Skin Given by Dr. E. I. Connor
Nearly Cost Missionary
His Life.

Last July a magnificent specimen of the African leopard family, which has since become a subject of interest to York College, made his last stand for life in the jungles of Sierra Leone, West Africa.

The story of the capture is told in the Sierra Leone Outlook, by Mr. Walter Schultz, a United Brethren missionary. Mr. Schultz is located in the same province as Dr. and Mrs. E. I. Connor, alumni of York College, who sent the skin to decorate the alumni library.

"While building last year," recounts Mr. Schultz, "I had a young man helping me from a nearby village. He often brought a message from the people that I should kill the leopards there. This village had often suffered from the ravages of the leopards, and occasionally people were terrorized while traveling. I did not make a set at that time due to the heavy rains, but promised that after the rains I should try to kill them off.

"Later the headmen and the Chief of Benke came to beg me to kill a leopard that had robbed the town of all the sheep, goats, dogs, and fowls. I told them it was too wet yet, but that during the school vacation I would make a set. The next week they sent for me three times as the big cat was now killing off the livestock in the surrounding villages also...

"We went down to Bomek to trade and outside of the town we made a set. The town people brushed a 10x10 foot space while I put the clamps on the trap. The Chief had trouble getting a dog for bait, as everything had been killed off, but after a time one was brought. I then covered the trap carefully with dry leaves and dirt. After arranging with the Chief to feed the dog and notify me in case one was caught, the 'Porro' was put on the trap and we returned home.

"Seven days later a messenger came to call me. We found a savage male leopard in the trap and he was making a considerable trail with the trap through the thick, tangled brush... I knew the leopard was powerful from the way he ran and leaped with the trap. I might mention that it was a grizzly bear trap weighing about 20 pounds, and that about 15 pounds of the iron had been fastened to it.

"He would run on ahead for some distance, and then lie in wait for us. This he kept up until he was tired. The roaring grew louder, and together with the clanking of the iron, made the brush ring. He was travelling in a parallel line with the road where a crowd had gathered and were making much noise to keep up their courage. The noise was bothering us, too, and it enraged the leopard still more.

"The leopard was coming to younger brush now, and would either have to make a stand or go into the open. The roaring was getting more savage every minute. I told the men to make a path a bit wider and get behind me. Soon the sharp, quick guttural snaps told me he was coming. The native hunter was badly frightened and came up to me asking me in terror to take his gun. I was foolish enough to listen to him and stepped to the side of the already narrow path. The beast charged me, roaring savagely, and cutting zigzag among the saplings. I had made a bad mistake when I stepped to the side to listen to the bewildered hunter and could only

CROSBY AND FISHER REPORT CONVENTION

Quote Prominent Men Who Spoke on Prohibition at the Convention.

Homer Crosby and J. Donald Fisher, winners of the oratorical and essay contest sponsored by the Anti-Saloon League, have returned to the campus with enthusiastic reports of the annual Anti-Saloon League convention held at Detroit Jan. 15 to 19. They state that officials in charge of the convention pronounced it the biggest success in the history of the League and hailed the attendance and interest of the 100 students there as a signal triumph.

The opening speech was given by the new mayor of Detroit who was inaugurated the night before the convention. He is a strong "dry" and won the election by a large majority. He promised to give his best for reform measures in Detroit and started by dismissing numerous defaulting policemen.

Colonel Callahan, a varnish manufacturer from Louisville, Ky., a Roman Catholic but a "dry" said that prohibition had had wonderful effects in Kentucky which has always been known for its "moonshiners." Hon. Mr. Brut, of Washington, D. C., attorney for the enforcement department, said that Prohibition is a big success and that those who say it is a big expense are misinformed, for the fines collected every year would pay for the cost of enforcement four times over.

Several congressmen declared that the "drys" were ready for a vote on Prohibition both in the House and in the Senate at any time and cited the fact that more "drys" have been elected to each Congress than to the preceding one. They were also amused at the idea of prohibition's actually causing disrespect for law. As Justice Florence Allen, of the Ohio supreme court said, "Prohibition did not cause disrespect for law: it inherited it."

Mr. Leland, founder of the Cadillac and Lincoln automobiles and present owner of the Detroit News, one of the largest newspapers in the country, declared himself strongly in favor of prohibition. Dr. Rice, of the Metropolitan M. E. church capped the climax when he said the time would soon be here when the rich minority who violate would be considered as bad as any other criminals.

The next convention of the Anti-Saloon League will probably be held in Washington, D. C., in 1932.

ON BASKETBALL

The College Panthers may not be at the top of the conference standings but they are making it tough for all their opponents. Every game lost has been lost by a small score. The scoring power of this team is shown by the fact that three Panthers are among the ten highest scorers in the conference. Creech is holding down second place being led only by Nordstrom, Midland ace. Gallant is in sixth place, while Knolle is holding down ninth.

Prof Warron Baller On Leave of Absence

WILL TAKE GRADUATE WORK AT COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

Prof. Hill, Dean Bisset, and Miss
Slee to Take Over His Courses.

Prof. Warren Baller, head of the department of psychology and philosophy, has been granted a leave of absence until next September by the board of trustees in order that he may begin study for his doctor's degree at Columbia University, New York City.

Professor Baller left York Saturday for Lincoln where he spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Baller, after which he left for New York City. At Columbia he will center his studies largely on psychology, but may include advanced classes in philosophy and logic in his schedule.

During Professor Baller's absence his general psychology class will be taken over by Prof. Ray Hill. Dean Charles Bisset will offer the course in ethics, while Miss Mary Alice Slee will offer the course in educational psychology which Professor Baller usually teaches.

The close of this semester will complete two and one-half years in which Professor Baller has been connected with the faculty of York College. During the last two and one-half years he has been active as senior class sponsor, faculty adviser of the student council and the Y. M. C. A., and has shown his interest by serving with various other organizations on the campus.

Professor Baller graduated from DeWitt high school in 1919, received his B. A. degree from York College in 1923, and took graduate work in psychology and philosophy at the University of Colorado and the University of Nebraska, receiving the degree of M. A. from the latter institution.

SOPHOMORES TENDER RECEPTION JAN. 16

Second Year Class Entertains
Students and Faculty at McCloud Hotel.

The sophomore class tendered its annual formal reception to the students and faculty members of the College on the evening of Jan. 16. The reception was held in the ball room of the McCloud hotel. A program of talks and musical numbers was given.

Lee Knolle, president of the sophomore class, gave the welcome address in behalf of his class and announced the responses which were given by Miss Edith Callender for the faculty and Willis Young for the student body.

Following the responses there was given a program of musical numbers. Margaret Yust played a piano solo for the first number, which was followed by two vocal solos contributed by Lois Overmiller, who was accompanied at the piano by Ethel Dixon. As the last number Verne Dierdorff sang, accompanied by Lois Overmiller. At the close of the program refreshments of brick ice cream with a green letter "Y" in the center and cup cakes with a letter "C" frosting were served.

YORK CHAPTER OF DE MOLAY MEETS IN BUSINESS SESSION

The bi-weekly meeting of the York Chapter, Order of De Molay, was held in the Masonic hall on the evening of Jan. 23. The regular business of the organization was discharged and plans for a "better attendance contest" were made.

The Chapter has been divided into two groups. Points will be awarded to each group for each member present at meetings and also for other duties performed by members. At the end of the appointed time the group having the highest number of points will be entertained by the losing side.

Fortcoming social events were discussed, and it was decided that the Chapter should have one party before the annual "spring party," usually held in April.

OPERA, "ROBIN HOOD" WILL BE PRESENTED BY COLLEGE SINGERS

Glee Club to Give Annual Opera
at York Theatre Evening of Jan. 30.

The York College Glee Club will present "Robin Hood," a three-act comic opera by Reginald de Koven, Jan. 30 at 8:00 p. m. at the York theatre.

The story of "Robin Hood" tells of the escapades of Little John and his jolly band of outlaws. Robin Hood has come to the forest where he is to meet Maid Marian whom the king has bid him to marry. He is to be made the Earl of Huntington, but he first must be pardoned for his outlaw life.

The sheriff of Nottingham plans to intercept Robin and his plans by issuing a false warrant for his arrest, and by trying to arrange a marriage between his ward, Guy of Gisborne, who he says is the Earl, and Maid Marian. The transaction, if completed, would bring the sheriff a large sum of money.

Robin and Marian meet and agree to marry in spite of the sheriff's plans, and Annabelle, the daughter of Dame Durden, is to be forced into marriage with the elderly sheriff. Annabelle is Alan's sweetheart. In the third act everything turns out as hoped for. The pardon arrives from the king for Robin, and establishes his identity for certain. The sheriff is threatened with hanging. Robin gets his Marian, and Alan a Dale his Annabelle. The opera closes with the beautiful finale, "Love Now We Never Shall Part."

Comedy parts are furnished by the sheriff and Guy of Gisborne. The rollicking songs of Little John's band will make the heart beat faster. Probably the best known selection in the opera is, "O Promise Me," which is sung by Alan a Dale.

The opera is being directed by Dean Charles Amadon, of the conservatory of music, and by Miss Muriel Thomas, instructor in violin and public school music. Mr. George Marshall Wilson, a director who is directing "The Mikado," which is being given at Stromsburg, has spent a few days helping with "Robin Hood."

The characters of the cast:
Robin Hood.....Marvin Hersey
Sheriff of Nottingham.....
.....Donald Fisher
Guy of Gisborne.....John Boren
Little John.....Brighton Houston
Will Scarlet.....Lee Knolle
Friar Tuck.....Kenneth Jenkins
Alan a Dale.....Lois Overmiller
.....Lady Marion Frances Edmondson
.....Dame Durden Genevieve Rystrom
Annabelle.....Ethel Dixon
The accompaniment will be played by Margaret Yust.

GOOD BYE AND GOOD LUCK!

It has been said, and rightly said too, that we never miss the water till the well runs dry.

We grow so accustomed to a beneficial circumstance in our life that we come to accept it without question. And when we have it no more its loss is felt much more keenly than its presence is appreciated.

York College has been enjoying the presence of a faculty member who will be missed in more ways than one. Prof. Warren Baller, head of the department of psychology and philosophy, left last Saturday for New York City where he will begin study for his Ph. D. degree. With him go the good will and best wishes of the student body, faculty, and friends of the College.

HOW HOOVER GOT AHEAD

When Herbert Hoover was inaugurated on March 4 his inauguration was attended by one William E. Pulliam, receiver of customs in the republic of Santo Domingo. He tells a delightful true anecdote—and parable—about himself and the new president. The story runs as follows:

"Mr. Hoover and I were very much alike up to a certain point. We ran parallel. But there came to be a difference. I'll tell it to you. It explains why he is in Washington and I'm in Santo Domingo.

"I was born in the Mississippi valley. Mr. Hoover was born in the Mississippi valley.

"I went to Oregon. Mr. Hoover went to Oregon.

"I got to Portland. Mr. Hoover got to Portland.

"We were then about 17 years old. I heard of the new university at Palo Alto. Mr. Hoover heard of it.

"Mr. Hoover determined to take the examination for entrance into it. So did I.

"The examiners came to Portland. They displayed the examinations. I looked them over. So did Mr. Hoover.

"I saw that I could not pass them. Mr. Hoover say that he, too, could not pass them.

Then came the difference.

"Seeing that I could not pass the examinations, I did not take them. Mr. Hoover, seeing that he could not pass the examinations, took them anyway.

"I got a job pushing a truck.

"He failed in them. He was not stopped. He went to Palo Alto, took the examinations again. Still he failed in some of them. He was not stopped. He took those again. He remained and he was graduated.

"That's why I am in Santo Domingo and he's in the White House."

DON'T BE A DRIFTER

Don't be a drifter! Breast the stream
 And struggle for a worthy dream.
 Be one of those with standards high
 Who dare to do and dare to try.
 Too many merely drift along,
 Helpless when danger's wind grows strong;

Tossed by the currents here and there;

Held in the eddies of despair;
 Bruised by the rocks they might evade

Were they not all too lightly swayed.

Don't be a drifter! Shape a plan
 And have some purpose as a man.
 Be not content, as many are
 To go without a guiding star,

Swayed by the faithless whims of chance,

Fate's puppets, at her nod to dance,
 But in, the distance set your goal
 And fight for it with all your soul.

Keep some objective worth your while,

Though fortune frown on you or smile.

Don't be a drifter! Join the few
 Who seek life's real tasks to do.
 Strike out where deeper water flows,
 And breast the stream with manly blows.

The shallows and the coves beware,
 Too many barques are broken there.
 The rocks and tangled branches lie
 To catch the driftwood floating by,
 But he who fights against the stream
 Some day shall reach his port of Dream.

The President's Message

By Pres. J. R. Overmiller

A man of days gone by said, "There is a time and a place for everything under the sun." It would seem then that the man is happy indeed who avails himself of the opportunity of doing or learning the right thing at the right time. I wish I might call the student's attention to the fact that there is no time better than the present to learn some of the fundamental principles of business success. Almost every year there is one or more members of the student group who has such a desire for things not his or her own that articles not under lock and key are not safe to their owners. These individuals are invariably found out before they leave school and a cloud hangs over their reputation.

There are others who can seldom respond intelligently to a teacher in recitation except he has his book open or some notes before him. Nor can they be trusted to work independently in the examination room unless the teacher is very near at hand. Such individuals may secure passing grades and as they go out from the school they want the institution to back them with a four square recommendation.

There are many students perfectly honest who have a misconception as to the need of meeting tuition obligations promptly. York College is not a financing corporation and it is not in a position to extend credit to students. It costs heavily to operate the institution and when all tuition is paid in full the expense is but a little more than a third met. The fact that a student's credit is good does not make it easy for the institution to extend credit on his tuition but it should make it possible for the student to go to his home bank or to his parents or some relative or friend and secure financial aid. Asking for credit at the treasurer's office of the college should be the last resort. Yes, credit has been extended to some who have been up against it hard, financially, and credit will no doubt be extended to some even yet but this same credit will be treated with the same straight forward methods which might be expected from any institution of trade or commerce.

Coming back to my text, "There is a time and a place for every thing under the sun". College days are good days to learn approved business and social principles.

A rather deaf old lady found herself sitting beside a physician at dinner. She asked: "Should I call you Dr. T. or Mr. T.?"

"Call me what you like, madam," he replied, and added genially: "Some of my friends call me an old fool."

"Ah," she rejoined, not hearing correctly what he had said, but anxious to be pleasant, "those are the people who know you intimately!"

COMING: ROBIN HOOD AND HIS MERRY MEN JAN. 30

"Practice at 11: 30 a. m. and 4: 30 p. m. Saturday—all be out!" Dean Amadon picks up his cane and hat and starts home, leaving the cast to breathe a laborious sigh and write on the clean page of their minds, "11: 30 a. m. and 4: 30 p. m. Saturday."

Practice for the opera, "Robin Hood," has been going on steadily for the last few weeks. If you will listen while passing the conservatory you will hear almost any time strains of "Farewell to Thee" being wafted out into the winter air. You can be sure the chorus is practicing and that something good is coming Jan. 30.

"Snap into it!... Front stage now... Off stage hand... Morris Dance... Keep still; We mean business, and not monkey business either..." Such fragments of sentences as these are frequent interjections into the practice until the cast even dream about practice! But, do they like it? Ask them.

Remember, "Robin Hood" will appear at the York theatre Jan. 30.

"The brush was all about me and from the position I was in I could not reload. He sprang upon me hitting me in the forehead with his heavy front paw. It dazed me for just a minute. We went down together and the battle was on. He was in an ugly rage. I used my hands on him as best I could. I had no pain, nor was there any fear in my mind save that I was aware of the fact, that the leopard is probably the most dreadful beast to encounter. He is generally considered the assassin of the cat family.

"I was up in a second. The hot blood streamed down my face over the left eye and cheek. Something seemed to tell me that I would bleed to death in a few minutes if I did not get it stopped at once. I put my left hand over the wound and stepped back. He was but a few feet away, seemingly being held back by Providence, looking at me and I watching him while I got out of sight to cover the wound with moth hands.

"The hunters ran away, as did all the others. I lost my gun, spectacles, and helmet in the struggle, while the native hunter made off with my shot gun. It all happened in a few minutes, and the leopard was killed two days afterwards, but not until he had mauled two other men of the band of hunters."

Dr. Connor secured the hide from the natives and dried it between the frequent African rains. He immediately sent it to York College, for whose use it has been tanned and made into a beautiful rug, which measures in length seven feet and six inches. Its presence in the Alumni Library should appropriately represent the sacrifices and perils that Dr. E. I. Connor, '22, and his wife, Eva Kerr Conner, '21, face in their daily round of duty.

ABOUT JOHN D.

The late William Rockefeller use to tell with delight a story illustrating the financial genius of his famous brother John. "When John was a little fellow, he would begin, "a so-called Indian Doctor" visited our town with a cure-all. The doctor, to get trade started, took out a bright new silver dollar and said he would auction it off.

'How much am I bid,' he said 'for this bright silver dollar?'

"But the crowd was cautious, silent, suspicious. No bids were made.

'How much am I bid?' shouted the Indian doctor. Come, come, gents! A nickel? A dime?'

'I bid a nickel,' piped John D. Rockefeller at last.

"The dollar is your's boy," said the doctor. 'Hand up your nickel.'

"Take it out of the dollar," piped little John D., 'and gimme 95 cents change.'

COTNER BULLDOGS BEST PANTHERS AT BETHANY

Stage Rally in Last Half and Beat York 45 to 38.

The "midget" Panthers dropped a hotly contested basketball game to the Cotner Bulldogs on the latter's floor Jan. 15, the score Cotner 45, York 38. Cotner led 22 to 19 at the half, but the game was in doubt until the very end.

During the second period the Bulldogs staged one of those famous last half rallies and widened the break in the score by a count of 45 to 30. It was then the Panthers' turn to rally, and they did, cutting the score down to eight points, but the game ended before they had a chance to overcome the Bulldog lead.

Kitchen and Haulman, Cotner forwards, carried away the high point honors of the evening with 14 counters each. As usual Creech and Gallant were outstanding for the Panthers, each getting 13 points for close second honors of the event.

HASTINGS COLLEGE DEFEATS COLLEGE PANTHERS 26 to 20

On Jan. 11 the York College Panthers were defeated at the hands of the strong Hastings basket flipping squad on the latter's floor. Score: 26 to 20.

The York squad showed more of the ability that should be shown in college circles and for the greater part of the game kept the ball in their possession, but were unable to find the basket enough.

Creech of the Panther squad was high point man of the game, annexing 11 points to the total score of the Panthers' column. Due to his withdrawal because of four personal fouls, the scoring ability of the Panthers was handicapped.

Bruntz and Bivens for the Bronchos were the high point men of the Hastings squad. They were each struggling for second honors with seven points apiece.
