YORK COLLEGE LIBRARY
YORK, NEDR.

To The Students

This is your book, your companion, your buddy. It was our baby. Now may it help you to remember the times spent along the paths of Y. C. Times spent in study, worship, play, and in just living.

Clocks have ticked away the hours since then, and now those moments of college life are gone. Through the year the grandfather faculty co-ordinated our activity while we student alarms enjoyed college joys, occasionally absorbing the majestic knowledge of our elders. We jangled our way through cheering sections, recitals, and choir tours; we jostled our way through initiations, socials, and graduation. Our watches ticked away the time. More than that the noisy companions sent us scurrying off to 7:50 classes. Now their rhythm serves only to remind us of our first walk along that college pathway and anticipates those coming happy feet of future generations.

John Bergland, Editor

1951 Marathon

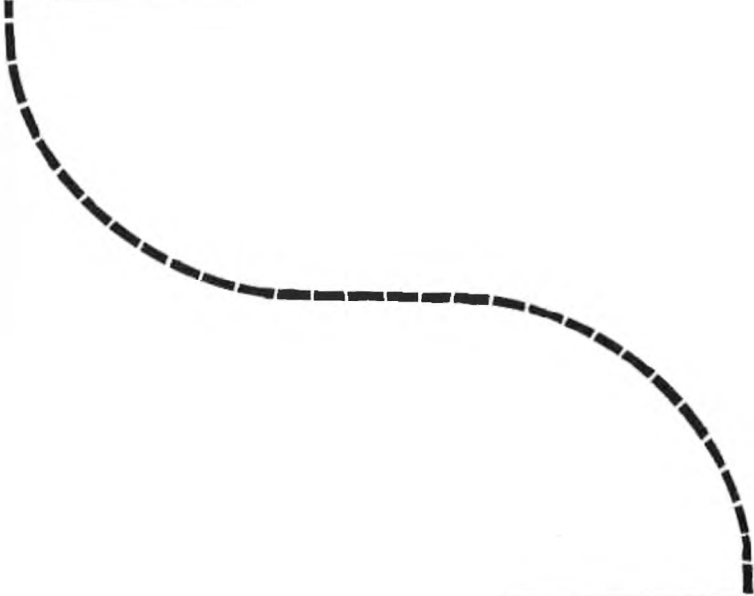

Salutes

We, the Marathon Staff, respectfully dedicate this annual to the memory of Dr.
Charles Bisset and Bishop V. O. Weidler.

Dr. Bisset, who poured his spirit into York College and her students for thirty-seven years, will always live in the lives of those who knew and loved him. His ideals and Christian character will continue to orient adherents everywhere.

Bishop Weidler, who was acting chairman of the Board of Trustees at the time of his death, has inspired those he contacted to a richer and more abundant life. This great personality will continually be remembered as a man of God.

“OLD MAIN”

On the evening of Jan. 3, 1931 our administration building was destroyed by fire. Hearts were made sad for she played a great part in our college life, and more than that, we loved her. As she bowed from service it was with a glory that matched the glory of her living.

New Home, Yes ...

And a new name too, the Journal-Star Printing Co., but they still add up to the top quality, service, and high standards of workmanship that have always been our trade mark.

Just before the first of the year, the State Journal Printing Company moved into a beautiful, new spacious building and with new modern equipment that has been added and scientifically arranged to speed up production flows, means more and greater savings for you. The way to hold sky-rocketing prices in check, is to increase efficiency by modern machinery and modern methods. The Journal-Star Printing Co. is keeping in step with the times.

We invite you to inspect our new home, that is becoming more and more, the home of Nebraska's finer yearbooks.
