ably did the punting. His defensive play was consistent all year and his fighting spirit was evident at all times. Denny is one of next year's Co-Captains elect. He served with the Merchant Marine in the Naval Reserve during the war. He is a math major and plans to teach and coach.

Heading next year's squad are co-captains Denny Auchard and Ross Speece. Both have spirit and ability for leadership. Under Coach Tonkin, these men should spark the Panthers to a successful season next year. These two speedsters played wing-back positions and were deadly threats on broken field runs.

Co-captains Speece and Auchard plot next year's gridiron strategy.

Basketball

With football equipment hardly adjusted to the odor of moth balls, nine members of the A squad switched from cleated shoes to rubber soles and basketball. In all, fifty-three aspirants checked out gear at the first call. After two weeks of grooming, the hopefuls were divided into A, B, and C squads. The A squad had its eyes fixed on the conference championship while the B squad made most games away trips to engage conference foes in prelim battles. The C squad provided experience for undergraduates in contests with local high schools. Prospects for the first string soared with the return of prewar lettermen among whom were Wayne and Jim Kaeding, Cleo Campbell, Abe Dick, Jim Conway, Denny Auchard, Don Robson, Cliff Rhoades, and Don Haberman. Bob Gillespie, and Bob DeBoer, first year basketeers, rounded out the A squad.

An innovation in basketball circles was the York Invitational Pre-season Basketball Tournament, which did not affect the conference standings but afforded an opportunity for conference teams to size up the year's competition. Discontinued during the war years, the tournament saw six teams competing: Hastings, Kearney, Wesleyan, Wayne, Midland, and York. York emerged victorious with a win over Hastings.

An account of the season's activity showed 19 wins opposed to 7 losses, giving the hoopsters a .693 average. Both the curtain raiser and the windup resulted in losses for the York lads. Four defeats in conference play dashed hopes of winning a conference championship. For the second straight year, the Hastings Broncos copped the title with only two loop losses. The Panthers were not to be denied second honors as they finished two games ahead of Peru.

After dropping a dull prelude to Marysville, Mo., Teachers 38-52, the Panthers redeemed themselves by dumping a smoo'her Tarkio club 60-56. Another non-conference tilt was a cinch as the Panthers tallied 71 points to Concordia's 40. An all-Freshman Wayne Teachers' team closely pressed the Tonkin men before falling victim to the tune of 51-40, in the Panthers' conference opener.

All hands kept the scorers busy as the Tarkio cagers bowed to York 67-61 in another home game. Despite Jim Kaeding's Rangy Abe Dick reaches for an easy two points against Peru while Harberman poises for a possible rebound.

Conway outscrapes a pair of Kearney Antelopes for a tip-in.

33 point scoring spree, the Peru Bobcats choked a last half rally to hand the Panthers the first of four conference defeats, 57-58.

Fifth-place Midland was the victim of the Panthers' revenge following the Peru defeat, losing 65-44. Wesleyan was snowed under on its home court 61-38. Chadron yielded on successive nights to a scrappy Y. C. outfit, 62-48 and 58-54. The Abernathy brothers' long shots almost managed a victory in the latter contest.

January 24 was a long, cold evening as Hastings successfully throttled York's most effective threats, Wayne and Jim Kaeding, to win 49-38, when the two hot-shots could manage only 15 points between them. After a free-scoring affair with the Sun Drug team of Lincoln, the Panthers scalped the Warriors of Midland with everyone tallying easily. Revenge was sweet and the Panthers all but annihilated Peru 69-52. Kearney went down under a barrage of baskets 65-58. Panther reserve power saw action as a bewildered Wesleyan quintet was left in arrears 64-43. A five-alarm thriller saw Jim Kaeding tie a conference scoring mark with 35 points to help York blister Kearney 79-63.

Keeping their bags packed, the Panthers tackled a long road trip which included three games against a new race-track brand of ball. Against Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa, the Panthers scored 75 points but lost for Simpson came through with 83. A sister institution took no pity on a frigid five and Indiana Central trounced York 67-55. In the finale of the ill-fated junket, our heroes came through with a last-second win to upset Knox College, Galesburg, Illinois, by one point, 77-76.

Back in the league again, the Panthers found Doane no obstacle, winning 73-40. A pulp-novel thriller saw a desperate Panther club match a smoothly organized Hastings club point for point before losing the game 47-46, and with it the loop crown. The defeat was a heartbreaker, since a win over Hastings and another over Doane would have given the Panthers the championship and a trip to Kansas City. With nothing to lose, but the ball game, the Panthers lost it, to Doane in the season's finale in Tigerland. The defeat left York in second place, between champion Hastings and third-place Peru.

A tisket, a tasket,
Who scored the basket?

One of the most outstanding brother acts in the history of Nebraska basketball was brought to a conclusion this year when Jim and Wayne Kaeding exchanged jerseys 20 and 27 respectively for coaching togs. Before leaving for the Navy in the summer of '43, this brother duo paced the York College Panthers to a co-championship of the NCAC in 1941-42; and to the conference title the following year. This past season, they continued to contribute their speed and scoring power, but the effort fell short of its goal by one game, as a result of which Y. C. had to be content with second honors.

The elder of the pair, Wayne, holds total high scoring honors with a staggering 1,499 points after his name in four years of college competition. Jim follows closely with 1,080 markers to his credit. Starting with the outstanding season of 1941-42, Jim marked up 198 points in 15 games while Wayne was tallying 324 points in 16 games to set two records in the NCAC that year; scoring 34 points in one game for a new individual record, and scoring 172 points in 8 conference games for another record.

"Jake"

"Wink"

The next year both Kaedings found places on the All-State team as Wayne with 451 points again led Jim who had chalked up 342. Wayne's total made him the greatest individual scorer in the history of York College and his 35 points in one game bettered his own record of the previous year. That year both hoopsters played with the Panthers in the National Intercollegiate Tournament at Kansas City. Jim scored 28 points while the team defeated Akron University by a one point margin and Wayne dunked 27 markers through the hoop in the defeat by North Texas State Teachers.

In the 1946-47 season, in their last appearance on the Y. C. court, Jim and Wayne again won positions on the all-state team. This was Jim's season to reign, with the top conference score of 314 points while Wayne was second with 222. The former became co-holder of the single game scoring record with 35 points in a mid-season game with an opponent of the newly formed Nebraska College Conference. As a parting tribute to their college career, the squad elected Jim and Wayne as their co-captains. After completing a probably incomparable career as a brother combine, both leave the campus to begin another chapter in their athletic diaries. Basketball lovers will long remember these boys as the "Nebraska Whiz Kids".

Track

Hitting the cinders with but a few days' practice, the Panthers dropped the opening meet of the '46 season to Doane, winning their second venture, a triangular meet with Wesleyan and Midland. Field events, the Achilles heel of the squad, undid the Panthers as they fell before Kearney and Hastings.

The Panthers scored two firsts in the Conference meet at Doane. Auchard's triumph in the century and Jameson's win in the two-mile went into the books as conference records. Points scored by Dick Dean and Don Robson, plus a third in the relay, enabled the Panthers to place sixth. In 1947, the track story was much the same. The Panthers dropped meets to Kearney and Doane, trailed Hastings and Wesleyan, and tied Midland for fourth place at Peru as the season wore on. Strong on the track, the Panthers couldn't muster enough field strength to produce a winning team.

Tennis

In spite of the lack of facilities, the '46 netsters played gamely against stronger foes, dropping two decisions to Doane. After an early tie with Kearney, the '47 tennists dropped a heart-breaker to Doane, tied the Tigers in a subsequent meet, and soundly trounced the Hastings net squad.

Golf

The 1947 edition of the golf team also began its season with a loss to Kearney. However, the linksmen redeemed themselves with decisive victories over Hastings and Doane, beating the latter crew twice.

Joe Martin, complete with shiner, watches O. J. Yates and Allen Chen demonstrate the prowess which won Yates the runner-up spot in the Wayne College boxing tourney.

There was more than a little doubt in the minds of trainees as to any future use for a front dismount or a dislocate. The high bar, in particular, called for Simian-like characteristics and cool, steady nerves.

Tumbling brought a new outlook on life, as many for the first time saw the world upside down. Liniment and massage triumphed over matter, and demonstrations of gymnastic prowess on High School Day, March 28, were proof of the lively interest in collegiate physical training.

Strength and coordination, prime requisites in the major sports, were taught mind and body during a year of vigorous gymnastics. In the initial event, touch football, the men quickly learned the value of speed and deception. Three leagues were formed and keen competition made it difficult for a team to remain undefeated. The outcome of the standings is being debated around the campus even today, and the six weeks of play developed a fine aggregation of competitors eager to act as player-umpires. Next, our hearty candidates crawled to the mats to test their talents in the art of tumbling. The fellows learned to take spills gracefully in order to prevent bruises and broken bones. Parallel bars were next in the line of events to be mastered.

Women's Phys Ed

The tumbling picture at the top and the pyramid scene at the right depict two of the interesting activities in which the Girls' Physical Education classes engaged this year. Few of the girls had had previous experience in this method of bone-breaking.

The first nine weeks of conditioning in Girls' Physical Education proved that girls are as muscular as boys, at least in the number of muscles found anatomically. Loud and long were the groans caused by rebellious legs and shoulders unaccustomed to such strenuous exercise. Mrs. Donohoe seemed to have no pity on the limping tribe of femininity howling about the gym floor. Stiff necks came not from star-gazing nor did black and blue elbows come from wrestling with a text book. These collegiate groups were learning the intricacies of tumbling and the fine arts of picture building such as the example in the lower right hand corner. Of course the girls really appreciated this part of the class for now they could relax without falling on a bruised sacroiliac.

In the fall and spring when weather permits, the Physical Education class meets outside in the balmy fresh air. Here participants play softball and do some of the exercises abhorred by disintegrating muscles. When the weather is colder the girls play basketball, volleyball, and kickball, all interspersed with lessons in tumbling and the fine art of gymkhana. Basketball is by far the most popular sport. At the conclusion of Freshman initiation one of the deciding factors between the Upperclassmen's winning and Freshmen's losing is the girls' basketball game. As for tumbling, on High School Day of this year, the more proficient girls in the art put on a tumbling act for the visiting seniors of surrounding High Schools.

A D LIB

A well-balanced personality is the natural tendency of a sociable people. Character, leadership, scholarship, and school spirit play an important part in college activities. Representative students on the following pages possess these qualities, and, like their fellows, add to the charm and spirit of college life.

To be elected Representative Man or Woman, Homecoming Queen, May Queen, Panther Sweetheart or Representative Football Man, is an honor much to be desired. The faculty confers its accolade each year on a few, by naming them to appear in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities".

Homecoming Queen

Jean Rasp, Homecoming Queen, was elected by popular vote of the student body to reign over Homecoming and Parents' Day in the fall. Miss Rasp was active in the Speech and Dramatic Arts departments. She presented an outstanding dramatic recital this spring. She was also a member of Zetas, Y. W. C. A., and W. A. A. Poise and beauty were queenly qualifications considered.

May Queen

EUNICE GOODRICH

Queen of the 1947 May Day fete was Eunice Goodrich and she was a popular and gracious regent. Miss Goodrich was an active member of PALS, Y. W. C. A., Life Work Recruits, Chorus, and the Pantherettes. Each class selected its representatives to attend the Queen, and another attendant from each class was chosen by the May Queen herself.

Representative Woman

MARJORIE THORNTON

Marjorie Thornton, 1947 Representative Woman, was elected by popular vote on the basis of active participation in college affairs. On Senior Recognition Day she was presented the Mary Mutch Cain Award. The recipient of the award is nominated by the women of the faculty and elected by the entire faculty. Miss Thornton's wit and humor, her charm, and her high scholastic standing were a few of the many reasons for her being awarded the honor.

Representative Man

Representative man of 1947 is Lee Huebert. Active in Christian Association work, Huebert took part in other extra-curricular activities and ranked high in scholarship. He was one of the principals of the opera, The Bohemian Girl, presented in May, and during his college career did outstanding work in the fields of drama, music and athletics.

An active member of many campus organizations is Marjorie Thornton. In addition to participating in Recruits, Zetas, and Y. W. C. A., Miss Thornton was a successful Student Council president. Dividing her time between two loves, science and music, Miss Thornton's services as an accompanist were much in demand.

Howard DeBoer was honored with the presidencies of two campus organizations, the Senior class and the Y club. DeBoer also presided very capably over the activities of the Freshman court. He is a chemistry major

Lee Huebert, editor of the current Marathon, majored in English and Music, at the same time leaning strongly to Journalism, played a role in Bohemian Girl and made the track team. Zetas, Y. M. C. A., and O. B. N. also claimed his attention.

A mathematics major, Blaine Ronne managed the sales campaign of the Marathon. Business Manager of the Sandburr during his junior and senior years, Ronne also acted as Sports editor of the sheet. He won his Y as student manager for the football squad.

Representative Football Man

Popular choice of the 1946 football squad for representative man was Wayne Kaeding. Until injured late in the season, Kaeding was a standout on defense as well as on offense where his circus catches brought Panther fans to their feet. His sportsmanship and steady play made him the logical candidate for the honor of being chosen Representative Football Man. He lettered twice in the grid-iron sport.

Panther Sweetheart

ARLENE JOHNSON

Identity of the Panther Sweetheart of 1946 was revealed at the annual football banquet. This year the honor went to lovely Arlene Johnson, who was introduced to the guests by Don Haberman, team captain. An ardent roofer for Panther teams, Miss Johnson was presented with an engraved compact as a token of the honor accorded her.

First row, top to bottom:

Four Y. C. students comment on the decorations for the spring banquet, whose theme was "Spring Salad."

The Homecoming Queen, Jean Rasp, and her court.

A DVERTISING

The bread and butter of an annual are its advertising pages. The advertising section of the 1947 Marathon is the largest in Marathon history. It includes a number of new advertisers making their first appearances between Marathon covers and indicates a greater student body to be acquainted with the advantages of shopping in a wide-awake commercial center.

York College is fortunate in being located in a college-conscious city. The merchants of York are cooperating with the faculty and the students in making York College and the city of York attractive to college folk. Tangible evidence of this aim awaits you in the following pages.

The recently decorated MERADITH BOOK STORE of York College people is a favorite coke-joint. Owner Bill Campbell, Jr., helps Pan Morgan, Carv Holt, Lois Meyer, and Bob Gillespie select from a long menu featuring Seal-Test ice cream.

"Nothing cooks like flame," explains Roger Clementson to Mark and Rowena Fähring. THE GAS COMPANY supplies appliances as well as gas to York's economy-minded users.

Bob Schneider and Allen Christenson are aware that, "Clothes make the man," as they talk over shirts and ties and other style-leading names in masculine wear.

Old and reliable, the FIRST NATIONAL BANK carries many a savings and checking account of college students. Lee Huebert salts away a nest egg while Paying Teller C. T. Moline obliges.

"Tell us about the special spots . . ." says the sign and you can bet that FOSTER DRY CLEANERS will get them out. Frank Medsker and Gordon Wiebe study a sample of Foster's work displayed by Les and Hubert Foster.

April showers bring May flowers and YORK FLORAL CO. brings corsages, bouquets, and flowers for every occasion the year round. Bill White and Howard May laugh at an attempt at flower arrangement.

Admiring a novel knit in a ski sweater at CHAPMAN'S are Miss Chapman, Eunice Goodrich, and Jasmine Ingrahm. Chapman's is a favorite with co-eds who know that smart clothes are an essential part of a charming personality.

"Wish it were for me," beams "Mudge" Anderson when consulted on a gift problem by Gus Munsinger. They have wisely chosen from A. & T. DRUG'S well-stocked cosmetic counter. America's most famous names in beauty aids are to be found among the products A. & T. supplies the more charming co-eds.

"No sacrifice on styling" says Helen Gould to Scotty Meeker and Ethel Brooks in BROWN-McDONALD'S Ready-to-Wear department for women. Recently established, the York store is one of 38 Brown-McDonald stores in Nebraska.

GERHARDT'S ICE CREAM STORE has become a favorite place for college students to congregate after a game, a show, or an evening of study. Ken Martin and Ernestine Garcia serve Merl Riggs, Lydia Gomez, Ivalee Mizell, and Bob Moomey.

Fine gifts to suit any purse or fancy can be found at DEAN'S HARDWARE, FURNITURE AND APPLIANCE. Many items from these shelves have helped furnish student-vet homes.

"A good foundation . . ." says Orvel Holt to Warren Porter of this number from ROGERS SHOES' line of smart and comfortable footwear. Nationally advertised brands are featured, including Florsheim, Crosby Square, and Gold Cross.

A toast to the good service and dependable products at MOORE'S is offered by Jane Martin, Bob Jaquiss, Hope Howland, and Wayne Farrer. Russ Fletcher, owner and pharmacist, and Mrs. Bullock look on. MOORE DRUG STORE is the Rexall store.

Lois Anderson consults critic Clarence Mabon on the selection of a new hat at THE VOGUE. Estelle LeRoy and Emma Ferguson add a deft touch. Clothes-smart co-eds depend upon THE VOGUE for smart clothes.

"MMMMMM!" murmur Marjorie Voegele and Mollie Rafter upon being shown some of the baked goods from Elsasser's SOUTH SIDE BAKERY by Evelyn Dobberstein. Ask for "coffee and a roll" anywhere in town; the chances are that it came from Elsasser's.

The way J. C. PENNEY'S fit tall and short men with suits and clothing from head to toe is generally liked on the campus. Ramos Barela and Dick Miller try to catch Charles Johnson on a tall size. Women's clothing and dry goods are other PENNEY departments.

Clerk R. K. Blackburn and Kenny Gilming watch Harold Hasenkrug sign his John Hancock. "I'll reserve a room at the McCLOUD HOTEL," is a promise many a homesick student has given parents before a visit or big game.

"Dee!" Canon and Ruth Weston admire the "newness" restored to a formal by HESLER'S dry cleaning. Their quick, fast service has led an increasing number of college students to depend on HESLER'S.

Well-known to college car owners is GRANT MOTORS' repair department. Factory-trained mechanics service any make or model. Dependable products by John Deere, Chevrolet, and Oldsmobile are handled by Grant.

Errol McVey, Bob Womack, and Dick Foulk head for the TOWN HOUSE where "Red" and "Jug" Speece provide snappy service. Burgers and Baskets are favorite after-game treats.

Ruth Auchard talks over the merits of a car heater with Earl King in GEIS' new headquarters. Students also depend upon Geis appliance store downtown and Geis tire shop for home and auto needs.

Vitamin-wise and dollar-wise are Mrs. Al Zerwekh and Mrs. Lee Huebert when they shop at GRAND CENTRAL MARKET. Nationally-known brands and well-marked shelves make shopping in the glider baskets a pleasure.

Paul Clark, Iona Shaw, Katheryn Kerr, and Fred Koontz admire the products of ROBERTS FLORAL COMPANY'S modern greenhouse. Thoughtless beaux have often called on Roberts for a last minute corsage.

"Even the toothpick is good," laughs Fred Vorce to Lynn Smith and Clarence Mabon after a meal in one of the roomy booths at the CENTRAL CAFE. Veteran-owner Bill Kelly serves delicious dinners to money-wise students.

YELLOW CAB has helped many a college co-ed to get in "on time." This fleet of modern cars provides quick service anywhere in good weather and bad alike.

Familiar to many car owners is the gleaming green and white of DAHL'S TEXACO SERVICE at 9th and Lincoln. Students admire his quick, cheerful service.

Both champions themselves, Arlene and "Jake" Kaeding recognize another outstanding CHAMPION, product of WILKE BAKING CO.

York's newest bank, YORK STATE BANK, has proved itself a booster for college and community with its ready backing to new industry and veteran enterprises.

High-scoring Alyois Holst shows "how" for Everett Thornton, Merle Riggs, and Les Herron. Eight college teams competed at YORK BOWLING ALLEYS and many others bowled for fun and exercise.

World-famous name of F. W. WOOLWORTH CO. is depended upon by York students and townspeople alike for quality and economy in variety merchandise. This local store on the west side of the square is managed by Paul Reynolds.

GENUINE Ford PARTS

"Service" is the message of this picture. Mr. Swanson and his staff at the SWANSON MOTOR CO. are always ready to cure sick cars and campus jalopies with reliable work and dependable parts.

Indicative of York's constant progress is this new, ultra-modern home of STOVER'S, INC. Dealer in International Harvester equipment and Packard automobiles, Mr. Stover is a York College booster.
