Charm School Reviewed Y. W. Hold Fine Meeting

Mrs. Ashcraft Leader of Last Meeting

Monday afternoon, January 12, the Y. W. gave the last chapter of the Charm School Project for girls. There was the Spiritual side of the girl's life. The meeting was led by Mrs. Ashcraft. She gave the scripture lesson of Martha and Mary as a true picture of womanhood and the wonderful words of Jesus, "I came that they might have life and have it more abundantly." As Martha was cumbered with many cares, school girls think they are too busy to take time for the finer and truer things. School girls will be happier if they sit at the feet of Jesus and learn from him. The first and highest duty of every individual is to develop the spiritual life. Meditating brings poise and sereness that is entirely lacking in the empty, shallow life of a girl. The work of the day will be helped so much if girls would begin their day by meeting the Great Guest. Spiritual life depends upon choices and these must be made when it seems as though other things are crowding out the better things.

When girls carry out their own devotions, attend the Y. W. C. A. hour they will acquire a depth and heighth of life that will give spiritual impulses expression. As Miss Kerr said in a former meeting, "If we could only do without the dust of doing."

So live that the Master may say at the end of the day, "She hath chosen the better part, that which cannot be taken from her."

Then a review was given of each of the Charm School Project Lessons by a girl who represented one side of the girl's life. The physical side was represented by Nione in girls W. A. A. suit ready for sports of all kinds. Girlhood would be weak and unbalanced if she did not exercise properly and follow the rules of health and hygiene.

Pearl came, as the Social Side, wearing a party dress. A girls social life should not be neglected. She should learn that happiness never comes singly but as twins A more sympathetic nature makes one more broadminded. If a girl knows all she can learn to forgive all.

Eleanor came in students cap and gown representing the Intellectual Side. The intellectual girl will Reka. choose a curriculum along many lines and so loosen herself from the

MARATHON

The Editor of the Marathon reports that all write-ups from the classes are in except the Academy Freshmen and the College Freshmen and Seniors. This is a long step toward cooperation with the editor and is much appreciated. It is hoped that the others will respond promptly and we trust that they will produce the better material because of the delay. Most of the engraving work including several pages of snopshots has been sent in and some is expected back soon. The cartoons have also been sent to the engravers. We hope the classes will further cooperate in the turning in of the funds required in order that we may meet all obligations promptly.

Charming Affair Held at Conservatory

On Thursday, January 15, in the reception room at the Conservatory. Miss Reka Blanc was hostess to the Y. W. girls and a number of other friends. The occasion was a very pretty little afternoon tea.

A very pleasing program was given consisting of the following numbers: Piano Solo-Fantasia by Mozart-

Mrs. Ashcraft and Miss Fye presided at the tea table which was very prettily decorated with sweet peas. Perhaps the nicest thing was the favor each. girl received. This was made of two little white candies with little red paper hearts between-tied with red to you, do it." These words convey ribbon. On the hearts, appeared the to us the great confidence Mary had names of Reka Blanc and Louis in Jesus her son. Because of His Mathews.

Mr. Mathews took his master's degree at Mercer University and will graduate this spring from Newton him and to follow him is necessary if Theological Seminary, a Baptist institution which is located at Newton Centre, near Boston. Ted Burnham, who will lead the Fightin' Panthers of '25, hails from Ansley. Ted downed York moleskins for the first time last September. He held down the quarter-back position regularly this past season. Burnham is a heady player who is never down. He should be going 'great-guns" next year.

College Glee Clubs to Present Opera in March

Maritana Chosen for This Years' Work

Dean Amadon and the glee club are hard at work preparing to give the opera "Maritana." The opera will be staged in York on March 26. "Maritana" is the work of William Vincent Wallace. The scene is laid in Madrid

The first presentation of the opera occurred in 1845. It is a story of the Spanish court. The romantic atmosphere and picturesque costumes of old Spain add a charming touch to the beautiful music.

There are ten principal parts in this opera. These will be filled by soloists from the glee club. The remaining members will form the chorus in support of the principals. The chorus will consist of forty voices.

Last year the glee club presented the "Bohemian Girl" with a great deal of success. Every one in college circles anticipate at least as great a success with this year's production.

Panthers Defeat Strong Aggie College Quintet

Snappy Brand of Ball in Opening Came

The York quintet rode to victory over the Nebraska Aggie five by a count of 32 to 28 on the home floor Saturday night, Jan. 10. This was the second win of the season for the York aggregation. The first half of the game was slow, neither team showing much pep, but as the second half started the Yorkites staged a spectacular rally of floor work and goal shooting that gave them a fifteen point lead in short order. Here Russell substituted freely and then the Aggies began to climb but their opponent's lead was too overwhelming and the game ended with the Aggies trailing by four points.

York scored the opening basket of the game but the Aggies came back with a counter. It was nip and tuck for the first half with the score even most of the time but in the second act York gathered a lead which they held till the final curtain. Burnham. Melton and Ashmore gathered the lions share of the points for York. while Roth, Oexlrich and Mills were the point getters for the Aggies. Nichol's guarding was the feature of the York defense.

When a man goes to college with the proper spirit and the correct idea of proportion he is willing to cut a few of the non-essentials in order that he may intelligently discuss Browning, that he may give rules of chemistry or understand sines and tangents. He is going to get the very most out of every day he spends within the college walls.

He's going to be well re-paid for his work and any sacrifices he may make. He is going to learn to eat what is served him and say nothing even if it isn't what he had at home. He is going to learn to concentrate and work under high pressure. He will learn to take unjust criticism and be silent. And best of all he will learn something of the work of others and be willing to give them credit.

But along with all this he must learn that his interests aren't the only aterests and that his work is not all that is worth while. Many of our prolessors agree with Woodrow Wilson when he said "Too many college students take in all the side-shows and miss the main circus." And the main circus is always the worth while things in college life and all of them Many an honor student in the years to come would give many of his 93's for a knowledge of debating or music. The star athlete of today may be a better business man tomorrow if he hob-nobs a little with the college depater.

Of course no one loses by getting the most out of his studies. Nor can one lose by taking an interest in the glee club, the debating clubs or athletic teams. It will broaden him personally. And it will make him a better and more loyal student. He will be better fitted when he goes out in the world and he will have done more to build up his school.

Some day in the future we will all have our college work completed. We will come back from time to time and be proud of our school and all her activities. It behooves us all to give the proper support to all of the activities of our school.

The average student in York is not giving many of the things in the school the credit they deserve. All of us are ready and willing to stand ui and cheer when the Blue and White team wins, but that is all. There are so many of us who give little or no credit to the many other worth while organizations in our school. The Christian Associations are doing a rea work and deserve credit. York has one of the finest glee clubs of any col lege in this state or any other state. She supports strong debate teams One might spend hours enumerating the good points of our school which receive little or no credit from the average student.

Whenever a college editor begins talking of "pep" and "school spirit," a lot of people see a vision of a college rah, rah, boy, in a pinched coat, with a lot of bright ribbon around his hat. The queer specimen is supposed to wave a cane and shout rah! in unison with some more boys.

This vision is out of date. The average student around this campus is wearing his old army shirt under a leather vest and counts himself lucky to have the vest. But they should be able to yell together when necessary. And that is not the real point. The yelling together is just an outward manifestation of an inner state--a state which we believe in our school and all of her activities and are more than willing that the world should know about it.

One of the usual questions usually asked prospective teachers is, "What magazines or periodicals do you read?" or "What books have you read in the past few months?" And this recalls the old saying "Tell me what you read and I will tell you what you think." This in turn est stories are most popular with students. Movie magazines, humorous publications, and fashion papers have good sale. Among the books: readers of Gene Stratton Porter, Rex Beach and Zane Grey are dwindling. Students are now asking for Percy Marks, author of "The Plastic Age" and Homer Croy's "Nest of the Water Tower." Two booksellers report that two thirds of the mystery stories sold, are bought by professors.

Bryn Mawr-Editors of College News once set about gathering statistics on what the college girls read. The results show an extraordinary catholicity of taste. One library consisted simply of Plato, Jurgen and Corelli. Another, arranged according to size brought "The Decline of the Roman Empire, Ulysses (Joyce's, not Homer's) and the Bible into friendly proximity." Editors conclude, . . . that the literary taste of contemporary scholars may be casual but it has never been versatile.

Harvard-Even MacIntyre Jr. Proprietor of the Community Bookshop reports a great interest in the "Modern sophisticates, Mencken, Nathan, Van Vechten, Machen, Dreiser and others. Biographies, "Outlines" of everything under the sun and books written by undergraduates and men recently out of College, also are in great demand.

Concludes Mr. MacIntyre, "what does the undergraduate read? He reads everything and anything, but he burns midnight mazda, tears his clothes, his hair and his dictionary while deeply immersed in the subtle fascination of "The Cross Word Puz zle Book." -New Student.

Made House Sacred

In Arabia, as in many other countries, salt is the symbol of hospitality, and among the Arabs hospitality is almost a sacred thing. They tell of a thief who broke into a house one night and in looting the place came upon a small gold box. He opened it and inside it found another box, also of gold. That in turn held a third box, which was partly filled with a fine white powder. The thief tasted the powder and found that it was salt. Immediately he restored to their places all the valuables that he had gathered to carry off. He could not rob a house in which he had "eaten salt."--Youth's Companion.

The editor of Scribner's Magazine made a visit to Columbia University a few weeks ago. He had occasion to drop into the book store on the campus. On the magazine rack there was not a single copy of the better magazines to be found. Yet there were plenty of copies of "Hot Dog," "Whiz Bang," "Movie Stories" and others of such type to be found. The only conclusion is a real condemnation of our college students.

It is quite likely that the average person never stops to consider the real work done in our nation by the Christian college. It is the only source of distinctively Christian education. It is the only school in America today that takes a real interest in the student's morals and encourages him in religious work.

This type of school has been the foundation of America's college system The church school has set the standard and maintained it. It has been the trainer of America's presidents, her leaders and her ministers. The gradu ates of such a school is almost always a well-trained, religious man or wo man.

Automatic warning signals to prevent collisions between motor cars at dangerous cross-roads have been tested recently near Bordeaux, France.

These signals are operated electrically. Across each roadway near the intersection is placed a metal plate even with the road level. Whenever a motorcar approaching the crossing passes over the plate, it makes an electric contact that releases a danger signal at the crossing and on the intersecting road. At night the signals are illuminated for several seconds after contact is made with the road plate. Thus a driver is warned instantly that another car is approaching the intersection. The signal is at a sufficient distance from the crossing to give him time to apply his brakes. Installation of the system is said not to be costly.

How It Happened

"Say, looky here!" demanded Constable Sam T. Slackputter, the guardian of the peace and dignity of Petunia, addressing a motorist who had managed to run his Hootin' Nanny against a mule in the dusk and get the contraption pretty well kicked to pieces, "how in Sam Hill did you come to run into that there mule, anyhow?"

"I didn't come to run into him: I was just trying to pass through the town," responded the offender, "and the mule had no headlight."—Kansas City Star.

When Mrs. Mae Urdang celebrated her one hundred and fourteenth birthday recently in the Harlem Home of the Daughters of Israel, among those taking part in the jollification were her young brother, who is one hun-dred, and her "boy," who is just eighty-nine.

In addition, fifty other aged men and women, inmates of the home, joined in the celebration, the feature of which was the cutting of a birthday cake adorned with 114 candles.

The dog had been missing since a motor accident in which both its owners were killed. Mutt was chained to the running board of the car, which turned over three times. Later the dog was found cowering under the house. When he was finally enticed out his head was covered with gray hairs.
