

MISS EVELYN M'KAIN PRESENTED IN HER GRADUATE RECITAL

Assisted by the Misses Marian Hill and Vivian Nordland, Both Pianists

The York college conservatory of music presented Miss Evelyn McKain, soprano, in a voice recital on Wednesday evening, December 6, at the United Brethren church. Miss McKain, whose home is at Pickrel, is a senior in York college, and has been active in music circles, being both an accomplished pianist and vocalist. Assisting Miss McKain were Miss Marian Hill, senior, from Dennis, Kansas, and Miss Vivian Nordland, Stromsburg, both pianists.

Miss McKain in the rendition of her numbers revealed a voice of natural beauty, which showed careful training, both on the part of herself and her instructor, Dean Amadon. Outstanding qualities apparent in all her groups of selections were her pleasing interpretation, good intonation, clear enunciation and her purity and accuracy of tone at all times. Not only did Miss McKain render a musically difficult program well, but she also pleased her hearers by her gracious stage presence. Although the audience appreciated all her numbers, it seemed to enjoy particularly Brewer's "Fairy Pipers," which displayed the vocalist's ability in singing series of high notes, easily and rapidly.

Mention of the program would not be complete without saying a word concerning the assisting pianists, who are pupils of Miss Eda Rankin. Miss Hill as accompanist gave splendid support to Miss McKain, and surmounted in a very creditable fashion the technical difficulties of her solo number. Miss Nordlund's group of piano selections were all well played and she especially displayed her pianistic skill to the best advantage in Brahms's "Rhapsody in G Minor."

The program for the evening was:

HILL, HICE HONORED IN STATE CONTEST

Win Second and Third Places in Oratorical Contest

Two York college contestants received places in the state oratorical contest held at Doane college on Dec. 8. Miss Marian Hill was awarded second place in the women's division. She spoke on "Food for Power". William Hice was awarded third place in the men's division. His topic was entitled "Lilliputians and Broddingnags". Participants were the creators of their own speeches.

Third place in the women's division went to Mildred Schaeffer of Wayne. Second place in the men's division went to Mel McCowan of Hastings college.

Y. C. BOOSTER CLUB GAINING MOMENTUM

Interest in Club Is Much Stronger
Reports Indicate

The York College Booster Club movement is going stronger throughout the York College territory than in any previous year. Reports are coming from many pastors of local churches that Booster Clubs are being organized and the names of presidents are being reported. The first membership fee sent in came from Miss Goldie Rust, President of the York College Booster Club of the Little Beaver Church on the Athol Circuit, of the Kansas Conference.

The finest report thus far of memberships with a pledge of fees is from the Rev. Hayes Walker of Clayton, Kansas. This report came in two weeks ago and indicated already that over half the goal was reached for the local church.

It is the effort this year of the church leaders and the college administration to interest every church of the district in creating York College Booster Club which will contribute a minimum of $1.00 for each of the four members of the local church. Many churches will reach this quota. The only question is, how many churches will go into action with real interest to this end? President Overmiller is very anxious that each pastor appoint his Y. C. B. C. President and report the name to the college at once.

France Is Toured by Zetas Members

The Zetas' tour of Europe is nearly ended, there being only one more stop to make, which will be in Italy. The program on December 5 was centered on France.

Victor Robbins told about the French vineyards which are very numerous, and a flute solo, entitled "Mignon", was played by Harold Burhoop. Leola Craig summarized the life of Victor Hugo, a noted French Novelist. A humorous feature, "Heard in a Paris Cafe", was presented by Beryl Smith, and the extempo "French menu, versus American appetites" was given by Walter Speece.

Wilma Bond substituted as chaplain for Frances Kimball and Carroll Myers acted as critic.

Y. C. EDUCATION DAY TO BE OBSERVED SOON

President Overmiller Is Working Hard on Plans

The church leaders of the York College territory are developing very definite plans for the observance of Education Day on February 11. It church in the district will give much attention to the cause of Christian Education, with special attention to the matter of training for leadership. President Overmiller is preparing helps in the way of information, short plays, and suggestive programs to be given in the various churches featuring York College. It is expected that many churches will provide a liberal offering at this time for the support of our institution.

The General Board of Christian Education, under the leadership of Dr. O. T. Deever, Secretary of the Board, is giving very much attention to the development of these plans. It is to be a day of recognition for all United Brethren educational institutions with united effort for their support in what is hoped to be one great offering. York College students can help encourage this effort by writing letters to their home pastors or church leaders in the interest of this event and York College.

Wilbur Overmiller, son of President J. R. Overmiller of York college, was elected captain of the York high school football team for 1934. Overmiller is a junior and has played two years of consistent football. He is recognized as one of the outstanding centers in the Mid-State league.

STUDENTS INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE WRECK

Lucille Westwood and Harry Stephenson Victims

Miss Lucille Westwood of Waco, a junior and Harry Stephenson of Fairmont, a sophomore, were seriously injured in an automobile accident about a half mile east of Waco on the evening of December 9. The car in which the young people were riding crashed into a farm tractor which had been left standing in the road. Blinding lights of a car which he was meeting caused Stephenson to fail to see the tractor which had been apparently abandoned for the night.

Reports received today (Tuesday) indicate that Miss Westwood received severe internal injuries, a fractured jaw, severe cuts and bruises. "Steve" suffered a severe bruise and dislocation of his right hip, and a number of severe lacerations and body bruises. He has been placed in a cast which he will have to endure for several weeks.

The Sandhurr joins with their many friends in wishing them a rapid and complete recovery.

Y. W. REPRESENTATIVES PRESENT Y. M. PROGRAM

"Ladies' Ideas of Gentlemen"
Is Subject of Talks

"Ladies' Ideas of Gentlemen" was the subject of several talks given by representatives of the Y. W. C. A. who presented a program at the weekly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. on December 5.

Belva Blakely played Palmgren's "May Night" as a prelude and devotions were directed by Neva Fellman. Evelyn McKain sang the "Bird Song at Eventide".

Lucille Evans was the first speaker. She told "what I expect of a gentleman intellectually". "He need not be a genius", she said, "but should be able to do his own thinking. He must have a life profession—something in view. He must be optimistic about life. Above all, he must be courteous". Miss Evans, in this connection, gave several important rules of etiquette which young men should regard. She closed her talk by saying that a well-rounded education is necessary to back up these qualities.

"Character in gentlemen" was dealt with by Frances Kimball. Some of the characteristics she would have in men are: moral stability, and Christian principles strong enough to enable them to live up to what they think is right. They must be determined, not easily satisfied, masculine—and yet, not brutes; courteous, dependable, broadminded, of pleasing personality, sympathetic, and kind.

Evelyn Dixon told what she expected of men in regard to manners and conduct. She gave the history of the term "etiquette", stating that it originated with Louis XIV, who had a beautiful garden through which people were wont to trespass and so he put up a "keep out" sign, which he called an "etiquette." Miss Dixon would have her ideal gentleman be plain and informal in manner. She stated that she believed college girls were reasonable in their demands of the opposite sex. Some other good thoughts were that "manners are too superficial but can well be used to adorn character. Ethics is the foundation of etiquette and good taste is the rest."

The meeting was closed with "taps", sung by Jane Caldwell.

FOOTBALL BANQUET ATTENDED BY MANY STUDENTS, FRIENDS

Panther Sweetheart Revealed for 1933 in the Person of Miss Lila Elam

The York college annual football banquet was held Friday evening, Dec. 8, at the York United Brethren church honoring Coach Guy O. Ordway and nineteen lettermen. Approximately one hundred and thirty-five students, faculty members, and college backers were in attendance. Among the out of town guests were, Willis Young, a former York college student as well as a former Sandhurr editor, and at present a news reporter for a Lincoln paper; Gregg McBride, popular Lincoln Sports writer, who delivered the principal address of the evening; and Dr. Groom of Lincoln, a friend of Mr. McBride's who spoke a few words. Dr. Groom is an old acquaintance of Coach Guy Ordway, both men having played football at Drake university, while attending there.

A special feature of this year's banquet was the choosing by the football squad of a Panther Sweetheart having the qualities of character, scholastic ability, personality and spirit, and also of a representative man of the squad, both of whom were to give toasts at the banquet. The names of the respective persons were withheld until they were called upon to give their toasts. Miss Lila Elam, a junior from Elba, Nebraska, was disclosed as the Panther Sweetheart while Jack Graham, York junior, a speedy team quarterback, was the team's representative. Miss Elam very graciously exemplified team spirit, and Mr. Graham cleverly stressed cooperation.

The program and decorations were formidably worked out to personify "A Trip". The banquet hall was bedecked with traffic signs and signals. The menu was characterized by "mechanical terms" and the program consisted of appropriate topics to carry the theme, "A Trip". The tables were arranged in a great block "Y". The toast list is as follows: Toastmaster, Tom King; Athletics, Coach Ordway; Team Work, Jack Graham, (football representative); Rooters, Irvin Lewis; Inspiration, Evelyn Dixon; Praise, Lila Elam (Panther Sweetheart). Vocal numbers were contributed by John Boren, soloist, and the Senior quartette. Miss Evelyn McKain played the accompaniments.

CHRISTMAS OR "XMAS"

Many of us, in trying to keep our life speedometers up to par, haven't time to write the word "Christmas." Instead, we write "Xmas." Now we know that learned men of various and sundry occupations and habitations tell us that "X" stands for the unknown quantity.

The spirit of Christmas includes that feeling of brotherhood, of sacrifice, of peace, yes, all of the splendid practical principles of that man in whose memory we keep this holiday. So isn't it a bit inconsistent that we term Him the unknown, thus detracting any and all meanings from the word "Christmas?" Shall we take Christ out of Christmas? It's worth thinking about, don't you think?

A FRESHMAN'S IDEA OF COLLEGE

People have often asked me what course I am taking or what I expect to become when I have finished college. Some of them look at me in astonishment when I tell them that I do not know. I fully realize that a great number of students enter college with their minds made up as to just what they are going to become. They likely have in mind a certain profession such as that of a doctor, a druggist, or a lawyer. Aside from my childhood ambitions I have decided upon no particular profession for which I wish to train myself.

When I entered college this fall I came with the idea that I wanted to learn as much as I could about anything that would do me good in later life. I did not want to waste my time studying to become a doctor, a druggist, or a lawyer. I wanted to learn anything that would broaden my mind relative to the problems I must meet in life. I wanted the culture, the friendships, and the refinement which one gets from a Christian college. I came with the idea that I could make myself a better person. I want to understand the problems of the world and how to solve them. I do not want to become a man skilled in just one line of work. I want to be of value and service to my friends and to the country in which I live.

When I leave college I hope to have enough training that I may go on through the rest of my life as a success. I hope to be a leader and helper among other people, one who is just a little above the common ordinary person.

THE PASSION TO KNOW

Not every person is endowed with the passion to know more than is necessary for the sustenance of life. Some of us search for knowledge only as far as it affects our immediate well-being. We are willing to exert ourselves to learn a trade; but aside from that, we feel no urge to investigate any source of information. Even minds with brilliant possibilities often lack that curiosity to discover the value of unknown things.

Living now in Estes Park, Colorado, is a woman who was denied any especial kind of scholastic learning in her childhood. She had been engaged many years in publishing a small country newspaper on the plains of Eastern Colorado and for some years had been the postmistress there. Her life differed none from that of her neighbors and friends. But because this woman had an urge to know, she pursued a hobby for many years which was ultimately to bring her renown among biologists. She made a collection of spiders which was the envy of the etomologist and is frequently consulted by authorities engaged in research.

In the fifty years which she is said to have devoted to spiders, strictly as a recreation, there must have been many times when the study and research proved a comfort and provided relaxation.

The result of indulging in the passion to know is not in some brilliant discovery or achievement at the end of a long period; it is found in the constant satisfaction it affords. All of this is the outcome and reward from the utilization of leisure time in investigation rather than idleness.

Thus students in college should take stock of their mental possessions and see if they can possibly be numbered among those who have a passion to know.

WHY I'M BUYING A MARATHON

Now is the happiest time of my life. Things happen everyday which I'll always hold as pleasant memories. What will I do when college days are over and I'm separated from the friends who have become dear to me. What will I do? I'll sit down by the fire and pick up the Marathon of thirty-four and live again those happy days of long ago.

I'll sit and dream and as I look through the old book, which is now one of my dearest possessions, I'll be in a "pep" rally cheering for the coach, the team, and York college, or I'll be at the Frosh-Upperclass football game, or maybe in English class as Miss Lundman tells us the assignment is to write a theme or an editorial for our next lesson. And then as I think of the graduation and the June Festival, I needs must close the book quickly lest a tear spoil one of its pages.

No, there's nothing like getting down an old annual and talking things over with the gang. And as I look at the pictures of upperclassmen, I recall that this one told me how to find Miss Wakelin's room, and this one how to check books from the library,

PROF. DOTY TALKS AT CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

"The Soft Spot," a novel by Robert Hutchinson, was reviewed by Prof. E. I. Doty at the Christian Endeavor meeting on Sunday evening, Nov. 26. About fifty young people were present.

The story, which has its setting in England, is an excellent study of character, and as summarized by Prof. Doty, is as follows: A young man named Stephen Wayne had what the author termed a "soft spot". That is, several important characteristics were entirely lacking in young Wayne's life. Self-reliance and the mercy of God were the principal ones. Stephen wouldn't face hard work and in time of trouble, he used someone else for a "crutch." This one point his school teacher hadn't discovered, although she did realize the existence of the "soft spot". As time went on, Stephen began accepting bribes from dishonest customers of his employer. The wrongs, of course, were covered up and no trouble ever came from them but nevertheless, they were exerting a powerful influence on the character and life of this young man.

Before long, Stephen Wayne established his own independent business as an architect. A large public project was on foot but Stephen didn't even get a "smell" of it because the promoters knew he wasn't reliable. Stephen got "sore" and went to a friend about it, who wisely advised him to forget it.

A half brother by the name of Maxwell, who, by the way, had set Stephen up in his business, was sent to Peru on business occasionally. Maxwell was reliable and a fully respectable fellow who had prospered very well. He had purchased an estate in England from a group of men who had as their motto "Without Fear". This estate increased Stephen's greed and he wondered how he might come into possession of it.

Soon afterward, Stephen got discouraged, sold out what business he had established and began "bumming". At this same time, a report came out that Maxwell had been lost at sea. Stephen began a supposedly affectionate search for him, got false proof of Maxwell's death, destroyed his will which one of the searching party had found in a marsh, and returned to England where he met Maxwell face to face. Stephen played innocent of all he had done but was constantly left out of Maxwell's circle of friends.

Previous to Maxwell's wedding day, a big hunt was scheduled in which Stephen nearly met death but did not hesitate to let Maxwell ride into the same death trap. Soon afterwards, the widow of Maxwell drowned and her son was picked up by a peddler.

Years later, Stephen married but was so unhappy that he left home. He met a beautiful woman, who after drowning herself because of him, left a note for him, telling him to return to London and look for a Sim Paris. Stephen did so and after a long time found a travelling preacher in a wagon. This man had a good character and was very earnest. The two joined hands and traveled the roads of England together.

The thing from which Stephen had been fleeing all these years was gone. The mercies of God had put him on the right track. As the story closed, Stephen gave up his life in order to find the will that the son of his half brother might receive the property which rightfully was his.

and others showed me other courtesies. Then, too, wrapped closely in this Treasure, (maybe some don't even see them), are loyalty, class honor, friendliness, fellowship, and understanding.

So here's to York college, its sponsors, its students, and spirit, and here's to my Treasure which is now a part of my heart.

U. B. Missionaries Describe African Life to Students

Rev. and Mrs. Harlan Thomas
Visit York College While on Furlough

Rev. and Mrs. Harlan Thomas, United Brethren Missionaries at Honga, Sierra Leone, West Africa, spent several days on the York College campus during the past week in which they addressed the students on various phases of their work in the missionary field. The district of Sierra Leone is the allotted division of the United Brethren missionary work in Africa.

Until several years ago Mr. and Mrs. Thomas were associated with Dr. Edwin Connor in the work. Dr. Connor is an alumnus of York college, and for many years was the superintendent of the Sierra Leone district. He was forced to return to the United States because of illness, and Mr. Thomas took over the work and with the aid of Mrs. Thomas has carried it forward. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are also alumni of the York college institution, having been graduated some years ago from Campbell college of the merged Kansas City district.

In addition to addressing the students at the regular chapel service on Monday, Dec. 11, Rev. Thomas spoke at the Life Work Recruit Organization's meeting and at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Dec. 12. He also described various phases of African religion for the Comparative Religions class. Mrs. Thomas spoke to the Y. W. During their stay in York, the Thomases were scheduled to speak before the local United Brethren church and several others of the surrounding territory.

During their long years of work in the Sierra Leone district, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas report that the negro barbarism has and is gradually receding in favor of a more Christ-like civilization, and are confident that with due support and time the greater part of this vast district can be brought under that standard of living.

Y. M. C. A. PRESENTS PROGRAM AT Y. W. C. A. Stress Their Ideas of Qualities of a York College Lady

"Standards for Women of York College" was the theme of a program presented at the regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A., Dec. 5, by a group of the Y. M. C. A. members.

A committee meeting was staged with John Boren acting as chairman. The problem of drawing up a set of standards for a "York College Lady" was the matter under discussion. As a prelude to their business, Raymond Wochner paid tribute to mothers in the selection "Little Mother of Mine." Talks on the subject were presented by Irvin Lewis, Ormal Tack, Floyd Merchant, and Raymond Wochner. The "Serenaders" contributed a number.

The secretary, Milton Maurer, read a series of resolutions at the conclusion of the meeting which was accepted unanimously by the committee. The standards as adopted were:

"We, a committee selected by the Y. M. C. A. of York College, have met for the purpose of drawing up a set of standards which we believe any woman on the campus should attain to be worthy of the title, "A York College Lady" and do hereby submit the following report of our findings: First: That there shall be no standard of achievement set for a 'York College Lady' that is higher than a like standard for a York College Gentleman. That is, there shall be no double standard in York College.

Second, that a 'York College Lady' shall not be expected to achieve the highest and latest in fashion but that she shall be neat rather than untidy; modestly rather than conspicuously dressed.

Third: That a 'York College Lady' shall suit her actions to commonly accepted conventions. She shall be modest, and not intolerant; friendly but not forward.

Fourth, That a 'York College Lady' shall have ambition. She shall have a goal or a standard toward which she constantly strives, assisted by those womanly qualities before mentioned.

Fifth, That, since the highest tribute a man can pay to a woman is the proffering of his love, a 'York College Lady' should avoid all those things which will interfere with the realization of that tribute."

Ormal Tack First in Public Speaking Meet

Ormal Tack was awarded first place in a recent public speaking contest held in the public speaking class of fifteen members under the direction of Miss Alma Tress Lundman, head of the Expression department. The speeches all were centered about Christmas. Miss Enolia Bond was awarded second place and Beryl Smith, third. The class acted as judges.

THOMAS DISCUSSES WORLD FELLOWSHIP

A discussion of Africa and the African World Fellowship project was directed by the Rev. Harlan Thomas, Campbell '11, on a furlough from the U. B. mission field in West Africa, at Y. M. on Dec. 12.

Rev. Thomas centered his remarks on questions of the group. He described the duties of the present student representative in Africa and explained that sufficient assistance has made it possible for a teacher to specialize in one or two lines. Miss Helen Cole, Otterbein College, the present U. B. student rep., teaches Domestic Science which affords her closer contact with native ways of living.

Other discussions included African music, military efforts, courts, language, and climatic conditions.

'Tis reported that Rod Whitmore has gone in for the depression in a big way. He appeared in Sociology class Friday morning wearing one blue sock and one red sock. Perhaps Rod and Schoenthal got mixed up slightly when groping around in the dark at the early hour of 10:00 a. m.

OVERHEARD IN THE "CON" RECEPTION ROOM: Hawley, (apparently offering consolation to Howard Caldwell): "Well, remember, it is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all."

Some enterprising freshman asks if Prof. Hill is starting a circus, or a side show of some kind. He recently spent a few minutes in a "Zoo" Lab. of Prof's. and was startled when Prof. addressed his victims thus, "Parmecium" Sullivan, "Lily" Lewis, "Flea-brain" McCoy, "Flathead" Thomas, "Tarzan" Hawley, and Dean "Squirt" Kimball.

In speaking of the ultramodern young woman, it is no longer up-to-date to use the term "flapper". They are now called "Easter Eggs", because they are hand painted on the outside and hard-boiled on the inside.

Ordway: "Do you know why they call our language the Mother Tongue?"

Franz: I'll bite.
Ordway: Because father never gets a chance to use it.

What makes a nicer Christmas gift than a tie and handkerchief set from Russ Williams? You're right—two sets.

Cagesters to Open Season at Seward With Concordia

Captain Bob Moline, Franz, and Norwood Are the Only Veterans Reporting

Coach Guy Ordway and his hoopsters open the basketball season December 16 with Concordia Teachers at Seward. Seven home games and five away from home have been scheduled. It is expected that about six more games will be added later.

Twenty-seven team aspirants, including three lettermen, have reported for practice. Bob Moline, captain, "Bud" Franz, guard, and Wayne Norwood, forward are the three lettermen who are expected to provide the nucleus for the team. Freshmen coming with good high school records and showing up well in practice include Bill Thomas, Harold Riggs, Ed Schoenthal, Dale Adams, and Ralph Sittler.

STEVE SAYS

"Steve", the Sandburr Sport Writer, makes known his choice for an all-conference football team in the following column.

In picking an all-conference team from the N. C. A. C., I am trying to show as much liberty and freedom of recognition as possible. I have made my choices from the standpoint of both defensive and offensive ability as displayed in conference competition.

The bids for the end positions were numerous. Although he played on a cellar team this year, I place Kobes of Doane who was an all-conference end last year. However, the fact that he was an all-conference man from last year has no bearing on my selecting him this year. Kobes was possibly the best pass receiver in the conference, both his offensive and defensive ability being outstanding. At the other end we find Davis of Midland who has been outstanding this year. Not only was his height an advantage but he was a fine blocker and a bearcat on defense.

Ends deserving honorable mention are Wilson, Midland; Shuman, Wesleyan, and Ayers, York.

After looking over the tackles, I would give Johnson of Wesleyan and Bosserman of Hastings the call. Both are big and fast charging. Johnson, in addition to his line play, is an accurate placekicker and a powerful line plunger.

Honorable mention goes to Lyman, Midland; Lewis, York, and Engel, Midland.

Guards hold down a tough spot in the line and are seldom heard from except on blocking assignments. This year, two guards have been outstanding. Ender of York and Burkholder of Midland. Ender is a fast charger and an accurate blocker. He has ability to diagnose opponent's plays and has proved himself dangerous in every conference game. Burkholder is likewise a hard, accurate blocker and a fine defensive man.

Other outstanding guards of the conference were, Stone, Doane; Knudsen and Parsons, Hastings; and Smith, Wesleyan.

Good centers were scarce this year. None were outstanding and none exceptionally poor. King, Wesleyan, gets my ballot. He has the ability to pull from the line and protect on pass defense. Honorable mention goes to Logan of Hastings.

There are several outstanding backfield men in the conference this year. At quarter back I place Nelson, Midland, the leading scorer of the conference. Both his offensive and defensive play have been spectacular.

At the halfback posts we find Moline of York and Holm of Hastings.

Moline is rated one of the best punters in the conference, is a hard line plunger and a good passer. Holm has been the sparkplug of the Hastings backfield.

The fullback assignment is held by Somerhalder of Wesleyan. He is one of the shiftest backs of the conference. He is an accurate passer, a good punter, and a neat blocker. Maurer of York would have run him a close race for this post, had he been able to carry the ball more consistently. Maurer is one of the fastest men in the conference when it comes to backing up the line. Honorable mention backs include, Chase, Hastings; Graham, York; Ellison, Midland; Barrett, Wesleyan; Bennett, Doane; Roether, Midland; Alexander, Hastings; Norwood, York.

My Pick for the All-Conference Team:

Name and position	College
Kobes, le	Doane
Johnson, lt	Wesleyan
Ender, lg	York
King, c	Wesleyan
Burkholder, rg	Midland
Bosserman, rt	Hastings
Davis, re	Midland
Nelson, qb	Midland
Moline, rh	York
Holm, lh	Hastings
Somerhalder, fb	Wesleyan

Hoffman at Tackle on Reck's All-Star Conference Eleven

Norwood, Moline, Ender, Lewis Ayres and Graham Receive Due Recognition

Seven York college football players received places on W. Emerson Reck's All-Conference squad. Reck, N. C. A. C. statistician, released his selections last week. He placed Tennis Hoffman at first team left tackle. Hoffman, he says, not only played a consistent defensive game but received his rating because of his offensive work. Dave Ender, guard, Wayne Norwood, quarterback and Bob Moline, fullback received berths on Reck's second team. Honorable mention was given to Leroy Ayers, end, Russel Lewis, tackle, and Jack Graham, who was classed as a halfback.

Members of the first team are listed as follows: Ends, Tully, Hastings, and Wilson, Midland; tackles, Bosserman, Hastings, and Hoffman, York; guards, Jones, Midland, and Parsons, Hastings; center, Beckenhauer, Midland; quarterback, Alexander, Hastings; halves, Somerhalder, Wesleyan, and Nelson, Midland; fullback, Chase, Hastings. Somerhalder, outstanding player of the league was selected for the captaincy.

The second team is comprised of: Ends, Kobes, Doane and Ron Shuman, Wesleyan; tackles, Lyman and Engel, Midland; guards, W. Stone, Doane, and Ender, York; center, King Wesleyan; quarterback, Norwood, York; halves, Holm, Hastings, and Bennett, Doane, and fullback, Moline, York.
