Leaming Characterizes African Man In Chapel Speech On Africa

Describes Explains
Life On Dark Continent

First hand information about the African and his country was presented to the students and faculty as Vaughn Leaming, senior of Woodward, Iowa, spoke during the chapel period December 9.

For the past two years, Leaming has served as a member of the faculty of the Albert Academy, Sierra Leone, West Africa.

"The African thinks of God as an evil spirit that hurts him and afflicts him with diseases," said Leaming in describing the African, "and it is for that reason that their representations of God are hideous." He went on to say, "The African is extremely emotional; when he is sad, he is very sad; and when he is happy, he is extremely so. Although the life of slavery is hard, the African is still patient and jovial. Outstanding is the obedience and respect found in the African home and their spirit of friendliness."

Leaming stated further that many of the Africans work for as little as ten to twenty-five cents a day, while others may earn no more than five dollars in a year. They have to pay taxes to a foreign government for land which is their own. Wives are bought, the price varying from five dollars to five-hundred dollars, and their task is to labor and to bear children. The women usually live longer than the men because they work harder. The African child craves an education so that he may have a chance to be more than a farmer. One out of every one hundred receives the chance to attend school and only one out of every four hundred has the opportunity to go to high school.

In closing, Leaming gave expression to a "dream". He quoted the scripture which states, "the

Group Singing
Precedes Performance

A one-act play, "The Stranger On Christmas Eve", was presented by the Histrionic Club on December 17, at the joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. Preceding the play, Bertha Riggs, senior of Merville, Iowa, led in group singing of the Christmas carol, "Hark, The Herald Angels Sing."

The singing of "Silent Night, Holy Night", made an effective closing for the message presented by the play.

COLLEGE CHURCH HAS FATHER-SON DINNER; STUDENTS ON PROGRAM

Health Is Subject As Local Nurse Talks To Y. W. C. A.

"Health means wholeness, the working together of all the parts of the body", declared Mrs. M. Thompson, nurse at the York Clinic, who addressed the Y. W. C. A. December 3, on the subject of "Personal Health".

Devotions were in charge of Helen Lumbus, senior of Waterloo, Iowa, who read verses of scripture which paid respect to the nurse as God's helper. Doris Landon, junior of Russell, Kansas, led in group singing.

Mrs. Thompson stressed the importance of physical well-being as a foundation for mental, moral, and spiritual success.

Histrionic Play Tells Story of College Life

By Charles Hurley
Interspersed with much comedy relief in the characters of Little Lucy Robbins (Frances Bullock, junior, York) and Grandmother Campbell (Amy Speece, senior, York), Tacie Hanna Rew's three act comedy-drama, "When Stars Shine", provided sparkling entertainment as well as a lesson for an appreciative audience at the high school auditorium, Tuesday, December 10.

The presentation by the York college players under the direction of Miss Alma Tress Lundman, dramatics instructor, related all of the trials and tribulations of three college freshmen, Barbara Merrill (Carmen Ware, sophomore, Des Moines), Gene Robbins (Deane Tack, sophomore, Harlan, Kansas), and Jotty Barnes (Bill White, junior, Des Moines).

It was the ambition of the pulchritudinous Barbara to be wherever "a star was shining", and that ambition was fulfilled by means of her "steady", Gene. However, the difficulty arose when Jotty was chosen by the coach to take Gene's position on the football team.

After much conniving in order to uphold her standards, Barbara was deserted by both of these boys, but was approached by the swaggering laugh-provoking Carter Lawrence (M. Oswald, junior, Aurora), who told Barbara in a frank manner, "I understand your game and would like to play it with you." Taking into consideration Carter's new car, Barbara decided to play the game with him.

Grandmother Campbell, who had a complex against football and foolishness, became fascinated by the way college taught students to treat Kipling's two imposters, Triumph and Disaster, and decided to send her grand-daughter, Peggy White (Mary Lue Warner, senior, Kalispell, Montana), Jotty's best girl, to college.

Religion Must Be Progressive, Bisset Tells Recruits

Emphasis upon religion as a progressive force was the keynote of an address by Dr. Charles Bisset, professor of history and sociology, given at the Life Work Recruits' meeting of December 4.

"All religions start at the same place, but some move forward faster than others and grow as they must if they are to be vital and real," Dr. Bisset stated. "Jesus was a heretic in the eyes of the Jews. We must not always conform to customs but sometimes move out ahead of the crowd," he added.

Amadon, Clark Are Directors

Dean Amadon, Chorus

Mrs. Clark, Ensemble

Carrying out an annual tradition, Dean Charles Amadon, Dean of Hulitt Conservatory, directed 100 voices composed of The York College Chorus and other local singers in the presentation of Handel's "Messiah", Sunday afternoon, December 15, at the United Brethren Church.

The chorus was accompanied by Miss Eda Rankin, organist, and the string ensemble under the direction of Mrs. Muriel Thomas Clark. Soloists and their numbers were: Alfred Kamm, senior, Platte Center, who sang "Thus Saith the Lord" and "But Who May Abide the Day of His Coming?"; Martha Tucker, freshman, Great Bend, Kansas, sang "Behold! A Virgin Shall Conceive", and "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion"; Lodema Frieden, senior, Shickley, "There Were Shepherds Abiding in the Field," "And Lo! The Angel of the Lord Came Upon Them", "And the Angel Said Unto Them", "And Suddenly There Was With the Angel"; Bertha Riggs, senior, Merville, Iowa, "Rejoice Greatly, O Daughter of Zion"; Jane Caldwell, York, "Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind be Opened" and "He Shall Feed His Flock Like a Shepherd"; Gertrude Lindstrom, student in voice, Gresham, "Come Unto Him"; Deane Tack, sophomore, Gaylord, Kansas, "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart", and "Behold, And See if There Be Any Sorrow"; James Koontz, junior, Des Moines, "Why Do the Nations So Furiously Rage Together?"; and Catherine Woollever, junior, York, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth".

IOWANS VISIT HOME

Four Iowa Students, Maxine Hoover, Dallas Center, Virginia Hinkle, Cambridge, and William White, and James Koontz of Des Moines, spent the week-end of November 30 visiting at their homes.

The York College Ensemble under the direction of Mrs. Muriel Thomas Clarke and the York College Chorus directed by Dean Charles Amadon, presented a program before the Fine Arts Society on Sunday afternoon, December 8, at the United Brethren Church.

The ensemble gave as their numbers: "Two Finnish Folk Songs" by Novacek, "Romance and Tambourine" by Weckerlin, and "Pavane and Choral" by Wacks.

The chorus numbers were "The Ship" by Booth, "Old Mother Hubbard" (set in the manner of Handel) by Victor Hely-Hutchinson, and "The Seraphic Song" by Rubinstein. Martha Tucker, freshman of Great Bend, Kansas, sang the contralto solo in "The Seraphic Song," and Doris Landon, junior of Russell, Kansas, played the violin obligato. Catherine Woollever, junior, York, was the accompanist.

Men Discuss War, Hear Doctor Harry At Y. M. Meetings

The problem, "What should be the Christian's attitude toward war," was discussed pro and con during the regular meeting of the Y. M. C. A. December 10. Russell Dunlop, junior, York, was asked to bring out the pacifist side in a three minutes summary. He stated that war is never right, no matter what happens. Vaughn Leaming, senior, Woodward, Iowa, was asked to bring out the side of participation if necessary. Then a general discussion was held.

One interesting story was told about several Japanese men who had become Christians and had to go to China to fight for their native land. They were such good Christians they wouldn't kill; so in battle they threw down their arms and permitted themselves to be killed.

Tom Zike, freshman, Moravia, Iowa, played a trombone solo accompanied by Bruce Herrick, freshman, Topeka, Kansas.

At this meeting a membership drive was held and pledges of money were received for the year.

Dr. Harry Speaks
"A medical student has one chance in 50 of obtaining a job as a permanent practitioner in an intern hospital", said Dr. R. E. Harry, local physician, who spoke to the Y. M. C. A. men December 3.

According to the speaker, requirements for entering medical college vary from 60 college hours to a liberal arts college degree. Most states require one year of general internship before permit-

Gospel Teams Give Services At Four Churches

Services were given in four different church by two gospel teams sponsored by the York College Life Work Recruits during the week end of December 7 and 8.

One group consisting of Ruth Brandstetter, junior of Muscatine, Iowa; Al Zerwekh, junior of Des Moines, Ia.; Charles Scott sophomore of Leocompton, Kansas; Clarence Carlson, senior of Fremont, and Dorothy Jean and Lillian Sadoris, sophomores of York, had charge of services at the churches at Chase, Crete, and Lamar.

They left York on Saturday and returned Sunday, driving a distance of 645 miles. Clarence Carlson preached at Crete, and Charles Scott preached at Chase and Lamar. Ruth Brandstetter talked about the African project, Al Zerwekh sang a solo, and Lillian Sadoris gave a musical reading with Dorothy Jean Sadoris accompanying at the piano.

The other group, which consisted of Margaret Bollinger, freshman of Robinson, Kansas; Stine Douglas, sophomore of Beech, North Dakota; Blanch Leach, sophomore of Clarks; L. Boilesen, freshman of Cotesfield; Esther Johnson, sophomore of Merna; and Elwyn Phillips, sophomore of Merna, presented the Sunday evening service at the Methodist church at Bradshaw. The sermon was given by Stine Douglas, Blanch Leach read the scripture, Lester Boilesen led in prayer, and Esther Johnson sang a solo with Elwyn Phillips playing the piano.

Student Looks At False Gods In Christmas Season

Do you think, gentle reader, that the altars of Moloch and Baal have all been destroyed or that the "high places," where priests of the Most High offer sacrifices that are an abomination to Him, have all been thrown down? Do you think that the worship of Mars passed with the Cæsars of ancient Rome? Or do you believe that, because we sing Christmas carols and bow at the altars of churches, pagan faiths are dead? Are you one of the host who think that the religious philosophies of old decayed with the ruins of the Pantheon?

No, the nations are polytheistic still. Men bow, even today, at heathen shrines in the temple of the heart. They offer sacrifices of human life upon the blood-drenched altars of tribal and national gods. Or they defy animalistic passions and surrender virtue and integrity to these idols. Paganism, even in the twentieth century of the Christian era, stalks mankind, slays man's soul, rav-

The young women's class of the local United Brethren Sunday School was entertained with a Christmas party at the home of President and Mrs. D. E. Weidler.

Marie Petit, Niles, Kansas, led a brief devotional service. Virginia Hinkle, Cambridge, Iowa, read "The Man Who Found Christmas." Bertha Riggs, Merville, Iowa, sang "Angels from the Realm of Glory." A legend of Christmas was presented by a group of girls.

Games and the singing of Christmas carols were followed by refreshments. Santa Claus distributed treats to all.

Each girl brought a gift to the party to be sent to the children in the Otterbein Home, Lebanon, Ohio.

ages his ideals, and threatens to lay low his civilization.

How long, oh, how long, before all the wise of the earth shall bow in sincere devotion before the Child of Bethlehem? When will all the humble of this world at last hear the glad news that Christ is come? When will Christ's altar be the only altar and the Christian faith the only faith?

We do well to pause and think upon these things this Christmas season while millions feast and sing, and other millions hate, and kill, and starve.

Dotys Are Hosts To Y. C. Faculty

A lighted Christmas tree and other seasonal decorations made the home of Professor and Mrs. E. I. Doty an appropriate setting for the Christmas party held by the York College faculty on Monday evening, December 16.

If it had been a group of college students instead of the faculty, the evening's entertainment would have been called a "bull-session." A gift exchange added to the Christmas spirit. Refreshments were served.

In charge of plans for the evening were Dr. and Mrs. E. I. Doty, Prof. and Mrs. J. C. Morgan, Prof. and Mrs. W. C. Noll, Miss Mary Alice Slee, and Miss Irene Foster.

STUDENTS HAVE CHARGE OF CHURCH SERVICE

Floyd N. Richert, senior, Baker, Montana, preached at the local Presbyterian Church on December 15. WE ARE BLIND

By Edward Auchard

Oh, we are blind who hurry so And fret no matter where we go. We run to where we're going; then We turn and scurry home again. In all our haste we fail to see The beauty God placed here that we Might more than live by loving life, Find inner calm amid life's strife. We do not see God's finger trace In snow upon the good earth's face His signature, or see the blue Of heav'n above, or drops of dew Transformed to diamonds by the sun.

We fail to see what God has done. Above us in the night the stars March past, but all our business bars

From us the beauty of the dark. We fail to hear the meadow lark As in bright June it gaily sings. We do not notice that it wings Its way across our path. The green Of hills and trees is seldom seen, For we are blind who hurry so And fret no matter where we go.

Cagers Meet Grand Island Bus. Coll. Tonight

Trying to make it two straight victories in early-season games, the York College cage crew of Panthers swings into action on the home court tonight against Grand Island Business College.

Basketball is the major sport at the business college, and the Grand Islanders have been at it since September. York has played one game with Hebron this season.

The Islanders also employ a fast-breaking offense, and the game may turn into a scoring duel.

Christmas vacation gives the cagers a lay-off of almost three weeks before they play again. Next on the schedule is a game with Hebron on January 10 followed by the first conference game with Hastings here January 14.

REV. RIGGS VISITS, SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

The Rev. Fred Riggs, pastor of the Ames, Iowa, United Brethren Church, was a campus visitor December 13 and appeared on the chapel platform where he spoke briefly to the student body. Mr. Riggs is an uncle of Bertha Riggs, senior, and Faith Riggs, freshman. He is an alumnus of Leander Clark College which was succeeded by York College as the United Brethren College serving Iowa. Mr. Riggs was visiting his mother, a resident of York. This is his first visit to the Y. C. campus within two years.

Among the Panther Prey . . .

Here's what some of York's future opponents are doing in early contests. Omaha U's Indians trounced the Kearney Antelopes 53-29 in the season opener for both teams. Hilborn, Omaha forward, was high scorer. The Doane Tigers, fellow conference member, also beat Kearney last week. Western Union took Midland 48-40 in a close game. Incidentally, Midland has a second team of five freshmen.

Consequently, they may be seen leaving the gym wearing everything, including earmuffs and overcoat, except their shoes.

Sniff, Sniff . . .

Comment has it that the football team that made its debut in "When Stars Shine" smelled more like a mothball team.

Now that he has had his hair styled so that it doesn't interfere with his basketball, Eversteiner Paul Worthington looks as if he had been scared by a Fuller brush salesman.

Looking at the Frosh . . .

Wayne and Jim Kaeding, brother freshmen showing much promise at forward on the first squad, were both high school standouts at Benedict. Other freshmen on the first squad are two men who were competitors last year, Commodore Beaver, 6' 2" center, and Norman Miller, 6 foot guard. Beaver played for St. Ursula, and Miller for Bradshaw in high school.

B, C TEAMS LOSE

Freshman Kaeding Sets Scoring Pace York Wins 61-40;

York Leads Throughout To Win Opener From Hebron

Using a fast breaking offense throughout the game, the York college basketball team romped about its home floor to defeat Hebron Junior college by a score of 61-40, in the opening game of the season, Saturday evening December 7.

Coach Rolland Tonkin substituted freely, using all of the ten men comprising the first squad. Not once after the first ten minutes of the game, were the Panthers, who held a lead through the entire game in serious danger.

The Panthers displayed exceptionally good teamwork for the season opener, and had managed to acquire a 13-7 lead at the end of the first quarter. They maintained their six-point lead until the half by a score of 21-15. Thereafter, however, York steadily increased its lead until the final analysis gave them a twenty-one point margin.

Wayne Kaeding, freshman York forward, and Hobbs, Hebron center, tied for high scoring honors with eight field goals and two free shots each.

Three freshmen and two sophomores made up the second five in Saturday night's game and showed promise of a capable reserve with more experience.

THE LIMELIGHT

By William White

Among those who have rendered notable service to York College is Dean Charles Amadon, head of the Music Department.

Dean was born in Eastman, Massachusetts, but moved to Boston when only 15 months old. It was in Boston that Dean completed his high school work at the Perkins Institute for the Blind.

After high school, Dean Amadon studied music at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, the Whitney International school, and the Chicago Music College. Dean had the privilege of studying under some very outstanding men of the music world. Among these were Herbert Witherspoon, former singer in the Metropolitan Opera who later became the director of the Impresario there; Frantz Proschowski of Chicago; William Shakespeare Jr., son of the William Shake-spare famous for voice instruction in England, and many others.

His career as a teacher began in Holton, Kansas, at Campbell College for five years. When this college merged with Kansas City University, he joined the staff of the Laudiback School of Music in Atchinson, Kansas. He was there for only one year when he came to York where he has been for 26 years.

While in school Dean also participated in dramatics. In a play entitled "Henry VIII", he was a duke.

Dean has his favorites also. Among the opera stars, Tirsten Flagstad; Lawrence Tibbett and Yeussi Bjoerling. Wagner is his favorite composer of operas, and he especially likes Lohengrin and Parsival written by this famous musician. The New York Philharmonic orchestra and the Philadelphia Symphony are his favorite orchestras.

His favorite pastimes are motoring and listening to the radio. He enjoys Fred Waring, Raymond Paige, and the First Nighter. At this point in the interview Mrs. Amadon added, "New cars and new shoes are his greatest weaknesses. Every time he comes across a new car he must examine its every part. As for new shoes, he always wishes to try on the latest models."

Dean's happy disposition, his musical ability and his radiant personality all contribute to his charm. This is readily discovered by all who know him. During his lessons he always displays cheerfulness and helpfulness. Probably his outstanding characteristics are generosity, loyalty, humor, and kindness.

Near the close of the interview Dean remarked, "People should try to make the most of what they have and as little of their troubles as possible." A worthy tip.

AMONG THE STACKS

By Clayton Lehman

The college library is continually growing. Books which have recently been added include: The Golden Bough by Sir James G. Frazer, which relates the practices of magic, customs, religion, and other activities among primitive people; A Handbook of Drama by Frank Hubert O Haia, which gives a starting point for the student of drama rather than a statement of finality; Philosophy, Education, and Certainty by Robert L. Cook, which is an indictment and a challenge to the education student; and A Treasury of the World's Great Letters by M. Lincoln Schuster, which contains written communications of some of the most prominent people in world history, ranging from Alexander the Great and Saint Paul to George Bernard Shaw and Thomas Mann.

Other new books and their authors are: How Your Play Can Crash Broadway by Louise Howard and Marguerite Harmon; Intercollegiate Debate by Egbert Ray Nichols; Influencing Human Behavior Through Speech by Howard Hubert Higgins; Five Days of Holland by Jonkheer F. B. Von Blocklund; Heath German and English Dictionary by Karl Breul; and International Health Division, a 1939 report, by William A. Sawyer.

Reflections Classes Come And Classes Go

In our wanderings over the campus and through its buildings, we have noticed many times the various gifts given to York College by former classes. We recall getting quite a thrill from seeing the curbing along the street near the conservatory inscribed with the words "Presented by the class of 1933". To our mind, then, those words were akin to fame. We could hardly wait until the "class of '43" was engraved on something,—anything, so long as people could see it. We remember, too, noticing the speaker's stand in chapel which bears recognition of another class's donation. Then, this year came the new doors in the west entrance which the class of '40 presented. So, sophomorically, we began to wonder just what it was that caused these classes, after their days in Y. C. had ended, to present these gifts.

Naturally, first thoughts turned to our impressions in seeing those "presented by's," and we thought: "It's plain enough. They just want visitors to notice, and comment on what a fine gift this class gave. Perhaps, humanly, they wanted something to perpetuate their memory, like the schoolboy's carved initials." Yet, surely they realized that an everchanging student body will not long remember them as individuals or as classes. We looked further. Maybe it was just a custom; perhaps they felt obligated to the college; or was the gift given out of a sense of appreciation?

Suddenly the realization came that it was a mixture of all of these feelings and probably many more. Those gifts were concrete illustrations of how those classes felt about the college life they were leaving behind. For four years they had been integrally bound up in everything the college did. It was part of them. Somehow, they wanted to leave something to it.

So, we mused; and musing, we thought of those gifts again. As we did, there came a little stir of pride; pride because we, too, were part of that college; pride because of its heritage.

EDITORIALS . . .

Did you "register" this week?

It's a great life, if you don't waken.

Clean out your chimney. Santa Claus'll get stuck.

WEATHER REPORT . . .

Gloomy. Leap year's about over.

BOOK REVIEW . . .

In keeping with the Christmas season, read "Christmas Carol" by Charles (Slim) Pickings. Story of an old skin flint called Stooze who didn't have one spark of Yuletide spirit and was given his just deserts by a nasty ghost who scared him into the right frame of mind. Your reviewer says: Brand new plot. It'll haunt you.

MOVIE REVIEW . . .

Viewed "Mr. Seeds Goes to Town" starring Al Falfa and June Peas. Same old "Yokel boy makes good — comes back to home town" story. Harrowing events pile up (stack). Al finds he is too green, yields to spontaneous combustion, returns for a flaming romance with his neighbor, June, who has waited patiently for him.

SPORTS SECTION . . .

The future of outdoor sports here in Y. C. was threatened, this week, Butch believes, when a couple of "Con" girls went out caroling and froze their feet. Butch thinks even chapel may have to be given up.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK . . .

There's snow place like home.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR . . .

Dear Editor "Levy,"
Is there a Santa Claus?
Yours trustingly,

Virginia.

Dear Virginia,
Yes, there's a Santa Claus.

Blissfully,
Leviticus.

Dear Editor,
Get a load o' this. I'm in love with a poor gal, see, but a rich dame wants me to get hitched with her. Whadda ya say?

Venomously,
Willie Wedsel.

P. S. Please send me back a stamp.

Dear Willie,
Would you mind a great deal marrying the poor girl, and sending me the rich one's address?

Hopefully,
Leviticus.

NEWS SECTION . . .

Four He Loves And . . .
We're sure that Kansas Doris Landon must be just all a-flutter this week since Hank, under ether for his operation, said, . . . "Doris, I see four of you, but I love all four." Poor girl! She thought he was a monogamist.
