AN WE JUST TALK FOR A MINUTE?

At the dawn of a new millennium, one cannot help but reflect. Time marches on, taking us with it. But some things, the solid things, refuse to lose their integrity. In fact, the things of value we all so desire in our lives allow us to leave this era, and enter the next with the conviction that no matter what time reveals to us. Value remains.

Looking at the confident faces of those who carried York College into the century we are leaving behind, we smile. We smile because we know them. They knew their stuff ... what they were all about ... why they were here.

So do we.

My heart is so full of gratitude to God for the way He is blessing York College and its mission. The past three years have been some of the most faith-building years of my life. You and hundreds of other precious people interested in the future of this Christian College in the mid-west have made them so. This second issue of the Heritage will document in graphic detail some of the exciting progress being made both on and off our campus.

You will read with interest of the wonderful healing and evangelistic work done by Dr. Stephen Lemons ('74) in Zimbabwe; of the success of Elaine Dabney ('98), Miss Wyoming 1999; of four generations of "Yorkies" from the Blanchard family; of the excellent campus ministry work being done by Mike Rush ('84); and you will be inspired by the tribute to our honored and revered Dr. Tom Schulz ('58) – and don't miss the detail of:

- Our record enrollment of 512
- + New Rex and Sandra Olson Chemistry Laboratory
- New paved parking lots +
- + New Fitness Center
- New parquet wood floor in gymnasium +
- Vision 2000 Campaign

There are many campus improvements that I hope you can come to campus and see for yourselves. This is an ANOINTED PLACE, and speaking for my fellow servants, we seek only to allow God and His Spirit to work more openly with each passing day.

Sincerely,

Wingleronk

The 50-bed hospital will have two doctors on staff as well as visiting doctors from the Wichita area. "We'll be sending everything from hospital beds to surgical supplies," Lemons added. "The goal is to raise an additional $200,000 for medical supplies by the end of this year."

Establishing the hospital has been an emotionally rewarding experience for Dr. Lemons. "They've given me a lot more than I've given them," he said. "Working in Africa reminds you how grateful we should be to live in a country with the best medical care in the world."

Lemons was named York College's Alumnus of the Year in '94. He and his wife, Loretta, are the parents of five children: Brian, Chris, Jenae, Bradley, and Kellie. Their oldest son, Brian, was killed in a car accident his freshman year at York College February 23, 1997. As a memorial to Brian, the hospital will be named for him when it opens in December. The Lemons family will be going over for the dedication ceremony.

While attending York 'Steve' served as an officer of Sigma Tau. He also played varsity tennis and was a member of Who's Who.

Worth Repeating

"Under the able leadership of President Wayne Baker, York College has never been in a better position to grow, prosper and flourish. The community of York has never been in a better position to be able to enjoy the benefits of a strong educational institution. "

- DAN COLLIN, Editor, York News-Times October 12, 1998

"It happens that I can't tell the difference between work and play with my job at York College, which is a good thing because there's very little time for the latter."

- WAYNE BAKER, President November 23, 1998

"This past weekend was our very first visit to York College. I must admit that I was touched by something this weekend that I really did not expect. Excuse me for not expecting it, but every teacher/administrator from the school that I encountered (and/or listened to) seemed really genuine. Thank you. God appears to be exercising his power through you and your faculty and staff. I hope to learn more about York in the future. God Bless You. We'll be praying for your work."

Turning Back the Clock

s the next millennium advances the clock and turns the final page on the twentieth century, a reflection of the last one hundred years appears prominently throughout the media. The century's top movers and shakers, technology advances, social reforms, travel beyond this planet's boundaries ... awe-inspiring reports.

Closer to home - if this institution turned back its clock 876,000 hours, what would a York College student be reading? What would calm the mind of a mid-west parent sending a son or daughter away to the big city?

"York is admitted to be the best college town in Nebraska. It is the county seat of York County, located fifty miles west of Lincoln, in a most healthful part of the state, and has a population of about five thousand. The people are enterprising, cultured, and churchly. Saloons are not tolerated and never have been. Parents may be assured that York is a safe place for their sons and daughters to secure an education," 1899 York College Catalog.

It was under this catalog, pictured on the front cover, that Isaac Wesley Watt (no photos available) graduated one hundred years ago with a diploma in Commercial (Business) and started a family history with York College. His daughters, Florence, Mildred, and Blanche all attended in the 1920s, and a granddaughter, France Blanchard, graduated from YC in 1976. Happy "Accidental" Union

When I was at college in York, Nebraska in the '50s, I helped "fate" arrange my meeting with a good-looking football player - Dave. He was so shy he'd detour around a corner to avoid meeting a girl!

I lived on the first floor of the girls' dorm, next to the entrance. I could see across the street to the men's dorm, and it was easy to spot Dave when he was headed for Middlebrook Hall (where the student union was located).

When I saw Dave, I ran out of my dorm and made sure I was in the union to "accidentally" meet him. The semester was almost over before he extending the century-old heritage.

While many things have changed over the years, none seem to outdistance the cost difference of tuition and living expenses of Mr. Watt's era and today. From the catalog we find that tuition for the fall term of 14 weeks was $10, while the winter and spring terms, 11 weeks each, were $8. (Licensed ministers were entitled to half-rate tuition.) The library fee, "payable in advance," was 25 cents per term.

For students that needed to "secure board, lodging, fuel and light" there was a whole city of friendly citizens that had "many excellent homes ... open to our students at lowest rates. This is much better and more satisfactory than the dormitory plan." Two dollars per week seemed to be on the low end of expenses while the majority paid around $2.50 per week.

Kate and Emily Blanchard can certainly vouch for the inflation factor as York College engages its 109th year of existence. They would be tickled to have great grandpa's costs of living not quite 1% of today's > tuition, room, board, and fees. But they can also see how some things have remained the same, such as the safety perpetuated in a small college town and the sense of "community" that it affords a YC student away from home. Prayerfully, the next hundred years will find those staples of our existence unchanged.

In 1923, Philomathean Literary Society and the Amphictvon were jointly known as the "Pals". My dad and mom, Paul Riggs and Veda Ludwick, were members of Philomathean along with my aunts. I don't know when the two literary societies joined to make "Pals", but this was the society I belonged to 1946-50. Both "Pals" and "Zeta" held their meeting on the third floor of Old Main.

I was perhaps the 15th Riggs to graduate from York College. This would include Mother, Dad, two aunts, a brother, and several cousins. Since I am the youngest, I was the last Riggs to attend

Chemistry at Its Finest

L he Rex and Sandra Olson Chemistry Laboratory opened for classes in the Dean Sack Hall of Science for the first time at 7:30 a.m. Thursday, August 26, 1999, to Dr. Ray Miller's 17th year of York College chemistry students. With plenty of elbow room, Bunsen burners, flasks, fumigation hoods, and other more complex equipment, the new chemistry lab gives the General Science degree program a wonderful booster shot in facility expansion.

With the continuing interest of high school students across the nation in major fields of study in pre-medicine, pre-veterinary medicine, pre-dentistry, biology, nursing and related fields, larger and better equipped facilities are imperative. A new biology lab was added in 1997 to facilitate the immediate needs of the science department. Funding is in progress for a new physics laboratory, a lecture and demonstration hall, and an additional biology lab.

President Wayne Baker stated, "The advances being made in technology, facilities, and equipment on the campus of York College will supply our already outstanding science faculty with the tools they need to educate some of our brightest students. Add to this the benefit of personal attention that each student receives in the classroom, and the results are a very marketable education."

of York College from 1988 until his death in 1997. In making the Olson family's donation for the laboratory, Sandra stated, "He truly loved York College, and deeply appreciated and valued the many friends we had through our affiliation with the college." Dr. Olson was a veterinarian and a farmer and rancher at Waynoka, Oklahoma. He was also president of Santo Resources, Inc., an oil and gas operating company. He served as an elder at Northside Church of Christ.

"At York College, we take the pursuit of science beyond the level of facts, principles, and technology; we see Science as the archaeology of Creation, the fingerprints of God - the mark of His design. Of what use are the tools of tomorrow if a student does not understand Life's blueprint?"

That quote nicely summarizes the philosophy of the Science Department, and we are so thankful to have our new facilities. The new Chemistry lab is a first-class teaching/learning environment that will help us train the next generation of Christian doctors and scientists. Of course, we're not finished dreaming, planning and praying about our next phases of growth: a second Biology lab, a Physics lab, and a state-ofthe-art demonstration hall for teaching large science classes. As these new labs fall into place, we hope to be adding a degree in Biology as well.

These great new improvements will draw more and more students to YC for science degrees. Consequently, we're going to need more personnel to continue our commitment to small class sizes and individual attention: more teachers in mathematics, another teacher in chemistry, and another in biology. Help us spread the word about the exciting ways God is blessing the Science Department, and if you know qualified people that might join our science team, let us know!

York College Builds for the Future

The Vision 2000 campaign is helping to produce some of the most noticeable changes on York College's campus for the past twenty-five years. The Phyllis Mackey Center, endowment, and the advances made in computer technology services have been at the forefront of the campaign's applied dollars. With the funds secured through this capital endeavor, the recent summer months have also been extremely busy in facility enhancements.

• In addition to a new chemistry lab, the entire wing in the Dean Sack Hall of Science was equipped with central air conditioning.

• A parquet wood floor was installed in the Freeman Center gymnasium to replace the original tartan surface.

A new fitness and weight center was established in the Sack Gym.

These improvements add up to a campus-wide facelift. And there's still more to be done in the months to follow.

The Vision 2000 phonathon conducted during the summer produced over $250,000 in pledges and donations. Approximately thirty percent of alumni have been contacted up to this time.

One of the most interesting approaches directed the YC Lectureships, chaired the Bible department, and served in many other capacities - always an example of efficiency and patience.

What Tom is most noted for at York College, however, is being an excellent classroom teacher. His kindness and gentleness as he challenges and helps students to learn, draws students to him. He is demanding in his classes, but fair. Students know that he has their best interest in mind whether they agree with his decisions or not. They sense his respect for them.

Through the years, Dr. Schulz has influenced many students to become interested in missions. several of which have been and are missionaries. This has truly been a love of his and Dottie's. Together, they have given their lives to the Lord's work in missions both in Europe and here in the states. We all praise > the College purchases a variable universal life insurance policy on the life of the donor.

> One alum recently pledged to give a taxdeductible gift of $300/year ($25 per month) for the next five years to pay the annual premium on his policy. As soon as the first donation is submitted, York College owns a policy worth $25,000. After five years, no more donations have to be made, based on hypothetical market returns of 12%. The $25,000 life insurance policy exists in perpetuity. Even better news – if the donor doubles his donation to $600/year ($50 per month) for an additional five years the gift will be worth $319,000 at the donor's age of 85. Now that's planning ahead!

Endowment is the lifeblood of an institution's future. York College, while making enhancements for the immediate needs, is committed to building an endowment that will be here for many generations to come. God continues to turn ordinary gifts into extraordinary blessings.

Mr. Glenn Bagley of Carlsbad, New Mexico, will receive a check from York College four times a year. Bagley is not an employee of YC. He's a special friend of ours. Glenn Bagley has supported York College for several years with many generous gifts; however, just recently he became an Annuity Partner. His desire was to give the College a sizeable gift and increase his income. Through the York College Gift Annuity Program he was able to do just that.

You may have C.D.'s or other investments that are currently paying a low interest rate. If you take that same investment and use it to fund a gift annuity to benefit York College, you will likely receive a much higher rate of return on your investment, and at the same time you will receive a tax credit for making a charitable gift. If you are interested in learning more about becoming an Annuity Partner, please call Janey Miller at (402) 363-5636. Or you may reach Janey via e-mail at janey.miller@york.edu.

dvances in technology, facility and service upgrades, added programs, and strong recruitment have paid off for York College, and enrollment records show it best.

This year's fall enrollment is at an alltime record high with 512 students, breaking the former record of 509 set in 1994. A new full-time equivalency (FTE) record of 499 has also been set which shows a four percent increase over last year's FTE. FTE is figured by dividing the total hours taken in a semester by a fulltime, 15-hour course load.

Much of the increase can be attributed to returning students. These students have seen first-hand the advancements made by the college on their behalf. "We're delighted with our high retention rates as they illustrate the fact that York College students overall are pleased with their educational experience," commented Dr.

Athletic recruiting was another major contributor to the success of the enrollment numbers. The recent addition of men's golf and several junior varsity sports in the last few years gives more opportunities to attract high school athletes.

Led by the Spirit

Every Monday night, eighteen students who serve with Mike Rush in the Heartland Campus Ministries meet at the Rush home for pancakes and to discuss the upcoming week.

THE JOY OF BEING TOGETHER

- Take a breather from the hustle and bustle of campus life and get relevant.

/ ork College's Campus Ministry office has a direct correlation with the mission of the institution: "to provide students with knowledge and ideals that will lead to effective Christian service." It was out of this commitment five years ago that Michael Rush ('84) was brought on board to help lead and organize the spiritual talents of the student body. The impact this decision has had on the York College campus is monumental.

As YC's first Campus Minister, Mike has captured a faith dynamic among the students that has shone far beyond the pillars of McGehee Hall. In fact, that's where the Heartland Campus Ministries has their offices – the old student center. And for the amount of serving, sharing, counseling, praising, and outright fun that takes place there, every inch of space is needed.

A team of fifteen ministry interns as well as the Spiritual Life Director and two Assistant Campus states and countries provide the leadership and support that a program of this magnitude requires. They have varying responsibilities, from assisting Mike in organizing a mission trip to Canada or a weekend spiritual retreat, to helping with campus devotionals or just giving a friendly shoulder to lean on. In turn, however, these student leaders have their ministry skills trained and focused. No matter what career path they're choosing – education, medicine, youth ministry-the relevancy of this mentoring process is invaluable.

"Learning to be ministers of the gospel through our everyday lives gives this group such an awesome purpose," said Saprina Howard, senior elementary ed. major from Delta, Colorado. "Our goal is to encourage as many YC students as possible to use their spiritual gift(s) and, in turn, pass on that encouragement to others. It's such a great feeling to know you're equipping someone for life!" she added.

One of the richest variations made last year was the addition of a Sunday evening late worship. Mike wanted to give the college family a spiritual anchor for the week to follow - a focal point of rededication and communion. From 9:00 to 10:00 p.m. the prayers, songs, and comments are directed almost exclusively towards the Lord's Supper. "That communion time with each other is so important," Mike commented. "It gives each person there perspective and motivation to make the rest of the week count. It compels us to be more like Christ."

Rush has thirteen years of his life woven into the York College tapestry including five years in recruiting where he served as both a counselor and Director of Admissions. As an alum, he knows firsthand "the York Experience," appreciates the fact that he met his wife, Janet (Reno '83), on this campus, and now conducts many counseling sessions for engaged couples.

He has served as a youth minister in three different states and today has his own sons participating in youth group activities. In December he will add a Masters Degree in Family Life to his M.S. in Theology and B.A. in Human Resources Management.

Well qualified for this campus ministry role? Most of the students don't have any idea of his accolades but will vouch unwaveringly for his effective and contagious ministry. They see his spiritual diet in every facet of his life. He models the talk.

It's the heart prepared for service that can challenge others to "follow my lead." This is certainly a trait of Mr. Rush as he is the catalyst behind so many endeavors that show students how great the Christian walk can be.

In the summer of 1981, thity-eight teenagers arrived on campus for the first camp of its kind in York, Nebraska. Mike Myers from Littleton, Colorado, was asked by York College to organize and direct - and later to 'grow' - the session dubbed "Soul Quest." The idea was to bring teenagers from Nebraska and surrounding states on campus for an energetic, spirit-filled week of fellowship and fun. In turn, they would discover more about the College and the advantages of a Christian education.

Soul Quest has grown from that modest beginning eighteen years ago to more than 700 campers and 100 staff. Myers' visionary leadership worked its magic for fifteen of those years as youth ministers from across the country planned their summers around six days in June. Well over one hundred and fifty full-time youth ministers have been a part of Soul Quest in the past and an estimated 5500 teens have made this campus visit their highlight of the year.

"As teenagers you feel like you're struggling a lot. Soul Quest makes you stronger ... you realize there are others going through the same thing,"

- Pam Rathe (now a junior at YC)

"I knew in my mind that Soul Quest was a lifechanging experience because my daughter who has come every year told me so. I now know it in my heart. I was asked yesterday, 'How was Soul Quest?' I responded by saving, 'Awesome, wonderful, exciting, spiritually uplifting, emotional, rewarding, spirit-filled, indescribable to the fullest!' Thank you for letting me be a part of the Soul Quest family this year. It has changed my life!"

- Lezlie Teter, Colorado Springs' Mom

Mike Rush, who has co-directed the camp in the past, will again be coordinating York College's efforts with future Soul Quests. Next summer's dates are June 18-24, and the cost will be $110/camper. Contact the Admissions Office at (402) 363-5627 or enroll@york.edu for more information.

PANTHER SPORTS

New Look, New Attitude

oach aura Eldred's girls in their home volleyball debut took the new floor in the Freeman Center for a test drive. And they were not disappointed. Conference foe, Bartlesville Wesleyan, took their lumps as the highly-charged Lady Panthers spiked down the claim of home court advantage.

With the original tartan surface replaced by a beautiful parquet wood floor, the entire gymnasium seems newly built. Ownership is very serious business in sports, and that's exactly what the ladies were saying that night, "When you come to our 'house,' watch out!" Spikes seemed harder, digs more aggressive, and fans a whole lot louder. It's the ricochet zone - BYOE - bring your own earplugs.

High fives, big smiles, and lots of celebration made months of summer construction vanish in the minds of coaches. The anticipation was well worth the wait.

Maybe it's coincidence, but an amazing transformation seems to have occurred with the addition of a wood floor. We're about to see some serious courtside action.

I players were inducted into the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame September 17, at a pre-game reception in Lincoln's Memorial Stadium. Among those honored was former York College halfback Burton "Bud" Feaster.

An all-around athlete for York College, Feaster became a star halfback for the Panthers in 1936-38, took time off, and returned to finish in 1940. Though only 155-160 pounds, Feaster's ruggedness helped him lead York's scoring stats. He excelled with deceptive speeds in returning punts and kickoffs.

As a halfback, Feaster mastered the pass routes and was noted for his formidable "stiff arm" on would-be tacklers. His versatility carried over to York's defensive backfield where Bud proved himself as a good open-field tackler.

He used this quickness to earn a spot on the College's basketball team and had a deadly set-shot. Track and field found Bud vaulting 12'8".

He coached at Ceresco and Clarks High Schools prior to World War II naval service. Afterwards, he began a 35-year career of teaching, coaching, and directing athletic programs in the Grand Island school system. Bud also found time to serve on the Grand Island city council.

In 1996, Bud was honored for his 50 years of service at high school track and t's an impressive sight. The floor of what once was an elementary school gym seemed useless for physical activities in a collegiate environment. The court is not regulation. The ceiling is too low. There's no room for spectators. But it now accommodates a well-equipped fitness and weight center that is perfectly suited to its surroundings. Sack Gym is once again a place to exchange energy for good health.

It's five times the size of the previous location in the Freeman Center and is at least five times more available to every college student. From 6:00 in the morning to hours late in the night, the cardiovascular system can get the pumping and knee bends needed. Opposite the full-length mirrors on one end of the floor is a stage that felt the weight of many school plays and countless produc-

Coach Kim McDaniel uses halftime to review some fundamentals.

W ith only nine returning starters and twenty-three new players, the women's soccer team definitely faces challenges this season, yet the team feels confident.

Kheva Edwards, junior sweeper/forward from Clinton, Oklahoma, and one of the team's leading scorers explains, "Lots of freshmen are starting to step up and play well." She added, "We seem to be connecting better and clicking as a team. Our main struggle right now is injuries. Once we get past those, we'll be fine."

Coach Kim McDaniel is in her fourth year with the team and feels the chemistry tions. Complete with booths, tables, and vending machines, it now provides a "resting place" or possibly even a study area for those who desire a cerebral workout. Upcoming winter months will certainly boost attendance as outdoor activities turn inward. And watching ESPN while taking an early morning stroll on the treadmill might take some bite out of what the doctor

this year is "awesome." "I feel that we can be competitive with any team we play as long as we're focused mentally," says McDaniel. She added that the mental game is just as difficult as the physical one, but that with practice, the girls are learning to conquer that challenge. Duluth, Minnesota's Jody Peplinski, who is in her fourth season with the team, is very optimistic and encouraged by her teammates' newness. "The dynamics of the team have really changed," says Peplinski, "but our determination and intensity have Ben Berry - Eau Claire, WI improved so much."

"Oh-lay, oh-lay, oh-lay, oh-lay, YC Panthers!" If you've never heard this snappy jingle before, you obviously haven't been to a YC men's soccer game. The crowd goes wild for these guys.

Many of the team's players are convinced that conference titles are within reach this season. Kevin Megli, keeper from Mesquite, Texas, feels like they have the potential to do outstanding things this season despite the slow start. "In 1992, YC went 0-2 at the start of the season," notes Megli, "and still finished winning nationals."

Greg Reynolds of Gallup, New Mexico, has been with the team four years and has high expectations for this season. "The team is looking good," he says. "I enjoy playing with these guys. Coach Luther and Coach Carr are doing a great job." He added, "We are coming together as a team, and we're beginning to realize the importance of our own individual responsibilities as players."

The first two conference matches of the year ended with York on top. This included a road win over Bellevue University, rated 2nd in the conference pre-season. In his second season as Head Coach, Chris Luther had this to say, "The guys really put a lot of heart in this win. After starting the year with two disappointing losses, they're starting to pull things together."

When Dreams Come True

After two nights of competition in the 51st annual Miss Wyoming Scholarship Pageant held in Gillette June 4th & 5th, Elaine Dabney was crowned as the new 1999 Miss Wyoming. Elaine completed her prerequisites at York College before transferring to the University of Wyoming in Laramie this past spring semester.

Elaine will take this year off from her college education in order to fulfill the requirements of her role as Miss Wyoming. During her year of service she will travel thirty to forty thousand miles and speak in approximately 200 schools, to over 70,000 youth and autograph over 25,000 pictures with her message on the back! Elaine will be presenting her platform of Sexual Abstinence with the theme of "True Love Waits."

Elaine attended the leadership program, ADVANCE, on the YC campus the summer before her freshman year, as well as Soul Ouest. She was a member of York College's track team and active in the Omega Phi social club where she choreographed for the year's "Songfest" production. She maintained a 3.5 grade point average in her academic studies.

Congratulations, Elaine, from all of your family at York!!!
